St. Patrick, His Day.
Three Rosenbergs.
Mr. Factor Denies.
Two Die Singing.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

ON THIS St. Patrick's Day, all over the world, men honor the memory of a courageous man. More than fifteen hundred years ago he was born, probably in a small village in Scotland, called Bannevan.

The date of his death is uncertain, but there is no uncertainty about his courage. He faced, without flinching, the fierce pagan Irish king on the hill of Tara, as he faced shiploads of savage Irish wolfhounds with which he returned from his first trip to Ireland.

Men and women do well to honor St. Patrick. The qualities that he possessed are those that the world needs, courage that gave him fighting power, and faith that directed it.

THREE INTERESTING members of one family are presented in the Chicago bribery scandal disclosed by the Chicago American. The father of Mike and Moe Rosenberg started a junk business, prospered, moderately.

Mike, the older brother, took the business, with an idea. He visited utilities gentlemen, including Mr. Sam Insull, saying:

"I know you have to bribe politicians, or you'd never get anywhere; they'd never let you tear up a street or get a franchise. Give me exclusive sale of your tons of junk copper at my price so I'll make a big profit, and I'll use most of the money paying public officials for doing what you want done."

THE BARGAIN struck included not only Mr. Insull's, but other great public utilities, according to sworn testimony by Moe Rosenberg, brother of Mike, who directed the business when "Mike passed away."

Mike passed, but the system remained. Moe developed it. According to his testimony, he "always had plenty of five hundred, one thousand, five thousand, ten thousand dollar bills in two safe deposit boxes, and a heavy iron box in the Sherman House Hotel," where he could get money at night.

He gave ninety-five thousand dollars in two years to one Mayor of Chicago, and other hundreds of thousands to public officials of various sorts. For, as the last of the three Rosenbergs testified:

"The least we could do was to buy for the utilities companies the officials that they needed."

They were bought.

IT IS a fact, well known, that operating utilities companies in big cities usually involves the use of bribe money by the companies. It has been so for generations.

The man that bought from New York Aldermen the right to build the first street railway on Broadway, stuffing large bills into the overcoat pockets of aldermen, and going to jail later, said pathetically and truthfully:

"If I hadn't bribed the aldermen, I couldn't have built the road, and the city needed it."

Respectable gentlemen that ingeniously supplied the Rosenberg junk dealers with hundreds of thousands of dollars by selling copper below its value, would probably tell you, haughtily:

"We have to bribe those scoundrels, or we couldn't exist."

Admitting the excuse to be good, which it is not, does it not suggest that private individuals should not own natural public monopolies, finding themselves under the painful necessity of bribing public officials? Public ownership need not involve bribery. The United States post office maintains no bribe-giving Rosenbergs.

JOHN FACTOR, kidnaped once or twice, his son also kidnaped, denies the statement, sent out by news agencies, that he said the Touhy gang went to jail for ninety-nine years because it would not accept his reasonable offer of fifty thousand dollars cash, and kicked him around for twelve hours, "in the attempt to get seventy thousand."

Mr. Factor telegraphs:

"I did not make statements quoted. This publication is a source of some embarrassment to me."

Reasonably, he thinks he is entitled to some credit for identifying and testifying against the Touhy gang "at the risk of my own life, and the lives of the members of my family."

AT HERNANDO, Miss., three young Negroes are hanged following conviction of criminal assault on a seventeen-year-old school girl. Two of the men, Isaac Howard and Ernest McGehee, went to death singing hymns, still singing while the ropes were put around their necks. The third made no sound.

The father of the girl witnessed the hangings, but was not allowed to spring the traps and hang the men himself, although he wished to do so. Mississippi's Senate passed a bill giving him the right to act as hangman, but the House killed it. Two hundred guardsmen were on hand to prevent lynching, even at the last moment.

McGehee interrupted his singing to say:

"Tell the other colored boys to behave themselves, and not get into a mess such as we are in."

Fear of a last minute lynching may have been based on the belief, which exists in some parts, that lynching, especially if followed by burning, is a more powerful deterrent than legal execution.

Insull Starts on 'Hunger Strike'

EX-MAGNATE REPORTED WEAK

Fugitive Due Back In Greece for Expulsion

ATHENS, March 17.—(AP.)—Samuel Insull was reported on a "hunger strike" today and so weak and depressed that attendants resorted to hypodermic injections aboard the little freighter which is returning the 74-year-old fugitive to Greece.

The captain of the vessel himself administered the injections, it was said, in an effort to brace the former Chicagoan.

DESPERATE EFFORT

Apparently the "strike" was determined upon in a final desperate effort of the former American utilities czar to stave off extradition and trial as the vessel bore him slowly nearer Athens and the grasp of United States officials.

The newspaper Ethnos said today that Rumania, through a decree by King Carol, has granted Insull permission to live for five years in Galati, a city on the Danube in Eastern Rumania, but this report was denied in dispatches from Rumania.

Meanwhile, Insull's wife was reported as saying he would commit suicide if delivered to United States authorities.

The tramp steamer Maiotis, on which the fallen power king fled secretly seeking refuge in some obscure corner of the globe, was due to return with Insull probably late this afternoon. It had been ordered to return by order of the ministry of marine.

When Insull gets back he will be handed over to police custody and compelled to leave Greece within 24 hours, said M. Moundjouridis, of the Ministry of the Interior, who stated:

"Insull, on his arrival, will be remanded to his home in police custody and will be expelled in 24 hours."

The status of undesirable aliens today confronted Mrs. Insull and a governess who came to Greece with the couple. Mrs. Insull, who stood by her husband during his 17 months' fight against extradition to America, is expected to be expelled with him.

Martin Insull in Cell, Awaits Extradition

TORONTO, Ont., March 17.—(AP.)—Martin J. Insull, his last recourse gone, waited in a common cell today for American police to come and get him.

The brother and associate of Samuel J. Insull in a vast utilities network lost an appeal to the Supreme Court yesterday. Chief Justice Sir William Muloch ruled that he must be extradited to the United States to face trial in Chicago on charges of embezzlement and larceny.

Hepburn Named Queen of Films; Laughton King

KATHARINE HEPBURN

MOVIE AWARDS ANNOUNCED

HOLLYWOOD, March 17.—(AP.)—The court of film royalty opened its doors today to Katharine Hepburn and Charles Laughton.

By the acclaim of their fellow workers they were chosen last night at a banquet of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences as the actress and the actor whose work was the best upon the screen in 1933.

Miss Hepburn's work in "Morning Glory" won her the honor.

Mr. Laughton's work in the British-made film, "The Private Life of Henry VIII," brought him the prize.

But it was a strange coronation, for neither the queen nor the king was present to wear the crown. Laughton was in England making a picture and Miss Hepburn was in New York.

Second place among the actresses went to May Robson for

2D DILLINGER PAL DOOMED BY JURY

Convicted in Slaying At Lima, O.; Deaths Spur Outlaw Hunt

LIMA, O., March 17.—(AP.)—Charles Makley, second member of the notorious John Dillinger gang to face a charge of murdering Sheriff Jess Sarber, today was convicted without a recommendation of mercy by a jury. The verdict makes mandatory a sentence of death in the electric chair.

A similar verdict was given a week ago to Harry Pierpoint, named as the trigger-man in the slaying which was committed October 12, when members of the gang freed Dillinger from the Allen County Jail here.

With several batteries of machine guns manned by national guardsmen commanding all approaches Makley and Pierpont now are prisoners in the jail, as is Russell Clark, who will be brought to trial on the same charge later.

The special precautions to prevent a delivery of the trio have been maintained ever since they were brought here. Since Dillinger's recent escape from the jail at Crown Point, Ind., the guards have been increased several times.

Deaths In Gun Battle Spur Dillinger Search

PORT HURON, Mich., March 17.—(AP.)—A "hot trail" marked by two more deaths snapped the eyes of authorities toward Canada today as they hunted John Dillinger, wooden-gun desperado.

Undersheriff Charles Cavanaugh died last night of bullet wounds he suffered when he and other police trapped and fatally wounded Dillinger's Negro pal-in-crime, Herbert Youngblood.

Before he died, Youngblood said that Dillinger had been in Port Huron Thursday night. Quickly there came a report that Dillinger had crossed the St. Clair River from Port Huron to Sarnia, Ont., in a rowboat with two Indians.

This was unconfirmed, but authorities were impressed with the possibility that Dillinger, if he is this near the border, might try to get across it. Police on both sides kept close watch, although Canadian officials at Sarnia expressed confidence last night that Dillinger hadn't been able to enter their country.

Hunt for Dillinger Pushed in Chicago

CHICAGO, March 17.—(INS.)—Police conducted a careful search today for John Dillinger, fugitive bank robber and killer, in the belief he had returned here from the vicinity of Port Huron, Mich., where his former Negro companion, Herbert Youngblood, and a peace officer were slain in a gun battle.

MONESSEN POLITICIANS IN FEUD

Mayor, Councilman, Police Chief Among Six Arrested

MONESSEN, Pa., March 17.—Turmoil reigned in Monessen's city administration today as a political feud raged between Mayor James Gold, elected on the Democratic ticket, and Councilman John G. Check, Republican, who did his best to defeat him.

Mayor Gold, his police chief and two patrolmen faced assault and battery charges; Councilman Check was at liberty under $500 bond, charged with violating a city ordinance, and a Pittsburgh auctioneer whom he had engaged to conduct an auction sale here also was free on bail.

BATTLE OVER AUCTION

Councilman Check, who has been in the furniture business here for 20 years, hired Alexander Krugelin to auction off goods in a storeroom two blocks from Check's store.

Mayor Gold held that both Check and his auctioneer were violating an ordinance which requires any transient merchant to have a permit costing $200. Check contended that as he was permanently in business he didn't need a permit to conduct the auction.

Last night Auctioneer Krugelin was arrested at the scene of the auction. A warrant was served also on Check. They were fined $200 and costs each at a hearing before Mayor Gold. Both filed appeals and were released in $500 bond each.

MAYOR ACCUSED

Meanwhile Check filed informations charging assault and battery before Alderman Joseph Mochnaly against Mayor Gold, Police Chief Joseph Lescanac and the two arresting officers, Louis Kichinko and Judson Duncan.

The Mayor and police chief were not at the scene of arrest, but Check held they had ordered the arrest of Krugelin and had committed technical assault.

The two patrolmen, the chief and Mayor Gold were released on $500 bail each for a hearing.

Check was a backer of Carl Woodward, the Republican nominee for Mayor, who went down to defeat.

A governess is teaching Buzzie the fine points of cycling. He has had a tricycle for a long time, but lost interest in it when the new "bike" arrived.

Five of Family Die In Memphis Blaze

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 17.—(AP.)—The Memphis Fire Department reported that five persons burned to death in a fire that destroyed a home in the residential section early today. Those dead, the fire department reports, are:

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hammond, whose home was burned; Mrs. Hammond's sister, Miss Kitty Kay, 21; Earl, Jr., 3, and an infant girl as yet unnamed.

Child Sees Father Kill Rival and Self

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 17.—(AP.)—Ray Strange, 37, of Spangler, last night killed Morris Cochran, 37, of Brynsville, police said, and then shot himself to death.

Strange's daughter, Rosella, 8, witnessed the shooting, officers reported. They said Strange's wife recently had become housekeeper for Cochran.

NEW BOARD TO CONTROL OPERATION URGED

Rickenbacker Reveals Program at Senate Hearing

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP.)—Col. Eddie Rickenbacker, testifying today before the Senate Postoffice Committee, urged that "the President purge his official family of those traitorous elements who have misadvised him on the air mail."

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP.)—Creation of a presidential regulatory board to supervise the operation of air lines was advocated today by Col. Eddie Rickenbacker, America's 26-plane war ace.

Testifying to the Senate Postoffice Committee—before which Charles A. Lindbergh and Clarence Chamberlin appeared yesterday—the Pice President of the North American Aviation Company also urged the restoration of air mail transportation to the cmpanes whse cntracts were recently cancelled by Postmaster General Farley.

Under Rickenbacker's plan, the Postmaster General would place mail on any lines receiving certificates of necessity and convenience from the federal regulatory board.

PAYMENT PLAN

He suggested that payment be on the basis of two mills per pound mile up to 250 pounds average load per airplane and one mill per pound mile for all those above this amount.

Two mills per mile, he said, is the revenue which the government estimates it receives for postage on mail carried by airplanes.

Rickenbacker was called before the committee to give his views on the administration's permanent air mail legislation.

Certified air lines which could not exist under these rates, would be given a direct subsidy not to exceed 40 cents per airplane mile for the first year, under Rickenbacker's proposed arrangement. Such payment, however, would be made only to the extent of the actual loss incurred by the air lines, and would be reduced five cents each year until eliminated.

REDUCTION URGED

Rickenbacked suggested a reduction in air mail postage to 5 cents an ounce for letters, and the authorization of air lettergrams at 3 cents and air postcards at 2 cents.

NOTED ITALIAN PRIEST DEAD

The Rev. Father Bonaventure Piscopo—known as "Father Bonnie" throughout the Pittsburgh diocese—pastor of the Immaculate Conception Roman Catholic Church and founder of most of the Italian Catholic congregations in the Pittsburgh diocese, died early today in the rectory of his church in Edmond street, Bloomfield.

Born in Naples, Italy, November 7, 1858, Father Piscopo joined the Franciscan order in 1875 and was ordained in 1883. During the Italian war with Abyssinia he served as a military chaplain.

He came to the United States in 1895 and served several pastorates in New York. From 1903 until 1906 he served as a missionary in the Pittsburgh diocese. Later he was appointed pastor of the Italian Roman Catholic Churuch of Sharpsburg, and three years later moved to the Immaculate Conception Church.

He leaves two brothers and five sisters, all living in Naples.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 17.—John Mozesz, 23, of Pittsburg, Cal., was convicted of slaying his sweetheart, Rose Balogh, by a jury which recommended life imprisonment here today.

The jury of nine men and three women returned the first-degree murder verdct after deliberating since 4 p. m. yesterday afternoon.

Miss Balogh, pretty shoe clerk, was fatally shot when she rejected Mozesz's marriage proposal while the couple walked homeward on a street here last January. After firing bullets into his sweetheart's body, the defendant shot himself.

Stavisky Accomplice Tries to End Life

PARIS, March 17.—(INS.)—Emile Blanchard, official of the Ministry of Agriculture, who was an accomplice of the late Alexander Stavisky, master swindler, attempted suicide today in Fontainebleu Forest, adding one more act to the dramatic $40,000,000 Bayonne pawnshop scandal.

Blanchard, his throat cut, was found on the edge of the forest by soldiers engaging in their regular morning artillery exercises. Police said he had taken poison before slashing his throat.

Dublin Leads Tribute To St. Patrick

DUBLIN, March 17.—(AP.)—Old Dublin led the world's Irish today in the "Wearin' of the Green" to honor the memory of the good Saint Patrick with a big parade.

Eamon De Valera, president of the executive council of the Free State, attended high mass, accompanied by his ministers, at noon.

The Free State Legislature ordered public houses closed from Friday through Sunday, hence Irishmen here were forced to do their toasting to St. Patrick with tea or milk, unless they stepped over into Ulster, where there are no restrictions.

St. Patrick's Day was observed today in honor of Ireland's patron saint, with the wearing of the green, special church services and celebrations by Irish orders.

This afternoon the Ladie's Auxiliary, Ancient Order of Hibernians, was to hold a social in Kaufmann's auditorium.

This evening in Webster hall, John J. Gibbons, president of Division 8 of the Hibernian order, and Thomas J. Lewis, vice president, will be honor guests at a testimonial dinner. Both have been in the order for 50 years.

Knights of Equity will hold a banquet tonight in the Mayfair Hotel.

Boy, 8, Foils Robbery Of Doctor's Home

An 8-year-old Ben Avon boy blocked the robbery of a neighboring doctor's home last night.

As the boy, Billy Tellin, was passing the home of Dr. Clarence C. Croft, 7401 Church avenue, he saw the beam of a flashlight sweeping through a dark room. He ran to his own home, 7411 Church avenue, told his sister Miss Virginia Tellin, what he had seen.

She notified police, who apprehended several young men in the vicinity of the doctor's home. One of the young men was placed under arrest.

Police refused to divulge his name.

JOHNSON PLANS TO SUPERVISE VOTE OF AUTO WORKERS

NRA CHIEFTAIN WILL GO TO DETROIT

Motor Magnates to Pass on Program Monday

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Johnson intends to go to Detroit to supervise personally whatever worker elections result from his plan for settling the automobile strike threat.

If the leaders of the automobile industry accept his program—and Johnson expects them to agree to the fundamental ideas to avert a threatened 60,000-man strike—he will fly into action.

The automobile leaders will give their "yes" or "no" to Johnson's plan after a meeting in New York Monday. The A. F. of L. workers have set 9 a. m. Wednesday morning as their deadline.

Unless the NRA program is met, labor leaders intend to start a strike that will last "until the government does enforce the National Recovery Act." It would be called throughout Michigan, and in Cleveland and St. Louis.

If the executives announce acceptance by Tuesday, the walkout will be called off.

Whatever the motor car executives may have said to the Administrator of NRA and the National Labor Board members who assisted him, they made no public promise to accept the Johnson program.

William S. Knudsen's word—given as the executive officer of General Motors—was that the executive committee of the automobile code authority would try to work out plans in line with the Johnson program, which calls for elections and for creation immediately of an impartial board to pass on employe complaints.

Should the plan be turned down, the government might undertake court action to protect the rights of employes.

TAXI DRIVERS STRIKE IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP.)—A general strike of New York City taxi drivers, effective at once, was voted early today by 5,000 cheering delegates of the Taxi Drivers' Union at a meeting in St. Nicholas Rink.

The strike vote was declared unanimous by the leaders. Recognition of the union was described as the principle issue at stake.

There also was some resentment over the division of a 5-cent tax which New York City, under the Tammany regime that preceded Mayor iForello H. LaGuardia, assessed for each taxi ride.

The present economic order is in constant danger from growth of revolutionary unrest, Fascism and Communism unless a remedy is quickly found, Prof. Francis D. ONE VOTE BEATS VETS' BILL

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP.)—The scant margin of one vote yesterday saved administration forces from defeat in the House on veterans payments in the dispute-provoking independent offices supply bill.

The measure was sent to conference for adjustment of differences between the Senate and House on restoration of federal pay and veterans legislation by a count of 190 to 189 as the climax of a gruelling day in the chamber.

It was only through a recapitulation of the balloting, upon the order of Speaker Rainey, that defeat was changed to victory. In the interim, Representative Kennedy, of New York, changed his vote.

In a dramatic and tense scene that held the usually noisy membership silent, Kennedy arose shortly before the Speaker prepared to announce the vote and settled the issue.

SENATE HOSTILE TO LOAN PLAN OF RFC

White House Unaware Of Proposal By Jones

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP.)—Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, faced a hostile Senate Banking Committee today in search of authority to have the government lend directly to industry.

The RFC head, himself a banker, carried with him a view that unshackled credit for industry, such as he has been trying for months to get banks to extend, would finance recovery.

Jones specifically sought support for the bill he submitted Thursday on behalf of the RFC board to permit loans to industry, financing of foreign trade and compromising of claims against railroads in reorganization proceedings.

Members of the committee expressed opposition to the proposal even before he had a chance to present his arguments.

The measure, in fact, may be abandoned entirely in the light of President Roosevelt's disclaimer of knowledge of the RFC proposal. The White House disclosed its own bill was being drafted.

VOTE ON SILVER BILLS MONDAY

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP.)—A coincidence was blamed today for the break between the sizeable silver bloc and the administration.

As a result, the House will vote Monday on two silver bills which definitely lack Treasury support.

Some House members said Secretary Morgenthau selected the wrong day to say that a special survey showed some silver advocates were not entirely disinterested personally in the price of silver.

The Treasury Secretary's statement came just after he had talked about silver with members of the House Coinage Committee. He later issued another saying he had found no member of Congress who had bought silver.

That was not enough. Silverites took their case to Speaker Rainey, a silver man. They demanded a chance to vote on two bills. He agreed.

One measure called for Monday would let the Treasury pay a premium above the world price for silver shipped into this country in payment for exported agricultural surpluses; the other would require the Treasury to purchase up to 1,500,000,000 ounces of silver in an attempt to raise its price.

PRESIDENT WED 29 YEARS AGO IN NEW YORK

Teddy Gave Bride as Erin's Sons Staged Huge Parade

NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP.)—Twenty-nine years ago today the Franklin D. Roosevelts were married, while green flags fluttered and the sons of Ireland marched.

President Theodore Roosevelt came to New York to give the bride away and see an Irish turnout that rivaled the O'Connell parade of '74, the greatest Irish parade New York had seen.

Anna Eleanor Roosevelt had chosen St. Patrick's Day for her wedding so that her uncle, "President Teddy," could attend. Newspapers next day gave the wedding front page play. One paper called it "a Roosevelt day," and headlined, "Good St. Patrick Plays Second Fiddle for Once."

HUNDRED AT WEDDING

A house on Seventy-sixth street, the home of Mrs. Henry Parish, was the scene of the wedding. Two rooms had been thrown together and decked with green. A hundred guests saw the bride come down from the second floor on the arm of "President Teddy."

The bridegroom, then known as "Frank," and his best man, Lathrop Brown, joined her in the drawing room. The service was read before a huge shower bouquet of 450 pink roses.

Anna Eleanor Roosevelt wore a white satin gown with a small waist, a billowing skirt and a long court train. Her point lace veil had been worn by her mother and grandmother.

WEARS GIFT OF JEWELS

Her jewels were a diamond bowknot, the gift of "Frank," a pearl collarette, the gift of his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, and a diamond crescent that had been her mother's.

Alice Roosevelt, now the widow of Nicholas Longworth, whose 9-year-old daughter was flower girl at the most recent Roosevelt wedding—that of Grace Green Roosevelt, Theodore's granddaughter—was a bridesmaid.

The other bridesmaids were Ellen Delano, Helen Cutting, Muriel Robbins, Isabelle Selmes and Corinne Douglas Robinson.

'COLLATION' SERVED

A "collation" was served after the ceremony in the dining rooms, and there was a reception.

Crowds gathered in the street outside to see "President Teddy" and his wife, who was wearing a blue brocade gown and a blue hat with plumes.

Later the President spoke to the Irish from the balcony of Delmonico's, and a band played "Hail to the Chief." He wore to his niece's wedding and the city's Irish celebration black clothes, relieved, the newspapers said, "by a rather startling muffler of red, yellow and green stripes."

Mrs. Fiske was playing on Broadway, on the Roosevelt's wedding day, and the Russians were fighting the Japanese.

California will reply that if the old lady had lived in Los Angeles, she would have lived several years longer.

One hundred and seven years, according to the late Prof. Shaler, of Harvard, is close to the limit, there being no authentic case in all history of a man living beyond eleven decades, or a hundred and ten.

When you hear about a Turk, a hundred and sixty-five years old, or read of John Parr, English farm laborer, supposed to have married at 120, and died at 152, simply refuse to believe.

Men live longer now than they ever did, excepting certain instances mentioned in religious books, which must be considered reverently by all readers.

A NEGRO murderer, Herbert Youngblood, who escaped from prison with John Dillinger, in the "toy pistol jail-break" episode, is dead after being shot near the heart, with five other bullets in his abdomen. Public officers in Michigan captured him.

Youngblood, guilty of murder, knew that being arrested would mean death for him, and began firing when the sheriff appeared, wounding three, one fatally.

This sheds light on one side of the capital punishment question. Had Youngblood known that capture meant only imprisonment for life, he probably would have submitted to capture, since he faced almost certain death.

Borzage's Father, Crash Victim, Dies

LOS ANGELES, March 17.—(AP.)—Louis Borzage, father of Frank Borzage, motion picture director, died yesterday from injuries suffered in an automobile collision Thursday night. The auto in which Borzage was riding was driven by his son, Louis, Jr., who suffered a broken arm and internal injuries.

AUSTRIA GRANTS ITALY VOICE IN DECISIONS

Mussolini Throws Up Barrier to Union With Nazis

ROME, March 17.—(AP.)—Italy will help write Austrian history after today.

A three-power consultative pact under which Italy obtains possibly a decisive voice in Austria's future decisions was announced along with an economic agreement after a series of conferences participated in by Austria's Chancellor Dollfuss, Premier Goemboes, of Hungary, and Benito Mussolini.

Today, a gold pen and six gold-embossed documents lay upon Il Duce's desk in the Venezia palace—awaiting only the signatures of the three leaders.

AUSTRIA BOUND

The prime effect of the pact will be to bind Austria to confer with Italy before making any move that might betray her independence—particularly, through a union with Nazi Germany.

Both Dollfuss and Goemboes arose early today and prepared, with their staffs of economic experts, for the ceremony concluding negotiations begun Tuesday at Mussolini's invitation.

The experts will remain behind when their chiefs return to their capitals. It will be the job of the former to work out details of the economic agreement the two Premiers reached in principle.

The commercial accord lists preferential duties which it is hoped will serve as a basis for a more extensive Danubian agreement bringing in France, Germany and the Little Entente nations of Rumania, Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slavia.

Hitler Gives Conditions For Returning to League

GENEVA, March 17.—(AP.)—League of Nations leaders know pretty well today—if they haven't all along—what it will take to get German feet back beneath the green council tables of Geneva.

A hint of Germany's "conditions" for her return to the league, from which she resigned suddenly last October, was given in an arms memorandum to Paris, made public here last night.

Chancellor Adolf Hitler made plain that when the subject of disarmament is settled, the Nazis will consider returning to Geneva.

Hitler assumed a conciliatory tone in the note. He pictured himself as an apostle of peace. He asserted Germany has no thought of attempting to weaken the post-war Locarno pact. In fact, he said, she has never doubted its validity at any time.

Without actually promising to rejoin the league, the note dropped the hint that the time for a return would be "ripe" when—and if—league statutes are so modified as to make the association less one to carry out the provisions of the Versailles Treaty.

Under the Locarno pact, England and Italy are committed to aid France or Germany in the event either should be made victims of aggression along the Rhine.

Fascist Leaders Assemble in Rome

ROME, March 17.—(AP.)—Leaders in all fields of Fascist activity gathered today for the second quinquennial meeting of what Premier Mussolini calls his "general staff."

More than 4,000 military, political, industrial, labor and other celebrities are on hand for the assembly, which takes place tomorrow. Addressing the meeting, Il Duce will sum up the achievements of his government since the last assembly.

Rumania Supports Hapsburg Opposition

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 17. — (AP.) — A Foreign Office spokesman approved today Yugoslavia's blunt warning against a restoration of the Hapsburg monarchy in Austria.

The spokesman, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs Save Radulescu, was asked whether Rumania approves a recent statement by Forein Minister Jeftitch of Yugoslavia. Radulescu replied that the Little Entente policy is uniform.

Indiana Beer Law Upheld by Court

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 17.—(Universal.)—Indiana's widely-heralded beer control law, enacted in 1933 with its unique system of 10 importers and a state excise director with dictatorial powers of licensing, was held to be constitutional by the State Supreme Court yesterday.

BRAWL RESULTS IN 6 ARRESTS

Six men were arrested early today in a restaurant at 218 Sandusky street in connection with a free-for-all fight that occurred in the street outside, according to a police report.

They said they were Edwin Russell, 28, of 1209 East End avenue; Albert Murray, 44, of 106 East Erie street; Mike Slowinski, 38, of 317 East Lacock street; Kenneth Reynolds, 40, of 128 Oakwood street; Edwin L. Wallace, 29, of Perrysville avenue, and Edward McClelland, 22, of Merchant street. They were lodged in North Side Police Station on disorderly conduct charges.

Police said Russell complained at the station that four men were attempting to hold up his friend, Murray. Murray later told police the men had engaged him in a fight. He didn't identify any of the others, police said.

Brewers Seek Slash In Tax on Beer

PHILADELPHIA, March 17.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's brewers are planning to ask the State Legislature to slash the beer tax by more than one-third.

The Brewers' Association will be joined in the move by the Pennsylvania Malt Beverage Wholesalers' Association. They agreed at a meeting of the brewing industry's sixth regional board and the wholesalers' representatives yesterday that the $5 federal tax and $1.24 state tax combine to cut down consumption.

SCOTT ENTERS STATE RACE

International News Service.

PHILIPSBURG, Pa., March 17.—Senator Harry B. Scott, president pro-tem of the State Senate, today sought to become the presiding officer of that body by announcing his candidacy for the lieutenant-governor nomination on the Republican ticket.

Simultaneously with Scott's announcement, Roy H. Schreffer, also of Philipsburg, made known his candidacy to seek the senatorial seat being vacated by Scott.

Scott's action was viewed on many fronts as another step toward the final stroke which will place Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, in the field as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. The senator is exceptionally close to Republican state leaders and has participated in many conferences held by Martin in various sections of the commonwealth recently.

Ill, Goes to Prison Willingly for Cure

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., March 17.—(Universal.)—Without money to pay for medical treatment, P. T. Kelly, 60, deliberately forged two checks that he might be sent to prison and there be treated for bright's disease.

An ex-convict had told Kelly there was a good physician at the state prison. He will get two years' free treatment, for Judge Arthur Cornforth gave him that term in court.

Weather Conditions.

Two highs, one central over the Dakotas (Aaapid City, S. D., 30.62), and the other over the Carolinas (Hatteras, 30.32), are separated by a trough of low pressure with centers over Southern Wisconsin (Madison, 29.60), and over New Mexico (Santa Fe, 29.58). Rain is falling over Southern Michigan, Southern Wisconsin, Northern Illinois and Eastern Iowa, and snow in Northern Michigan, Northern and Eastern Iowa, and Kansas and Colorado this morning. The western high is causing moderately high winds in its forefront and some thunderstorms. It is warmer in the central valleys and eastward to the Atlantic coast, and much colder in the Upper Mississippi Valley, the plains, the Northern Rocky Mountains, the plateau and most of the Canadian Northwest. Temperatures are below zero in Saskatchewan, Manitoba and in Northern North Dakota.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 4.0 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 13.9; Pittsburgh, 13.9; Dam No. 4, 19.3; No. 6, 11.6; No. 10, 12.4; No. 12, 13.4. The dams are down. The rivers will continue to fall.

SIPE ASSAILS HISTORY BOOKS

Criticism of textbooks used in public schools was voiced by C. Hale Sipe, of Butler, addressing a luncheon of the Sons of American Revolution in the Chamber of Commerce. He said in part:

"Textbooks now in use in Pittsburgh schools were either intended as humorous histories or were written with a hacksaw."

Of the teaching of history of the Colonial period he said:

"If the Puritans had written their bigoted, narrow principles into the Constitution of the United States, this country would not be fit for a dog to live in."

Pennsylvania, he said, had the first school books in the colonies, the first Bibles were printed here and the state had the first scholarship.

Pair in Scottsboro Case Will Appeal

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 17.—(Universal.)—Notices of appeal were filed in the Supreme Court yesterday in behalf of Haywood Patterson and Clarence Norris, Scottsboro (Ala.) Negroes condemned to death for an attack upon two white girls.

The appeals will be placed on the docket for hearing the week of May 16.

Ex-Pittsburgher Dies in Franklin

FRANKLIN, Pa., March 17.—Frank H. Hitchcock, 52, former resident of Pittsburgh and one of the leading cabinet makers of this section, died yesterday following a brief illness. He was formerly pattern maker foreman for the Atlantic Refining Company here. His wife and three children survive.

Man Found Dead In Homewood Street

The body of an unidentified man, about 50, was found in the street at Race and Sterrett streets, early today, according to a Coroner's report. Autopsy was to be held today. A pint bottle of whisky was reported found in his pocket.

North Braddock Girl's Elopement Foiled

North Braddock police have temporarily thwarted the elopement of a 19-year-old North Braddock girl and her boy friend.

The young woman, Elizabeth Jacobs, left her home, 1726 Ridge avenue, Wednesday night with her escort, Pete Temsic, 19, of 5127 Holmes street, and did not return.

The next day Temsic told police that he had taken Miss Jacobs to a theater in East Liberty and left her at the door of her home after the show.

Police investigated and found the girl at the home of a relative in East Liberty late yesterday. She told them she was remaining there until she and Temsic had a chance to elope.

Police took her to her home where she said:

"I'm going to marry him the first chance I get."

McKees Rocks Council Row Holds Constable

A McKees Rocks constable faced a hearing on a disorderly conduct charge following his arrest last night in disorder that wound up a meeting of McKees Rocks Council, held to determine whether one of its members is a citizen of the United States.

He is George Chilcott, of the Second Ward. With him was arrested Guy Paul, 40, of Chartiers avenue. Paul was charged with carrying concealed weapons.

The trouble started when Chilcott's right to mingle with the Councilmen was challenged. One of the Councilmen invited the crowd to join with:

"Yea, come on."

The crowd did, and it was all three uniformed policemen could do to handle the situation. The crowd surged against the railing, tearing it from its supports.

The row occurred only 15 minutes after the adjourned meeting was called to order. It had been called for John Chvostal, Democratic councilman, to produce papers showing he is a citizen. He said he had the papers, but insisted that his attorney, Edward O. Tabor, speak for him. Tabor said:

"There is only one way to test his right to office and that is by quo warranto proceedings in Common Pleas Court. Council has no jurisdiction. At the right time we will show he is a citizen of 21 years standing."

Dr. P. J. Henney, the Burgess, announced later he had investigated and learned that Chvostal is a citizen.

WRECK KILLING 11 HERE LAID TO AILMENT OF ENGINEER

TRAINMAN HELD ILL OR DEAD AT THROTTLE

Coroner's Jury Brings Verdict of Accidental Deaths in Crash

The three-day Coroner's inquest into the wreck of the Akron Flyer had ended today, and the loss of 11 lives was blamed by the Coroner's jury on the illness or death of the locomotive's engineer.

The jury deliberated two hours, and held the deaths were accidental on the grounds that W. M. Shaw was either ill or dead when his speeding locomotive toppled into Merchant street from a curve on the tracks.

BLAME EXCESSIVE SPEED

The way the jury put it was:

"Excessive speed on curve west of what is known as 'Clark's Switch' after the engineman had become incapacitated."

The jury recommended that agencies having jurisdiction expedite the development and installation of safety equipment to prevent similar accidents.

But the jury had been told by Pennsylvania Railroad witnesses that satisfactory devices for retarding or stopping trains running too fast at limited speed points had not yet been developed.

TRAINMEN TESTIFY

The closing hours of the inquest was marked by the testimony of trainmen who had been in hospitals when the Interstate Commerce Commission held its hearing. They agreed the train was speeding when it passed Pennsylvania avenue, that its whistle was not blown when it came into the city area, and that they hadn't heard the brakes applied.

Other passengers and trainmen had testified the train had to back up two lengths after it had run past the Youngstown station.

PARROT FEVER BLAMED FOR 2ND DEATH

U. S. Launches Probe Of Shipment of Birds Here

The second authenticated death from psittacosis (parrot fever) was reported to the Bureau of Vital Statistics today as an investigation was launched from the United States Public Health Service into the shipment of parrots and parrakeets suspected of bringing the disease to Pittsburgh from California.

The latest recorded victim is Felix Wiseman, of Moon Township, who died in Passavant Hospital March 5. That psittacosis caused his death was affirmed in the report of an autopsy by Dr. R. C. Hamilton, pathologist at Passavant Hospital.

DIAGNOSIS CHANGED

Mr. Wiseman had been employed as merchandise manager at McCrtery's. His death had previously been diagnosed andn reported as due to acute bronchial pneumonia.

The Public Health Service probe was launched by Dr. L. F. Badger, ftdtral psittacosis specialist, who spent yesterday here making a study of the disease.

Dr. Badger accumulated data on the shipment from which it will be determined if an irregularity occurred in the granting of a health certificate for the shipment of 130 birds. Two certificates, issued in Inglewood, one for 72 birds and the other for 58 birds, bore different dates, it was charged. One certificate was received here after the arrival of the birds.

'SITUATION IN HAND'

The federal health official expressed himself as "satisfied the situation is well in hand" before leaving Pittsburgh last night. He declared:

"The Pittsburgh health authorities have done everything possible to guard against spread of the disease."

Dr. Badger spent the day in City Health Director, and Dr. Philip E. Marks, head of the Bureau of Infectious Diseases. He visited McCreery's store, where one death of the 10 suspected here has been authenticated as psittacosis.

PET SHOP ELIMINATED

Following his visit, the health department issued this statement:

"Since the statement yesterday from Mr. Jansing, of McCreery's store, regarding the case reported, it was deemed advisable to make an inspection of that store. Drs. Badger and Moyer found that the store had eliminated its pet shop about two weeks ago and all birds were destroyed.

"The store was thoroughly cleaned and those portions where the pets had been were newly painted. They feel justified in saying that there should be no danger of this being a source of infection of the disease. Most all cases of psittacosis are found to have history of the patient having had contact with the birds.

"The City Health Department has been trying to follow up all birds that were contacted with the one bird known to have had psittacosis; also checking up on all birds shipped into Pittsburgh recently. They are also disposed to keep all the birds in the city pet shops under quarantine and observation for some time."

TREATED FOR FEVER

Of the 50 sick persons under observation here, it was revealed by the Health Department yesterday that Mrs. Jewel Wuellette, 30, of 2314 Columbia avenue, Swissvale, is being treated for the dread parrot disease. She is employed at McCreery's.

The Swissvale Board of Health posted a sign on the Wuellette home, warning of a "contagious disease." Dr. W. L. Cunningham, of Swissvale, is the attending physician.

The shipment suspected of bringing the disease to Pittsburgh, it was revealed yesterday by the City Health Department, went in its entirety to one bird shop.

Lindy: A Senate Witness

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as the candid camera watched him on the witness stand before the U. S. Senate Committee investigating air mail contracts. The colonel criticized the governmental action in canceling the air mail contracts without trial.

CANCELLATION "WITHOUT HEARING . . . . . VIOLATED FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS"

CANCELLATION "UN-AMERICAN" . . "UNJUST" . . "CONTRARY TO AMERICAN LIBERTY"

AIR MAIL LINE RESTORATION URGED

also would be charged with arbitrating pilots' pay.

Rickenbacker told the committee:

"With the increased poundage which will be developed under these changes and rates of postage, I am convinced from studies which I have made that not only would all air lines which operated on February 19, 1934, be able to exist without subsidy within a relatively few years, new routes might be added to the network of air lines which existed at that date."

The Postoffice Department, he added, would receive more from stamp sales than it would have to pay air operators.

Rickenbacker urged that no legislation be considered which might tend to place commercial aviation under the same governmental control body as military aviation.

After Lindbergh yesterday conducted probably the longest period of public speaking of his career, during which he declared that the original cancellation of contracts "violated fundamental American rights," Chamberlin took the stand.

Among other things he amplified a previous statement that two aviation concerns operated ships which, in his opinion, were not the best for passenger flying. He named them as Eastern Air Transport and United Air Lines, but added quickly that the ships had been replaced.

AGREES WITH LINDY

Chamberlin agreed with Lindbergh that the section which would bar the companies whose contracts were scrapped from new awards if they pressed claims against the government should be removed from the bill.

It was this provision which Lindbergh termed "as contrary to American liberty as anything I have ever seen."

Elimination of this section is regarded by postoffice committee members as a certainty.

Lindbergh also said he felt the cancellation of the contracts "without permitting the companies a hearing violated fundamental American rights."

Chamberlain, however, told Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin:

"There seems to have been some reason for doing it, but if it was enough I am not prepared to say."

Lindbergh was non-committal on the section of the proposed measure which would bar companies carrying the mail from affiliation with aviation manufacturing concerns—in fact, he found little, or nothing, to commend the bill.

ALLIANCES OPPOSED

But Chamberlain said ships he thought were "not suitable for passenger work" were built by affiliates of Eastern Air Transport and United and that it was desirable "to divorce the air lines from manufacturing companies."

His testimony about the passenger planes was given reluctantly and only after Senator McGill (Dem.), of Kansas, questioned him about an interview which appeared in a New York paper in which he made similar statements.

Chamberlain said he thought the army fatalities were due to unsuitable equipment, bad weather and lack of time in which to prepare for the job.

Army Air Mail Resumption Due, Foulois Indicates

CHICAGO, March 17.—(INS.)—After inspecting Eastern Zone and Central Zone facilities Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the Army Air Corps, today indicated he would recommend immediate resumption of the Army's curtailed mail flying schedule.

Gen. Foulois said:

"The Eastern Zone and the Central Zone appear to be in good shape. I believe that the mail routes will be flown again as soon as I can make my report to the War Department."

Gen. Foulois conferred at length with three commandants directly in charge of the air mail flying. They were Lieut. Col. Horace Hickman, commandant of the Central Zone; Col. H. H. Arnold, head of the Western Zone, and Maj. B. Q. Jones, commander of the Eastern Zone.

The Air Corps commander planned to make an inspection trip to St. Louis and to Atlanta, Ga., late today.

DOCTOR KILLING NEARS JURY

READING, Pa., March 17. — (AP.) — Nine men and three women, the jurors who must decide whether silent Frances Sepse is guilty of murder in the shooting of Dr. Paul Hess, are expected to be given the case today.

Rebuttal testimony was completed late yesterday. Both state and defense attorneys indicated their summations would require comparitively little time.

District Attorney John P. Wanner calls the 27-year-old former patient of the doctor a "cold-blooded" killer; Jonathan P. Batdorf and Charles W. Matten, defense counsel, insist she was temporarily insane the night of January 8, when Dr. Hess was pursued from his automobile to his office door and fatally wounded by one of five bullets which a woman fired at him.

DOUG, ROXY VIE ON 'RADIO CITY'

Universal Service.

LONDON, March 17.—Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and S. L. (Roxy) Rothafel, who were negotiating on a project for a "radio city" in London, have given up their association and have become competitors, it was learned today.

Conferences held by Fairbanks and Rothafel with Sir Malcolm MacAlpine, famous London construction expert, resulted in Roxy's withdrawing from the project and his announcement that he will build his own theater.

Roxy, whose connection with Rockefeller Center in New York recently was terminated, is now trying to interest London financiers in his project, while Fairbanks and MacAlpine are going ahead together.

Doug, who expects to receive word from Mary Pickford regarding plans for a reconciliation, is remaining in the background on the theater idea, but is closely associated with MacAlpine, Universal Service was informed.

Youth Hurt as Car Strikes Pole, Porch

Raymond Kenny, 18, of 1728 Howard street, was injured seriously when an automobile that police said he admitted he stole hit a pole and damaged a porch at 223 Fortieth street today. He was taken to West Penn Hospital, where it was said his skull may be fractured.

Police said the car is owned by Ella L. Daugherty, of 122 Schoonmaker avenue, Monessen, Pa., and that Kenny told them he took it while it was parked in Grant street.

Travel and College Now in Sight for East End Miss

A new brightness — $15,000 worth—illuminates a modest little flat behind a meat market at 6492 Frankstown avenue today.

And no wonder—Dorothy Rees, 13-year-old Westinghouse Junior High School student, has been awarded a $10,000 judgment against the Cochran Chevrolet Company for automobile accident injuries received in 1929.

What's more, her widowed mother, Mrs. Emily Rees, a maid at the Leech Farm Hospital, was awarded $5,000 in her joint suit yesterday.

Dorothy is "just too excited," but managed a few dreams that may now come true.

But, first of all, she will have you understand that she isn't going "to run through this money." No, sir, she's going to leave it in the bank until she's 21.

But then, on the other hand, she tells you:

"I want to go to England. I don't know why, but that's in my mind.

"Then, of course, I'd like to go to college, but we'll see about that later. I'm only in the seventh grade now."

Asked if she would buy a new dress, Dorothy asked:

"Why should I? I've lots of clothes."

RACERS TRIED IN KIDNAPING

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, March 17.—Preliminary hearing of Albert A. "Babe" Stapp and Al Reinke, auto race drivers charged with the kidnaping of James Lee, Los Angeles Examiner reporter, started yesterday before Municipal Judge Joseph Chambers.

While the hearing was in progress, Louis Tomai, race driver, surrendered in an adjoining court on charges of felonious assault, growing out of the brutal beating administered to John Bennus, Examiner photographer.

Tomai's bail was set at $1,500 and he was ordered to appear for preliminary hearing March 27. Six witnesses, according to District Attorney Buron Fitts, have identified Tomai as the man who led the attack on Bennus, smashing his camera and beating him severely.

Lee and Bennus, assigned to report and photograph the funeral services of Ernie Triplett, race driver, were set upon by a gang of men. Bennus was beaten and both men were taken, by force, to the Examiner office.

PROPERTY DEAL UP AT MEETING

Prolonged discussion was expected today at the National Slovak Society convention, when Secretary J. A. Gallo, of 323 East Agnew avenue, and A. S. Rodak, treasurer, of 3605 Pary street, were to submit their reports.

The reports deal with the purchase of the Hobart street apartments which Judge Thomas M. Marshall termed an infringement of the society's by-laws, which limit the holding of property to that needed for the society's own use.

The delegates yesterday voted that the supreme president should reside in Pittsburgh, the national headquarters, and devote his entire time to the duties of the office. The delegates also authorized creation of the office of supreme attorney.

Since the convention is to continue through next week, instead of closing today as planned, it was voted to pay the delegates $3 a day toward the salary loss incurred.

2,000 KILLED BY TRIBESMEN

MOSCOW, March 17.—(AP.)—More than 2,000 persons, including members of the British consulate's staff, were reported today to have been massacred at Kashgar in Sinkiang, Chinese Turkestan, by fierce Tungan natives.

The massacre, dispatches from Tashkent said, came in a bloody battle between the rebels and the military of the recently-proclaimed "independent government."

The fighting ensued when Tungan forces swooped down upon the town and freed a garrison of Tungans which had been besieged in a fortress by troops of the independent government.

A number were slain and wounded at the British consulate when government troops drew Tungan fire by taking refuge nearby after falling back from an unsuccessful counter attack upon the Tungans.

2 Hurt as Auto Hits Parked Car, Pole

Two men were injured, early today, when their automobile sideswiped a parked car at Lincoln and Lemington avenues and then struck a pole.

Benjamin H. Worden, 24, 7322 Kelly street, alleged driver of the automobile, was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital with a lacerated forehead, eye and scalp. David Francis, 55, 7122 Campania street, riding with him, suffered leg and nose cuts. Worden was arrested on a reckless driving charge, police said.

M'Keesport Man Injured by Auto

Edward Currie, 34, of McKeesport, was in serious condition in the McKeesport Hospital today with injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile driven by Robert Rockwell, of Elizabeth, near his home last night, according to a hospital report.

30 Chickens Killed By St. Clair Weasel

There's a weasel in the old St. Clair Borough district, police decided today, when they discovered 30 of Mrs. Margaret Meiers' chickens dead in their coop.

Mrs. Meiers reported she heard an unusual cackling in her chicken yard, 531 Engstler street. Police investigated and found the dead chickens.

MAN ENDS LIFE AMID CLOCKS

The reported suicide of Andrew Wehnor, 70, of 4007 Lorigan street, Bloomfield, was being investigated by the Coroner's office today.

The body, suspended from a bedpost, was discovered by Frank Zoeller, Wehnor's brother-in-law, of 1147 Morningside avenue, when he entered the house last night, according to the Coroner's report.

In the room, Deputy Coroners James Dunlay and Roy Addlesburger found a dozen old clocks, all recording the correct time. Neighbors told the deputies that repairing clocks was the aged man's hobby.

Name of Victim Drawn in Son's Murder Trial

FRANKLIN, Pa., March 17.—(AP.)—Russell Graham, 18, comes up for trial in Venango County Court next month on a charge of beating and stabbing his father, Alonzo Graham, 66, to death in a quarrel over the family radio.

Yesterday the name of Alonzo Graham was drawn as a member of a panel from which the jury to try young Graham is to be selected.

Graham was killed a month ago after he had turned off the radio to which his son was listening.

ROUTS BANDITS WITH CLUB

Center avenue police today were searching for two armed Negroes routed by Samuel Portnoy, a huckster, of 2012 Bedford avenue, when they attempted to hold him up in the rear of his home last night.

When the pair confronted Portnoy he felled one with his fist, then ran into his garage and slammed the door, he told police.

The bandits pounded on the door. Portnoy answered their knocks with a club.

Three Negroes, one of them armed, held up Jacob Krimsky and his wife in their grocery store at 28 Overhill street last night, taking a wallet containing $55, police reported.

Thieves Loot Home In Pocono Street

Thieves broke into the home of J. H. Halloran, 1215 Pocono street, last night and escaped with unestimated loot, Halloran reported to police. Entrance was gained through a cellar door.

Stanford White's Art Collection Auctioned

NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP.)—Paintings collected by Stanford White and treasured for more than a quarter of a century by his widow were sold at auction last night.

The widow was not present and those who bid on the paintings were men and women who knew White only through reading of his death from a pistol bullet fired by Harry K. Thaw.

White's period furniture and tapestries, which he collected while a prominent architect, will be sold next week. Top price at last night's sale was paid for a painting by Jean Boldini, "Noonday Promenade," which brought $1,700.

White was slain in the summer of 1906 while dining on the roof of the old Madison Square Garden after he and Thaw quarreled over Evelyn Nesbit, actress.

Among other paintings at the auction were a group owned by Mrs. Annie D. Drake and Mrs. Helen Drake, both of Chicago. The paintings were once hung in the Drake Hotel in that city.

Famed Racer Stranded Amid Desert Beasts

CAPETOWN, South Africa, March 17. — (AP.) — Sir Malcolm Campbell, noted automobile racing driver, was rescued by his pilot yesterday after being stranded for 40 hours in a desert of Southwest Africa, his life endangered by wild animals.

Sir Malcolm, whose many risks on motor speedways never gave him a comparable thrill, said:

"I spent the most hair-raising night of my life out there."

Half way on a 250-mile flight to Walfish Bay from the Kalahari Desert, where they had been prospecting for gold, Campbell and his pilot, Fulford, were forced down by a damaged propeller.

To minimize the risk, Fulford flew alone to Luderitz for repairs and was unable to return for Campbell for nearly two days.

Finding leopard's spoors, Campbell decided to spend the night on top of a hillock. He suffered from intense cold and as he dozed suddenly heard an animal sniffing near him.

Jumping to his feet, Campbell flashed a torch into a pair of glaring eyes, scaring off the intruder. For the rest of the night he was on the alert, a variety of noises adding to his uneasiness.

Sir Malcolm had no food and little water. Added to his discomforts was worry over whether Fulford had crashed in the damaged plane.

ELSIE FERGUSON WEDS NO. 4

LONDON, March 17. — (AP.) — Elsie Ferguson, American actress, and Victor Augustus Seymour Egan, wealthy Irishman, were married at noon today in the Caxton Hall registry office.

It was the bride's fourth marriage, and Egan's second.

Only the bridegroom's son, Lieut. Rupert Egan, and a few close friends witnessed the ceremony.

The bride wore a long, tight-fitting spring beige coat and a heavy fur necklet and muff to match. She wore a large black straw hat.

Miss Ferguson said she had "left the stage for good" when they disclosed their plans to marry. She gave her age as 49.

Saloon Era Outdone, Asserts W. C. T. U. Head

Mrs. Ida B. Weiss Smith, national president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, says the old saloon has not come back, but something worse has. Children, formerly barred from saloons, now frequent drinking places without interference, contributing to the "rise of immorality," she asserts.

Mrs. Smith, here to attend the sixtieth anniversary of the Allegheny County branch of the temperance organization in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday, declared:

"Drinking has increased since repeal. Jails have had to be enlarged to accomodate the many women now arrested for drunkenness, and the number of automobile accidents due to drunken driving has risen."

The abolition of the liquor traffic, which has always been the mission of the W. C. T. U., has not been changed by repeal, its president said, adding:

"We are likely to succeed where Carrie Nation failed, because Carrie didn't have anything but a hatchet; we have the ballot."

EASTER SUNRISE SERVICE TO BE HELD ON NORTH SIDE

YOUTH GROUPS SPONSORING MEETING

Youth organizations of the churches of the North Side and the North Boroughs are sponsoring an Easter Sunrise Service to be held at 7 a. m., Easter, on Observatory Hill, Riverview Park. The Rev. James B. Ferguson will speak.

Special music has been arranged for the service, with the combined choirs of the churches and a double brass quartet taking part. In case of rain the organizations plan to meet in the Watson Presbyterian Church at Perrysville and Riverview avenues.

Members of the Presbyterian Young People's League of Pittsburgh will hold their annual rally at 8 p. m. Thursday, in the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street. Arrangements are under the direction of William Thomas, chairman. Dr. Robert Galbreath, president of Westminster College, will address the young people.

AIMEE DEBATES HERE TUESDAY

Aimee Semple McPherson, famous evangelist of the Church of the Foursquare Gospel in Los Angeles, Cal., will defend Godism in a debate with Charles Lee Smith, founder and president of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism in Carnegie Music Hall on Tuesday night.

"Sister" McPherson, who has formed such Bible school centers as "The Victors," "The Shepherds," "Soldiers of the Cross," the "Conquerors" and "Soul Winners" will take the affirmative side on the question "Is There a God?" while Mr. Smith, whose college group centers are called "Damned Souls," "God's Black Sheep," "Legion of the Damned," "Devil's Angels" and "Circle of the Godless" will take the negative.

The famous evangelist will argue for the existence of God, Genesis creation, a God-inspired Bible, the fall of man, the fact of sin, the deity of Christ, atonement through Christ, the resurrection of Christ, life after death and God as the hope of the world.

Mr. Smith will declare there is no God, will expound the evolutionary theory, call the Bible manconcocted, discuss the rise of man, say there is no sin, trace human origin from animal ancestry, call Jesus a political martyr, say the resurrection was a preposterous fraud, declare there is only oblivion after death and name religion as the opium of the people.

Volunteers to Close Remembrance Week

Special services tomorrow night will conclude the "Remembrance Week" celebration of the Volunteers of America throughout the country.

Capt. Fay Decker will speak on "The Work of the Volunteers of America in Greater Pittsburgh." A feature of the service will be an assembly sing in honor of Gen. Ballington Booth, founder of the organization.

Fall Proves Fatal To Civil War Vet

John Sheehan, 86-year-old Civil War veteran, died yesterday in West Penn Hospital. Ten months ago, in his home in Woodland road, Oakmont, his hip was fractured in a fall down the stairs. Pneumonia developed. He was a retired mining engineer. In the Civil War he served in Company B, 52nd New York Infantry. He leaves a son, Joseph Sheehan.

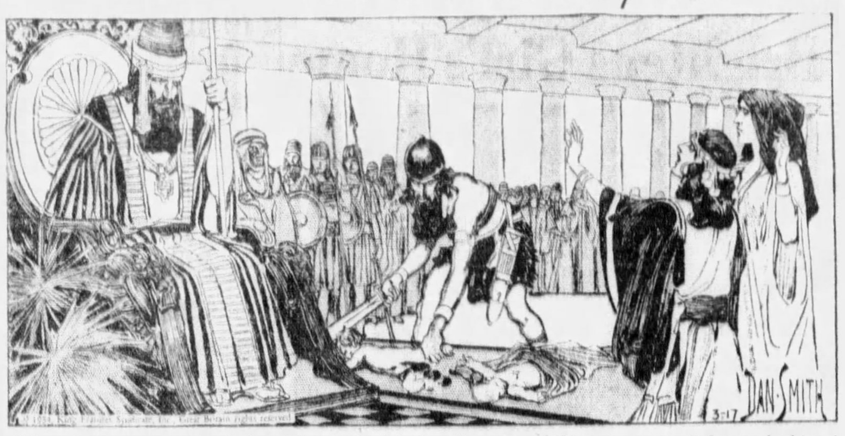
The Story of Solomon -:- CHAPTER I -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

In the beginning of his reign, his mother, Bathsheba, came to King Solomon, at the request of Adonijah, to ask that Abishag, the Shunammite, be given to Adonijah as his wife, and the King received her.

But Adonijah, who had conspired to be King instead of Solomon, was put to death. Then Solomon thrust out Abiathar from being priest unto the Lord because he had befriended Adonijah, but he spared his life.



When two women came before him, both claiming the same child as her own, Solomon in his wisdom ordered that the child be divided in two and half given to each, to try them, and when one cried out to spare the child and let the other woman have it, while the other said "Divide it," Solomon gave the child to her who cried out to save its life, for he knew she was the mother. And all Israel feared the King.

LYNN MINISTER TO CONDUCT MISSION

The Rev. Dr. William Wallace Rose, of the Universalist Church, Lynn, Mass., will conduct a preaching mission, "The Call of the Christian Life," at the East End Christian Church, South Highland and Alder streets, next week.

Lindbergh Takes Senate for Fast Non-Stop Flight

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Well, Lindy gave those Senate hangar mechanics a lesson in ground looping.

The mail contractors proved you can't lose a trick if you lead your ace.

Lindy turned out to be a great diplomat. His mind is synchronized with the propeller. And all he knows about office buildings is that he flies over them.

If each Senator listened carefully yesterday he is now entitled to a flying license. For Mr. Lindbergh wrapped 'em around his finger and never took his mittens off.

We suggest Lindy for the next ambassador to St. James. Like the anchor man on a tug-of-war team he only worries about his end of the business.

He made no preparations for

GLOBE TROTT NG

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

"If you repeat anything like that Cinderella line of March 14, take my advice and don't appear at large without a bodyguard."—Duddy.

After that kind of a note, who says this Globe Trotting business hasn't got its dangers.

* * *

The rest of the Globe Trotters are not so ready to give up as I am. They still think that spring is on its way.

Paul Corcoran sends encouragement with the news that in North Braddock on his aunt's pear tree he saw a nice old fat robin sunning himself. He also saw a bush budding.

His letter ends with the hope that I take up my weatherman career again.

Well, maybe I will. I just heard from Mrs. W. F. Carson, who, with her own eyes saw a pair of robins and "they were actually in love."

Local Highlights On WJAS Tonight

Baron Elliott's Band, hailed by many as one of the best in the district, offers another quarter-hour of "hit" tunes at 6:15.

Don't miss—Paul Gannon's songs at 6:45 and Barnyard Frolics at 7:45.

Eddie Peyton's Band plays a medley of novelty songs as the feature of the 11:30 Frivolities.

May Limit Musicians' Work

By AIRCASTER

A radical change in dance music via radio is portended by a movement within the musical union which seeks to restrict the number of times per week a dance band may broadcast commercially.

The plan also would prohibit any instrumentalist from playing in more than one commercially employed band, thus banishing the current practice of favored cliques who rush from one studio to another and monopolize radio jobs.

* * *

The Sunday symphonies paid for by the big motors corporation in behalf of their finest car, will have real competition shortly if a rival company confirms the audition held yesterday by Walter Damrosch and a 100-piece orchestra, with John B. Kennedy as commentator.

The prospective sponsor would favor music by living composers, preferably American.

* * *

SOMERSAULTS

Frank Black, of NBC, started a nation-wide controversy when he decreed that his orchestra must stand while broadcasting to insure better tone.

Mark Warnow, of WABC, replied that a sitting band was superior.

Then it became a free-for-all fight. And to settle it, George Hall, the Columbia maestro, will occupy half an hour at midnight next Wednesday experimenting.

During one portion of the broadcast the orchestra will stand, and the singers sit; during another the musicians will sit and the singers stand.

The audience will be asked to guess who did which, and to pick the better portion of the show.

I'm all for having them turn somersaults while they play.

Gene and Glenn confirmed today their booking for a new series via NBC, starting April 2, at 6:45 p. m. and five times a week thereafter.

When daylight saving time is effective, April 29, their time will be changed to 7:15 p. m. Their hookup will be worldwide.

VALLEE ON CBS?

The National Broadcasting Company and Rudy Vallee had not made peace today and the Vallee sustaining periods, canceled last week, had not been restored. Reports along radio row indicated that CBS was offering three spots a week to Vallee.. CBS would not confirm nor deny the rumors.

BARDOLPH CASE APPEAL UP

The session of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court opening here Monday will take up the appeal of District Attorney Andrew T. Park from the action of the Superior Court in discharging Charles A. Bardolph, president of the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, after his conviction by a jury in the lower court.

Argument also will be heard on the appeal of former Alderman W. A. Means from the Superior Court decision which put election contest expenses on Means, after the lower court put a part of the costs on the City of Pittsburgh and part on Michael DeRosa, Jr.

Mark Shields Gives Political Review

A review of political events of the week is heard over WCAE at 6 this evening, when Mark Shields does his weekly broadcast.

The Globe Trotter is on the air over WCAE at 12:15 p. m., WJAS at 12:15 p. m. and WCAE-WJAS at 6:30 p. m.

Mystery Story Prize Winners and Solution

"Secret Agent X-9 Club"

Sun-Telegraph,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

I want to join the new "Secret Agent X-9 Club" for Boys and Girls. Enclosed you will find 5 cents to cover the cost of handling the badge and membership card:

SECRET AGENT X-9 SUN-TELEGRAPH

Name .....
Street and No. .....
City or Town ..... State .....

Note—This coupon, with 5 cents, can be personally brought by the applicant to the Main Office, Telegraph Square, or the Sun-Telegraph Branch Office, Market and Fifth avenue, where the badges and cards will be delivered. Out-of-town members should mail requests for membership.

The hundreds of solutions submitted for the first short prize story in the Sun-Telegraph "Secret Agent X-9" series, under the title "Woman Aboard Wanted," demonstrated that the youngsters of Pittsburgh and vicinity are mighty keen in perception.

There were but few who did not discover the trend of the end of the story—many followed the "clues" so closely that their solutions did not deviate very far from the real—or official solution. Some, of course, were better than others.

Helen King Boyer, age 14, 35 Bellcrest ... Pittsburgh, had the honor of winning the $5 p... the judges deciding that she had the most nearly correct solution.

The 20 $1 prize winners are as follows: Platon Levkanich, age 15, Box 92, Curtisville, Pa.; Helen Shimkets, 1521 Brighton road, Pittsburgh; Mary Lurie, 928 Chislett street, Pittsburgh; Mildred Linz, age 15, 1206 Sarah street, Pittsburgh; Robert E. Lancaster, aged 13, 232 Jefferson drive, Pittsburgh; Frank Clark, 1556 Barr avenue, Crafton; Rita Mae Sampson, age 16, 314 Second avenue, Carnegie; Bobby Berg, age 9, Institute Building, Mt. Pleasant, Pa.; Charles Hangartner, 604 N. Weber avenue, Dubois, Pa.; Jimmy Coulter, 170 Askren street, Uniontown, Pa.; Larry Baker, 919 School street, Coraopolis, Pa.; Charles Neil, Cokeville, Pa.; Andrew Salak, Jr., age 12, Dressler avenue, Box 76, Pittock, Pa.; Stephen Richardson, Forestville, Pa.; Andrew Volosin, 1332 Leeds avenue, Monessen, Pa.; Billy Pfleghar, 237 N. Eighteenth avenue, New Brighton, Pa.; Robert Kuntz, 207 William street, Millvale; Marian Higginson, age 13, 298 Pershing avenue, Leechburg, Pa.; Jack Kirklewski, Box 352, Vandergrift, Pa., and J. K. Beitel, 645 Maple lane, Sewickley.

The third serial story in the series will start in the Sun-Telegraph next Monday and, as usual, $25 will be awarded in cash prizes for the best solutions.

The official solution in the "Woman Aboard Wanted," mystery story follows:

Each installment contained a hidden clue

1—The "boy" buttoned his coat right side over left, as a woman and not a man does.

2—The "boy" threw crackers into the sea using his right hand with his right foot extended. This is the way women throw, not men.

3—No man would put his money in his jacket breast pocket. This clue and preceding ones prove that the "boy" is a woman masquerading as a man, and undoubtedly the sought "Queenie" Adamson.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative, safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

THROAT RAW?

FIVE minutes after you rub on soothing, warming Musterole, a raw, burning throat should feel much easier and free of irritation! Relief generally follows, if the application is continued once an hour for five hours.

Musterole gets such marvelous results because it's NOT just a salve. It's a "counter irritant"—easing, warming, stimulating and penetrating quick and helpful in drawing out pain and infection.

Used by millions for 25 years, Musterole is pure, clean, safe and easy to use. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.

Phantom Poisoner BAFFLES POLICE!

Prowling Fiend Squirts Deadly Gas at Night as Victims Sleep —and Leaves No Clues Behind!

ALMOST every extra cold and dark night, this winter, a phantom gasser has been spreading terror among occupants of isolated farmhouses in a community in Virginia. The prowling sneak seems to prefer the homes of families in which there are young children.

Fiend Sprays Sickly-Sweet Fumes!

So far, the culprit has performed his diabolical tricks so skillfully that police have had no success in solving the mystery. But they have found it unusually exciting, as revealed in an article in next Sunday's American Weekly.

Patricia Pitt

This evening will bring one of the most attractive weddings in weeks—that of Virginia Emogene Lee, daughter of the James E. Lees, of Hagerstown, Md., and Robert Coyle III, son of the junior Robert Joseph Coyles, of Beacon street.

And the ceremony will take place here in Pittsburgh—in the Coyle home at 7:30 o'clock. The Rev. Marshall E. Muir, pastor of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church, will officiate.

Former Pitt Girl Will Marry

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Thompson, of Letsche street, North Side, of the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Helen Elizabeth Thompson, to Samuel H. Oswald, Jr., of Erie, Pa., son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Oswald, of Butler, Pa.

Miss Thompson was graduated from the H. C. Frick Training School for Teachers, and attended the University of Pittsburgh. Her fiance is a graduate of the Pittsburgh College of Pharmacy, University of Pittsburgh, and is a member of the Kappa Psi fraternity.

The wedding will be an event of late April.

G. B. Shieldses Mark Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Shields, of Ramsey avenue, Wilkinsburg, are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary this evening at a family dinner in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel. A reception for 500 is to be held from 8 until 11 o'clock.

Mrs. H. C. Kahny, Mrs. Zilla Fleming and Mrs. W. H. Shields are to pour, and aides will be Miss Sally McBain, a granddaughter, and six nieces, Miss Ida Shields, Miss Lucile and Miss Mildred Fleming, Mrs. T. C. Hoyt, Jr., Mrs. H. R. Robinson and Mrs. C. L. Arnold.

St. Mary's High School Alumnae to Give Tea

The alumnae of St. Mary's High School will celebrate St. Patrick's Day with a tea tomorrow afternoon in the high school auditorium.

Miss Pauline Klefker and Miss Marion Daley will preside at the tea table, their aides including Mrs. Eleanor M. Schano and Miss Lillian Klefker, Miss May McGuire, Miss Catherine Savage, Miss Henrietta Miller, Miss Helen McFarland, Miss Helen Kuntz and Miss Margaret Cassidy.

Musical interpretations will be given by Miss Irene Daley, pianist, and Miss Genevieve McCall, newly elected president, will speak.

Leona Davis Engaged To Michael A. Gross

Mrs. Goldie Davis, of Severn street, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Leona Davis, to Michael A. Gross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gross, of Pitcock street.

Junior Patrol

One of the letters in the Mail Box today was full of some good jokes, fellows!

It's from William Rush, of 1025 Rue Grande Vue street, Pittsburgh, who is the captain of the Up and Doing Junior Patrol. Now here are some of his jokes:

"If you are a good boy today, Jimmy, I'll give you this nice bright, shiny penny."

"Aw, pa, couldn't you make it a dirty old battered-up quarter instead?"

Seems to us that Jimmy has learned the value of money—clean or otherwise!

Now here is another.

Customer: "I can't sleep at night—the least little sound disturbs me. I'm a victim of insomnia. Even a cat on our back fence disturbs me beyond words."

"Druggist: "This powder will be effective."

Customer: "When do I take it?"

Druggist: "You don't. Give it to the cat in milk."

Well, we don't like cats who howl on back fences, either! Now here is one that just goes to show how mean some people can be!

"I don't think the gentleman next door knows much about music."

"Why?"

"Well, he told me this morning to cut my drum open and see what was inside it."

Which we all know didn't do the drum any good at all! The kid with the drum shouldn't take bad advice from strangers!

* * *

Irene Dopfeld, of 4828 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh, is a new member today. She goes to Friendship School.

This letter is from Florence Fahe, of 350 A Irby street, Hays, Pa. She writes:

"I would like to have a club out here, but there is no place to hold a meeting. Your program and comic strip are fun to read and to listen to. I like your secret code. In schools we have a citizenship club. I do my best to help all I can. I am on the bulletin committee. We have our club every Friday. Do you always get the letters that boys and girls write in Mail Box? Do you ever have plays?"

We do whenever we can, Florence. Sometimes we give plays on the radio.

The charming young bride will wear a lustrous gown of white—one of those soft new materials, neither crepe nor satin—fashioned with a brief train. And she'll carry gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor and only attendant will be Mathilda Bikle, of Hagerstown, Md., who will wear tea rose crepe, and carry tea roses. Richard Hartje will be best man. After a reception the bride and bridegroom will leave for the east. And later they'll be at home in Hershey, Pa.

Wedding Guests From Hagerstown

The bride's parents and her sister and brother-in-law, the Stanley D. Owingses, with their little son, James Lee Owings, and small daughter, Mary Lee Owings, head the list of Hagerstown, Md., guests at the wedding.

Tonight Mrs. Frank E. Willson will give a dinner honoring the bride and bridegroom, and last night the Harvey N. Daulers entertained at dinner Mrs. William McCune, of Bartlett street, and her daughters, Helen and Dorothy, entertained for the bride this past week.

Women Form to Study Theatrical Problems

A group of women attending a tea Mrs. Chester B. Story gave recently for experimental theater members became so interested in things theatrical that they have formed to make a study of such theatrical problems as stage make-up and similar topics.

Many of the women in the new group have long been interested in Little Theater affairs, such as Miss Sophie Keenan. She and her sister, Mrs. Sarah C. Pettit, have a little theater in their own home, where they often produce their own and their friends' plays.

Miss Keenan, Mrs. Norman B. McClintock and Mrs. Victor Menalgia are on the committee, and so is Mrs. L. R. Titsworth, formerly of New York, Mrs. William McKay, art instructor, and Mrs. E. A. Jack.

Mrs. Chester B. Story Chairman of Styling

Among the many others are Mrs. Chester B. Story, chairman of stage styling; Mrs. George Fairley, chairmen of creative designing; Mrs. Phineas Buchbinder, art; Miss Lauramae Hamilton, secretary.

The first "event" of the new unit will be an illustrated lecture on make-up for the stage at the Theater headquarters, South Aiken avenue, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. And anyone interested in stage affairs may attend.

Irish Cabaret Frolic Attracting Smart Set

This afternoon many a member of the smart set, particularly if she is a member of the Woman's City Club, will forget Lent for a few hours to attend the City Club's Irish cabaret to be held this afternoon in the Chatterbox, William Penn Hotel.

The Junior Samuel W. McClementses are paying a visit to New York. They have been stopping at the St. Regis Hotel there.

Uxority, Unity Club's Party Tonight

The annual evening party of the Pittsburgh educators' clubs, Uxority and Unity, will take place in the Frick Training School this evening. A minstrel show will be given by the Unity Club and the Uxority Club will entertain with a supper and dancing and cards.

Mrs. R. J. Hartwick is general chairman of the program, Mrs. W. H. Deming, chairman of supper; Mrs. L. L. Statler, of reservations; Mrs. W. E. Winner, reception; Mrs. Henry Browne, dancing; Mrs. Charles A. Gorgas, cards, and Mrs. John T. Loeber, publicity.

The annual benefit card party for the club's philanthropic work will be held in the Penn-Lincoln on Saturday afternoon, April 7.

Dr. Avinoff to Introduce Russian Program for Woman's City Club

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Several especially interesting features will mark the Russian program, arranged by Mrs. Florence Gretton Eckhardt, for the Woman's City Club's musical luncheon on Wednesday. Dr. Andrey Avinoff will introduce the program, a fact which in itself lends more than ordinary interest to the occasion.

Another particularly worthwhile feature will be a talk on the development of Russian music which Mrs. Samuel Kliachko is to give. Mme. Suzanne Karpova, will direct a program of Russian dances, a doll dance, peasant dance, mazurka and valse, in which Jania Howath, Mrs. H. C. Heil, Josephine Cadman, Dorothy Flohr, Lucille Heil, Jack Wooley and Margaret Loeffler will participate.

Miss Greta Arnold will be at the piano for the dances. With Miss Margery Meyer accompanying, Mrs. Sana Mouromtzeff will contribute a group of numbers representative of the more serious type of Russian music. Completing the program will be Mrs. Lulu Wing, in a group of folk songs, Miss Hulda Lebridge accompanying. The program, which is to be given in the Urban room of the William Penn Hotel, will follow luncheon in the club dining room.

For tomorrow afternoon's musical tea, a group of younger members of the club are to serve as aides, among them being Miss Eleanor Riesmeyer, Miss Dorothy Phillips, Miss Margaret Vance, Miss Gladys Norton and Miss Elizabeth Welker. Mrs. D. J. Kennedy and Mrs. Alvan W. Sherrill will be at the tea table.

The Women's Guild of the Third United Presbyterian Church will have a tea on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. S. Dennis, Denniston avenue. Miss Helen M. Blair will speak on "Birds," and Attorney Dale T. Lias will discuss "The Sales Tax."

Mrs. T. W. Kalmeyer, of New Kensington, will offer songs, accompanied by Mrs. Blanche Harper Wolff, who will also do piano numbers. Hostesses besides Mrs. Dennis are Mrs. H. Q. Turner, Mrs. S. C. Todd, Mrs. E. R. Williams and Miss Elizabeth McClure.

St. Patrick's Day Dance At Wildwood Tonight

Fred C. Heinz is chairman of a committee planning the St. Patrick's dance to be held in the Wildwood Country Club tonight from 9 until 1 o'clock.

W. C. T. U. Head Lays Repeal To Avarice

It was avarice, not appetite that brought about repeal of prohibition, Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, national president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, said yesterday when she was here for the luncheon of nearly 500 covers given at the Fort Pitt Hotel by the Allegheny County Union.

Speaking at the luncheon on "Signs of the Times," Mrs. Smith said prohibition and the liquor traffic are but one of the problems of the day, but the only one which touches all others. She went on to link it with the problems of taxation, unemployment and disarmament, declaring that people have no conception of how they have been deceived into repeal by the monied interests. The taxes that repeal automatically cancels are those which will benefit the rich, she said.

A musical program was given at the luncheon by Mrs. Helen Hunt Allen, violin, with Miss Grace McMillan at the piano, and J. DeWitt Beattie, who sang, accompanied by Miss Burnett Thompson.

Among the special guests in attendance were Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, president of the New York State Union and vice president of the national organization; Dr. Ella George, former state president; Mrs. Emma Porter, Washington County head, and several of the original members of the hostess union, who participated in the "Crusade" 60 years ago, Mrs. H. B. Littell, Allegheny County president, presided.

Van Westerhout.
Minuetto.
Serenata.
Preludi (from Pergolesi's Stabat Mater).
Wolf-Ferrari Op. 8.
Chamber Symphony.

Mr. Lissfelt

The Pittsburgh String Symphony Ensemble with Oscar Del Bianco conducting gave its fourth concert of the season in Carnegie Music Hall last night. This music draws the largest audience for chamber music during the winter, which is quite a compliment to these players and their leader.

If there is any organization which has made rapid strides towards perfection in ensemble playing and toward the niceties of chamber music playing it is certainly Del Bianco's group. We have watched them grow year after year, and last night's performance of the Mozart Divertimento (especially the adagio) and the preludio to Pergolesi's "Stabat Mater" marked the high spot of their history.

The program was far too long. An hour and a quarter is sufficient and leaves an untried audience in the best of spirits. Last night the beautiful Wolf-Ferrari Symphony arrived too late to allow us fully to enjoy his delicious melodies. The next and last program is to be made of request numbers and the public is asked to send suggestions.

Spring Fruit Salad
Roquefort Cheese Cakes
Strawberry Ice Meringues
Tea with Lemon and Clove Wheels

You don't know how to prepare some of the dishes? Don't let that worry you. Miss Penny will give you any recipes you may want. A letter or a phone call to Grant 6500 will get you an immediate response.

Send in your menu suggestions together with your recipes to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. One $5 prize, ten $1 prizes to the best recipes received are the daily awards. No recipes will be returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

[illegible] ICE CREAM

[illegible]
One-half teaspoon nutmeg.
Heat the above ingredients, stirring constantly, to lukewarm temperature. Remove from fire.
Add to above one milk gelatin dissolved in one tablespoon cold water. Stir quickly and pour into freezing tray. Allow to freeze until firm but not solid. Remove to ice cold bowl and beat with electric or rotary beater. Return to tray.
Fold into above mixture one cup evaporated milk, whipped, and allow to freeze until solid.
The cold control need not be increased, unless necessary, to hasten process. This ice cream will be creamy, and cannot be detected from hand-turned home made ice cream if the first beating is quickly and thoroughly done. Care must be taken to allow none to melt for this will freeze into crystals again!

Ten $1 Prize Winners

MRS. BYRON BLACKFORD,
718 Sixteenth street, Ambridge, Pa.
CHOW MEIN

One pound round steak, ground.
One-half pound veal, ground.
One large head celery.
Three large onions.
One-half pound mushrooms or one can.
One can bean sprouts.
Four tablespoons of Chinese sauce.
One can dry noodles (La Choy).
Do not use salt because sauce is salty a little pepper, if desired. Fry the meat until brown. Use deep frying pan; add your onions and celery cut fine; next add the mushrooms, cut fine. If fresh mushrooms are used fry in butter for a few seconds. Add the bean sprouts and Chinese sauce, a good Chinese brown sauce can be used also. Now let this simmer for one hour, watching closely so it doesn't burn. Cover. Now put dry noodles in a pan of boiling water. Just drop the can in the water for five minutes. This makes the noodles nice and crisp. If put on large platter put a few noodles on bottom of dish, then the Chow Mein. Cover with remaining noodles. Makes a very good luncheon dish with a crisp salad served.

MRS. JAMES HUNT,
700 Herschel street.
PICKLED CRAB APPLES

Six pounds fruit.
Three pounds sugar.
One pint vinegar and water mixed, half vinegar and half water.
One heaping teaspoon cloves.
Two heaping teaspoons cinnamon.
Put spices in a bag and add to the vinegar, water and sugar. Bring to a boil, add fruit and cook until tender. Place fruit in stone jar, cover with the syrup and put spice bag on top and cover.

LEAH F. MATTHEWS,
221 Stratford avenue.
TARTS

Line muffin tins with pastry dough and fill with following, combined:
One cup sugar.
One-half cup butter.
Two eggs. (Beaten)
One cup seedless raisins.
One cup walnuts.
One-half cup cream.
Bake in moderate oven (about 350 degrees) until crusty on top. Makes one dozen tarts.

RUTH M'INTYRE,
1256 Graham avenue, Monessen.
ROMA CONNOCHI

One-quarter cup butter.
One-quarter cup flour.
One-quarter cup cornstarch.
Two cups milk.
Two egg yolks.
Three-quarter cup grated cheese.
Salt to season.
Melt the butter. Cook the cornstarch thoroughly and then add the flour and butter. Add the milk gradually. Cook three minutes, stirring constantly. Add the egg yolks and one-half cup grated cheese. Pour in a well buttered shallow pan and cool. Cut into squares. Place on platter a little distance apart. Sprinkle with remaining cheese and brown in oven. Calculated cost, 17 cents.

MRS. BETTY DRUMM,
2812 Brecker street.
HONEY KISS-ME-QUICKS

Four tablespoons strained honey.
Two cups granulated sugar.
Two tablespoons water.
One cup chopped English walnuts.
One teaspoon each rose and orange extract.
Small pinch of salt.
Cook honey, sugar, water and salt to soft ball. Take from fire, add nuts and flavoring, beat until creamy. Turn into buttered tin and mark into squares.

MRS. J. G. SANDUSKY,
34 E. Prospect avenue, Ingram.
CABBAGE AU GRATIN

Chop one head of cabbage fine and let crisp in cold water. Drop in boiling salted water and cook eight minutes. Make a medium white sauce, using two tablespoons butter and flour each for one cup milk and four tablespoons grated cheese, salt and pepper. When thick add the yolks of two hard cooked eggs chopped fine. Arrange cabbage, chopped egg whites and cream sauce in layers in a buttered casserole and cover with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in moderate oven about 30 minutes.

MRS. DAVID G. HOOD,
1705 Potomac avenue, Dormont.
TEXAS SHORT CAKE

One-half cup sugar.
One scant cup of butter creamed together.
One egg.
One-half cup of water.

$5 Prize Awarded For Ice Cream Recipe

One teaspoon baking powder.
Three cups of flour.
Mix in order. Bake in flat pan or muffin pans. Split and serve with crushed strawberries or other fruit and top with whipped cream.

MRS. CHARLES A. WEBER,
1527 Berkshire avenue, Brookline.
ROUND STEAK SANDWICHES

One pound round steak, lean.
Three medium sized onions.
Two lettuce leaves.
Small bottle sweet pickles.
One-half green pepper, if desired.
Cut steak in pieces and put into hot skillet without fat and fry through, but not brown, then while hot put through grinder, grind onions, lettuce, pickles and pepper and combine with meat, then mix with mayonnaise dressing to consistency to spread and season to taste.
This may be prepared early in morning, put in covered dish in cool place, but do not mix with mayonnaise until ready to use.

MISS JOSEPHINE CASEY,
132 Card avenue, Wilmerding.
TARTARE SAUCE

One cup mayonnaise.
One teaspoon finely chopped capers.
One teaspoon finely chopped olives.
One teaspoon finely chopped green cucumber pickles.
One teaspoon finely chopped parsley.
Mix the last four together and press dry in a cloth. Add gradually to the mayonnaise.

MRS. A. BARNUM
7502 Ormond street, Swissvale.
SARDINE AND EGG SALAD

Skin and bone a dozen sardines and put them in a mortar, remove the shells from an equal number of hardboiled eggs and cut them in halves crosswise, so as to form cups with pointed edges. Put the yolks into the mortar with the sardines. Add a tablespoon of chopped parsley, a dash of pepper and salt, and work to a smooth paste, moisten with salad dressing and season to taste with salt and pepper. Cut a thin slice from the ends of the egg cups that they may be set upright on the serving dish and fill with the mixture, making it round on the top like a whole yolk. Arrange these on a bed of shredded lettuce and sprinkle plentifully with French dressing.

M'NAIR INSISTS ON CHANGE IN SALARY BILL

An effort will be made in City Council to amend the salary bill and meet objections made by Mayor McNair and the Civil Service Commission.

The clause to which the Mayor objected is one which the Civil Service Commission recently said would completely abrogate the Civil Service act.

It provides that where vacancies occur in the city payroll among the positions where work is staggered, the jobs shall not be filled, "except by the specific authority of Council."

Department heads interpreted this as trespassing on their executive rights and the Mayor, it is reported, threatened in cabinet meeting yesterday to veto the salary bill if it is not amended.

Council President Robert Garland attended the meeting, and it is reported he had agreed to submit a change in the bill to other members of Council. The salary bill will make but little change in the $8,400,000 city payroll.

MODEL HOUSE WORK SPEEDED

Work has been speeded on the cottage at the rear of the County Jail, a housing project referred to about City Hall as the McCready Memorial.

According to Attorney Kivie Wolfe, a member of the Mayor McNair's housing committee, it is planned to continue work tomorrow to have the house ready next week.

Council has asked for a report from the law department as to who gave permission for the erection of the model dwelling on city property. The city paid more than $100,000 for the site.

Wolfe said the construction company had received 24 orders for houses in two days because of interest in the building.

Store to Beautify Downtown Triangle

Plans to beautify the small triangle of ground at the intersections of Grant street and Sixth and Webster avenues, with the city's permission, were made today by May, Stern & Co., downtown department store.

The project is one of several gifts the company has made to the city.

These gifts include landscaping of the hillside abutting the Boulevard of the Allies, the North Side May-Stern Playground, and a totem pole in Highland Park.

Fall From Engine Kills P.R.R. Worker

ALTOONA, Pa., March 16.—(AP.)—Hurt in a fall from an engine, Frank Schmid, 44, boilerworker, died yesterday.

At work in the East Altoona roundhouse of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Schmid lost his footing and fell into the pit, receiving a fractured skull.

COSTUMES FOR HOUSE, GARDEN OR THE OPEN SPACES

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THERE IS nothing calculated to make a busy woman look more appetizing than a crisp, true-tailored cotton frock that is as trig as her best suit and as prettily colored as her best afternoon gown. Designers brought such models to a new high last summer, and there were dog days in Manhattan when the Grand Central and the Public Library looked like a country club set, so many women were dressed sensibly and becomingly in cottons of this genre.

* * *

IT WAS dotted swiss and embroidered muslin in city shades which were most popular then; it looks as if this year our favorites would be cotton colored and striped like shirtmaker's silk, with other cottons just as popular in tie silk designs. Early models already on sale have made a successful debut on Southern sports scenes; they'll be in the wardrobe to stay by the time the Northern suburbs open up for week-ends, and city dwellers hang lovingly over seedlings in their window boxes.

* * *

EVEN THE most desirable models don't run into much more than stocking and cigaret money, and the range of colors this year is just as encouraging for the budgeteer. Maroon, French blue, tobacco brown, violet, tangerine and gray are just a few of the unusual tints used in the fabric designs of these wash frocks, and seersucker, madras, sateen tie cloth and broadcloth a few of the fabrics themselves.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Although this frock is in the "mad money" price scale, it is of the high style maroon shade, striped with white. Note the stunning maroon wooden buttons, buckle and grosgain tie; also the roomy pleats and pockets.

Orange, beige and white is the subtle color scheme of this free and easy tub cotton frock. It has swell kick pleats, tricky pleats over the biceps, and a quick tie-around fastening. The stripes are decoratively handled.

Lots of midshipmite buttons, though they are made of pearl, a nautical cord belt of piratical tints, and a somewhat pea jacket cut make this sky blue linen frock something to covet.

MOTHER OF TWO BEST SPELLER AT PERRY

Mrs. Rena Thomas, mother of two children, entered the Perry High School spelling bee last night "just for the fun of it" and walked away with first honors.

Mrs. Thomas, who lives at 35 De Foe street, said:

"I had no intention of entering the contest, but I finally decided I would take part just for the fun of it. I hope I'm just as fortunate Tuesday night—the trip to Harrisburg would be very nice."

Second place went to Mrs. G. J. Wandrisco, of 59 Semicir street. The word "disappoint" decided the spelling bee.

Joseph C. Hoetzlein, of 1000 Wingate street, won the "spelldown" at Carrick High School by defeating 16 contestants. Clyde C. Cane, of 2152 Hazeldell street, was "runner-up." About 700 words were spelled.

Ross Pancoast, of 801 Millvale avenue, won the bee at Peabody High School. The alternate was H. A. Calderwood. Fifteen persons took part.

Mrs. John E. Williamson, of 31 East Elmhurst road, Greentree, won the contest there. S. C. Lampe, 918 Greentree road, was second.

Bethel Township's contest was won by Mrs. H. W. Campbell, with W. W. Hague getting second place. "Psychology" was the word that decided the bee.

Upper St. Clair Township's bee went to Mrs. Samuel E. Fife, of R. D. 2, Bridgeville. Mrs. W. J. Whitlinger, of R. D. 2, Bridgeville, won second place.

Mrs. Ruth Plowman, of Wall, won the contest at the Wall School, second place going to Mrs. Mathilda Mashione.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Mach 17.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers.

Mr. Insull was trying to get out of Greece on a boat, and Greece caught him with their navy. Well, I don't know whether we really want the old fellow as bad as we let on. I can't imagine any punishment worse than not being able to return to your own country, no matter what country it is.

Monday the House of Representatives votes on the silver question. I wonder what effect it would have made on present day affairs, if Bryan had had his way in '96. I reckon we would have been just as broke. You can't legislate intelligence and common sense into people. We was riding for the fall, would have gotten it anyhow.

Yours, WILL.

LEAGUE PROTESTS POURING IN

Patriotic Groups Are Circulating Petitions

Vigorous protests against efforts of propagandists to force this country into the League of Nations and the World Court continued to pour into the office of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph from every section of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio.

In hundreds of communities throughout the three states blank petitions were being circulated today by officers of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign War posts, patriotic societies and numerous civic and fraternal organizations.

Scores of individuals also were circulating petitions clipped from this newspaper for signatures of their friends.

J. F. Torrance, of Murraysville, sent in a petition containing 58 names. Another list of 23 names was sent in by the Pride of Wilkinsburg Council, No. 198, Junior Order of the United American Mechanics. A third came from Ellwood City bearing 123 names.

Blank petitions are available at the office of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph square; the downtown branch office at Fifth avenue and Market street, or they may be obtained by writing or telephoning to the League Court Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Get blank petitions at once. Sign them. Ask your friends and associates to sign them and see that they are forwarded at once to the League Court Editor.

RUSHMORE TEXT STIRS STUDY

Histories Searched In Quest for Nation's Epic

Captured in the swirl of enthusiasm that has been aroused by the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition, men, women and students of all ages today were searching histories in their quest for 600 words to describe America's epic.

The ranks of participants are swelling daily throughout the tri-state district as evidenced by the many inquiries for information received by the Sun-Telegraph, which with associated Hearst newspapers, is conducting the nation-wide competition.

To assist many who have not read the complete details published from time to time in the Sun-Telegraph, tomorrow's edition will carry the complete details on rules and instructions, the nine points of history as outlined by the National Memorial Commission and the list of prizes for adults and students.

Most important in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph Mount Rushmore announcements, however, will be the first installment of a helpful series of articles. Dr. Joseph Schafer, of the Wisconsin Historical Society, is the author of a series dealing with the settlement of the Oregon boundary dispute. This is one of the nine points of history that must be contained in every text submitted.

Series of Articles Start Tomorrow in Sun-Telegraph

An announcement of importance to more than 10,000 women in Allegheny County will be made. It will further indicate the realization that is gripping every person—that here is an opportunity to assist in the writing of a text that may become part of a national monument in the Black Hills of South Dakota and to exist for more than a million years.

France Does Not Want War But Is Prepared, Barthou Tells Knickerbocker

Editor's Note—Louis Barthou, 18 times a minister of France, tells H. R. Knickerbocker, in the thirtieth article of his series "Will War Come?" that "If there is one man in the world who wants peace today that man is Hitler."

"But," he adds significantly, "what his position may be in the future, no man can say."

"We do not want war," Barthou, now Minister of Foreign Affairs, tells Knickerbocker, "but if it comes we will be prepared."

PARIS, March 17.—Forty years ago, Louis Barthou walked into his office in the French Ministry of Public Works and read in Le Temps an item about himself. It called him "The youngest minister in France." He was 31.

Twenty years later Louis Barthou, Premier of France, passed a law extending the period of military service to three years. One year later the war broke out and France was grateful to Barthou.

Today Louis Barthou, 71, has become for the eighteenth time a minister of France, this time Minister of Foreign Affairs at a moment when many portents have made many observers compare 1934 with 1914.

Refuses to Predict Peace for France

No Frenchman is better qualified to appraise today the possibilities of war or peace on this continent. He was on the quarterdeck when the war storm gathered two decades ago. He is again at the diplomatic helm of France as the horizon darkens and hurricane flags are out. He refuses to predict peace.

This time when Louis Barthou, member of the French Academy, rich in honors, took an office that could mean little addition to these riches but vast addition to his burdens, he read, not in Le Temps, but in a German encyclopedia that:

"M. Barthou by his passage of the three-year military service law was one of those chiefly responsible for bringing on the war."

The minister, as he sat in the tapestried workroom of the Quai d'Orsay where his predecessors from Talleyrand to Briand have pondered the problem of the last and the next war, exclaimed:

"That is false. The three-year military law was not a provocation to war any more than our present preparations to defend ourselves are provocation to war. It was a simple measure of self-defense.

"We had learned that the Germans were vastly increasing their effectives. There was nothing left for us to do but reply by increasing ours. I have nothing to be ashamed of for my part in improving the ability of my country to defend itself when the events that afterwards transpired showed how desperately necessary the measures of defense were.

"On the contrary, I am proud of having participated in promoting a law which perhaps in the last analysis saved France from defeat."

He ruffled his pugnacious beard and gazed clear-eyed through his rimless spectacles. M. Le President Barthou is probably the smallest in stature of the six former premiers of France in Gaston Doumergue's all-star cast, but he is certainly not the least fiery.

Public Opinion Rules On Defense Measures

"But M. Le President, would it not then have been better to have passed the law earlier, say in 1912?"

"Ah no, August 1913 was when the law was passed and that was the earliest it could have been passed. In a democratic country like France, run by its Parliament, the people have to be convinced of the necessity of such a measure before they will accept it. The people would not have accepted it earlier. They would have turned out any government that tried."

The Minister did not say so, but the fact is that it is in precisely this respect that many persons of authority in France see the greatest parallel with the situation in 1913-'14. French soldiers today serve one year. The French consider it beyond dispute that the Germans are "increasing their effectives." But French public opinion is as little prepared today for an extension even to 18 months of the period of army service as French public opinion in 1912 would have been prepared for the three-year bill.

On the contrary, M. Barthou insisted that:

"I do not think the 18-month service period is yet necessary. We are prepared. We do not want war. If it comes, we are prepared."

But in another respect M. Barthou considers the similarities between 1914 and 1934 to be most menacing. Removing his glasses and putting both elbows on the desk, he said:

"Some time last year I wrote a review of the European situation for a French political weekly. In it I set forth the positive opinion that there would be no war at any rate in the year 1934. I am compelled to say I can no longer express the view I expressed in that article.

Why? What is the reason? In one word, Austria. There is the most striking analogy between the position of Austria in 1934 and the position of Serbia in 1914. Serbia at that time was menaced by the Austro-Hungarian Empire. Russia insisted that the independence of Serbia should not be violated. Out of that conflict sprang the great war.

"Today Austria is menaced in its independence by Germany. On the other side stand the great powers and the Little Entente, insisting on the maintenance of the independence of Austria. The parallel between Austria and Serbia is disturbing, one might say alarming. At any rate it makes it impossible to predict positively that there will be no war even in this year 1934."

Warning to Germany By 3 Powers Lauded

He waved his eyeglasses to warn against premature conclusions, and exclaimed:

"But nevertheless I am encouraged by one factor to believe, to cherish the hope that there will be no war also in 1934. I refer to the latest diplomatic note sent the German government in respect to the Austrian question from the governments of Great Britain, Italy and France.

"It was a short note. It had about two sentences. But in my opinion it was the most important diplomatic event in years. For it showed the solidarity of these three powers on a matter of vital importance for the peace of Europe.

"You remember that each of these powers had previously made separately individual representations to the German government stating their interest in the maintenance of Austrian independence. But this time they acted together. It is true that I have observed no positive sign from Berlin that the attitude of the German government has changed toward Austria as a consequence of this joint action. But just the same I am strongly inclined to believe that this action has made any adventurous move on the part of Germany improbable.

"Furthermore, and that is my great hope for the preservation of peace, this solidarity of Great Britain, Italy and France, shown in the Austrian question has also been shown and is being confirmed every day by the disarmament question. Let us preserve that solidarity and the question of war or peace will remain academic."

Now the little Minister straightened up in his chair and delivered his most significant remark:

"If there is one man in the world who wants peace today, it is Hitler. What his position may be in the future, when Germany's rearmament has changed the feelings of his own people, what may be the consequences of internal developments within Germany, no man can say. But today I think we have to take the word of Hitler as true: That he does not want war.

"We who have lived through the war know too much of what it means. It is not reasonable that persons who have had that experience would wish it to be repeated."

"And the Saar, M. Le President? Would it not remove one danger spot if the Saar question were to be settled by agreement between France and Germany?"

He exclaimed:

"There I agree about the explosive possibilities. Developments are possible there which could violate any prediction on the probability of peace being kept. But the position of France is plain. We have repeated it again and again. The Saar is not a Franco-German question. It is a question for all the signatories of the treaty of Versailles. The administration of the Saar, the arrangement of the plebiscite is a matter for the League and only for the League. France has no choice but to leave the Saar question to be settled as the treaty provides."

Hapsburg Restoration Question Involved

"And the Hapsburgs, M. Le President? Would France consent to a restoration of the Hapsburgs in Austria?"

The Minister cautiously replied:

"The French position is that we are simply interested in maintaining the independence of Austria. But we have our treaties with Czecho-Slovakia and Jugoslavia. Their opposition to the restoration of the Hapsburgs is very strong. We have to take them into consideration."

Summed up, the views of the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, on the basis of his observations today interpreted through the experience of 40 years of European politics are:

1—War is not probable, but possible, even in 1934.

2—Hitler does not want war now, but events may force the hands of all, no matter how strong their desire for peace.

3—Austria is the most dangerous spot in Europe; the Saar is a second.

4—Peace can only be rescued by the solidarity of France, England and Italy.

The French Minister of Foreign Affairs is neither war-scared nor peace-blind. He remarked on concluding:

"I should like to quote from an essay of Herbert Spencer when you ask me 'Will war come?' Spencer introuduced his essay with the sentence: 'Only the unforseen happens.' Since that which will happen will be unforeseen I cannot dare attempt foresee it."

SPEAK UP, SISTERS!

:-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-:

By MARION BRUNOT

A Stepmother's Tolerance Wiser Than Discipline

Raising three children who aren't your own.

And just at the troublesome age of adolescence.

That isn't an easy job for any young woman.

These three children belong to the man whom you think you love.

The man who has been paying court to you with flowers and books to your liking, and the theater.

Yet you say he is not a rich man, and will expect the woman he marries to be a housekeeper as well as a mother to his children.

It isn't the boy you dread so much. He is a nice little fellow and kindly disposed toward you. But the girls, and especially one of them, are saucy little imps. And you simply can't like them no matter how much you try.

My Dear Miss Brunot:

I have a very serious problem to settle, and must do it quickly. A widower has been coming to see me for two years, and he has asked me to marry him. If it were he, and he only, I would be his wife right away. For I like him very much, in fact I believe I love him. For he is so romantic and can do and say so many sentimental things. But he has three children ranging from 10 to 15 years. And that is my problem.

The youngest is a boy, and very lovable. Just like his father. But the two girls are very conceited and selfish. And badly trained. I was at this man's home one evening for dinner, and the one girl was positively rude to me. She sat and made faces whenever her father wasn't looking. And when I reprimanded her, she informed me I wasn't her boss, and went into a tantrum of tears.

LETTER FROM GIRL

The oldest girl didn't say much, but kept watching me as if I were poison. And now she has written me a very pert letter, and has told me plainly I can never take her mother's place. She also said I wasn't the only one in her father's affecton. That he was considering several, "the old fool." That is what she called him. I showed him the letter, and he said he would whip her. But he didn't.

What shall I do? For I would like to marry and settle down. I am 29 and have always been a home body . . . and my own nieces and nephews are so well trained. SERIOUS.

Well, Serious, you surely have, as you say, a problem. Helping other women's children to be useful grownups is a hard and often thankless job. And if you begin such a life, and in an uncompromising fashion, there isn't much ahead of you but trouble.

No woman can be a good step-mother if she hasn't made up her mind to be impersonal in her likes and dislikes of her young charges. And also she must have made the firm resolve that if possible, she will have a genuine affection for these children.

Already you dislike these girls. It may be their own mother in them which is too paramount for your digestion. You may me a man's woman. And have no deep liking for just any child, as is found in some women

I do not agree at all with your idea of asserting your authority when upon a visit to your friend's home. It was a superior and unkind attitude toward the girl. It would have been better to have laughed off the "faces." That would have put the younger girl off guard.

EVIDENCE OF SHREWDNESS

The older girl seems the one most to be feared. She showed a certain shrewdness when she observed you so closely, and then wrote a letter to you. Her trying to rouse your jealousy of a possible rival, indicated she had weighed you and found you of a jealous nature. And was playing upon it. You might have known her father would not whip her. And you should not have wanted him to do so. She is too old for that.

My advice to you is do not let your desire for a home of your own master your commonsense. This man does not offer you a home of your own. He has nothing like that to give. It will be a home well peopled, and unless you can adjust yourself tolerantly to such a situation, you are not the woman to marry him.

His obligations are already set for him. His children are at the ethical turning point of their lives. It is not up to you, a stranger, in any way to mar their rights. There is such a quality as sex jealousy in some women, and when one suffers from such, unless she can master herself, she is not a woman to take on the responsibility of other women's children.

The craving to master by discipline instead of love, should never be in any step-mother's heart.

MISS AMERICA LOOKS AT A NEW, YOUNG QUEEN

-o- -o-

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

What is it like to be a queen? Especially a YOUNG queen—"a girl like me"—pretty, and beloved by a young king as good-looking as Prince Charming himself, as adoring as the young lover-husband of every girl's dreams? To be a REAL queen! What is it like?

Memories of "Graustark," "The Prisoner of Zenda" and Stevenson's epitome of romance, "Prince Otto!" Many a young fellow would like to be a Rockefeller when he grows up; but the glamorous picture of a beautiful young QUEEN intrigues the mind of a romantic miss more than any realistic portrait of the millionairess, Hetty Green.

Most of our Sally Annes are contented to be the queen of some young brain-or-brawn worker of the U. S. A. And Sally Ann certainly can build him, even when he is of the plainest, into a replica of a king, in her own mind. But Sally cannot help toying with the shining idea—what must it be like to be a queen? Or rather, a young girl who IS a queen? With a name like a Norse Saga Princess. Wooed by the richest young prince in Europe—as a princess. Enthroned by a young king—as a queen.

Why has the new Queen Astrid (pronounce it Ah-stirrrd, please) of Belgium become such good newspaper "copy?" Why has she roused such curiosity and sentimental interest in the feminine heart? Because of her name; her youth; because she is a queen—and yet a girl so like Dorothy and Jean and Mary and Sally of Main street, Maple avenue and Hazelwood road. Or turn the last part of the sentence and its contrasts the other way 'round. A real young girl and yet a queen. And because young girls have never been cured of Romance!

Unless she has hob-nobbed about with royalty—and almost ALL of our Sallys have NOT!—there is always a distinct shock to any girl of a country with a President in remembering that a Princess of Thus or a Queen of So today wears a frock and a "bob" like hers, goes to the movies, dreams the same dreams on a moonlit pillow that Sally does, though Sally's pillows are percale and she is sure the fair royalty's are edged with ermine.

It does not matter how well our little Sally knows better than to expect bygone styles in splendor. Still the picture persists that A CROWN that glitters cannot go very well with crepe frocks, washable gloves, kid shoes with a strap, a little hat with a ribbon and a cloth coat trimmed in fox! Sally cannot get over that contrast. Hence all the fascination!

Young Astrid has a real crown. Where does she keep it when she wears her little hat, instead? Does she try it on with secret pleasure? She has a REAL castle; not a house "built like" one. If she cooks, is it tarts she makes, shaped like those of the Queen of Hearts? When she puts her arms about the neck of her beloved young husband, it is a KING she embraces and to whom she whispers the sweet nothings of a happy young wife.

Sally and her friend, Sue, wonder—what IS it like to be queen? The all-fairytale version persists—but Sally and Sue know better. They have heard that Astrid and Leopold ran away from the back-door of Fridhjem to go skiing; that he liked her salad, and lingered in the kitchen to watch her make it; that it was just delightful, romantic "boy and girl," even though their wedding was graced by the towering presence of four kings, two queens and a score or more of princes and princESSes!

My next picture will begin to tell Sally and Sue, going to the bottom of the news-gatherer's bag, what it is like to be queen, when you are Ahstrid of Belgium, young and kind and simply reared.

They will be surprised at the measure of romance in her story, as delightful as any "mythical kingdom" tale. In spite of her simplicity, it is a queenly story; and in spite of her queenly story, she has simplicity.—NELL BRINKLEY.

Contract Bridge

:-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

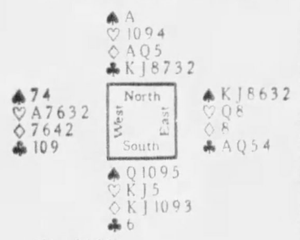
A Lucky Contract

When an advanced player is seated opposite a distinctly weaker partner whose knowledge of bidding principles is not up to his own standard, he occasionally feels forced to make many unnatural bids. The expert very often sees fit to either underbid or overbid to make up for the deficiencies of his partner, and he makes every effort within reasonable limits to steer the final contract into a declaration which will permit him to be the Declarer.

On today's hand the South player, due to his unnatural, although perhaps justifiable bidding, found himself doubled at a three-notrump contract, which, due to lucky breaks and fine play, he was able to make.

North, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♠	1 N T	2 ♡
3 ♣	Pass	3 N T	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

After the first two bids it is doubtful if any subsequent bid by any player is particularly praiseworthy. At any rate, South found himself the Declarer at the final contract of three no-trump doubled, with West opening the spade 7. Dummy's Ace won this trick, and the Declarer now played the Ace of diamonds and a low diamond, winning with the nine in his own hand and leaving the Queen as an entry either to the Dummy or to his own hand. A club was now led. West played the nine, and Dummy's Knave was captured by East's Queen. East returned the heart Queen, South naturally covering, and West stayed off with his Ace. A low heart was now led, and West won with the Ace and returned a diamond, theoretically putting the Declarer in Dummy for the last time. South now realized that he could get back to his hand with the heart Knave, but could cash only eight tricks. Having a reasonably sound count of the opposing cards by this time, he played for his only hope—that is, that West held the singleton Ten of clubs—and led the King of clubs from Dummy. East's Ace won the trick, and West was forced to drop the ten. All that East could do was to cash the spade King, setting up the Declarer's Queen; and now, whether Declarer was put in Dummy or in his own hand, he could win the rest of the tricks.

It is evident that South could have made the hand in an easier way by retaining both entries to Dummy and setting up the club suit immediately. However, South could not foresee the very lucky division which would enable him to do this and only played for this break when he was finally forced to.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Golden Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please advise me if it would be correct to celebrate one's own golden wedding anniversary, or should it be the children who celebrate? Please advise what one does in a case of this kind.

READER.

Indeed it is a beautiful thing for the husband and wife to celebrate this glorious milestone in life. Of course, the children take part in the celebration . . . they usually plan it . . . but the principals are the husband and wife.

The celebration may be of any kind. Formal or informal. Usually it is in the form of a reception, to which the couple's relatives and friends are invited. The hours for this are usually the late afternoon hours, four to seven, or it may be given in the evening, eight to eleven, say. The reception-refreshments may be very simple or they may be as elaborate as you wish to make them. If you do not wish to include many people in the celebration then it is delightful and correct to give a dinner for the few relatives and close friends you wish to invite.

Wedding Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1.—I am to be married in a few months. I am going to have two bridesmaids and one maid of honor, and I would like to know if their families should be invited to the dinner and also the families of the best man and ushers? I have no aunts or uncles here, but my fiance has three or four aunts and uncles and their families, and I would like to know if they should be invited to the dinner—in addition to his immediate family?

2.—I would also like to know if I should have the dinner before the marriage or after; some say before and others say after, and I am undecided about it.

BRIDE-TO-BE.

1.—The number of guests whom you are to invite to your wedding depends entirely on your plans and on your convenience. You may, correctly, give a dinner only to your attendants, or you may widen your list of guests to include [illegible] and relatives, as you name.

2.—Either time is correct, but customarily this dinner is given after the ceremony.

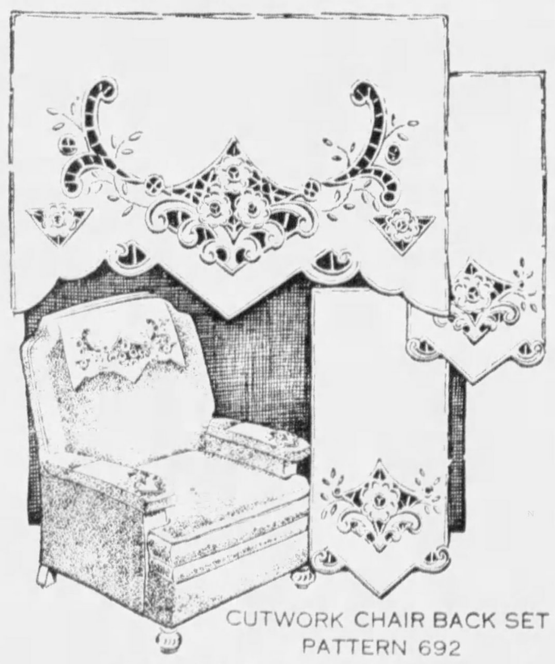
LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS



CUTWORK CHAIR BACK SET
PATTERN 692

Cutwork Is Popular Needlework

Cutwork, the most popular form of needlework, has invaded the livingroom and takes full possession of it in this lovely chair back set. And being such durable needlework and the sort that stands endless laundering, it is most practical for this use. This design is simple to do and very handsome in the finished piece. The motifs used on the arm pieces would also be very effective on towels or pillowcases. The motif for the chair back could be used on the ends of a runner, in which case two patterns would be needed, as only one of these large motifs is given in this set.

Pattern 692 contains a transfer pattern of a chair back 12x15½ inches and two arm rests 6x12 inches; complete directions for doing cutwork and making the set.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Madge Thinks of Her Talk With Lee Chow

My father steadied me with his arm, then put me into the big chair and sat down opposite me, leaning forward with both my hands tightly held in his, and his kind eyes looking at me steadily.

"No, I did not see his eyes." He answered my query concerning Lee Chow slowly. "But I know that he was trying to hypnotize you with them."

"Trying to!" I repeated with a little shudder. "He was succeeding! I had begun by refusing to hear anything he might say, but after he had looked at me with those eyes that seemed to grow first large, then small—to go far away and then come close—I found myself ready to listen. If you had not knocked on the door just as you did, I do not know what I would have let him say."

"I thought it was high time I appeared," my father said. "But tell me, now, what it was he was trying to tell you. It is very important that we—I know exactly what he was saying."

REPEATS CONVERSATION

Fortunately for me, the memory inherited from my mother, and which my friends are pleased to call uncanny, functions almost subconsciously, and despite the bewilderment — the sense of being in chaos — that had assailed me under the unwinking stare of Lee Chow's eyes, I was able to recall the things he had said.

"He was very vague," I said, "purposely so, I think. But two things stood out. One was that he wished me to go with Hugh to the beach, after—Edith had gone with Dicky—"

As my voice faltered, my father struck in.

"I saw that performance," he said grimly. "So did your mother-in-law. She was quite upset by it. Not Lee Chow's proposal. She knew nothing of that," he interposed hastily. "But Edith's words and actions. Really, however, my dear, Richard could have done nothing else under the circumstances."

"I know that," I assured him hastily, "and it did not affect me at all, save to make me annoyed at Lee Chow's interpretation of the action. He evidently thought it left me free to accept Hugh's escort, if he offered it."

"Hugh would not have offered it," my father said with quiet conviction.

"I know it," I echoed, and when I saw my father narrow his eyebrows ever so slightly, I wondered if my voice had unconsciously held a regretful note.

"Lee Chow was quite put out because I refused to promise that I would go with Hugh," I went on, and repeated exactly what the Chinese had said, including his comments upon Avis Arlen.

TELLS OF WARNING

"A yellow-haired devil," my father repeated, his lips curving into an amused smile. "Those are strong terms, but I am not so sure our sapient oriental friend is not justified in using that appellation. I have seen her like that before. Tell me, darling, will your sense of courtesy to Mr. Veritzen compel you to have her here when—"

"When Noel and Mary come back from this trip?" I interposed hastily. "Never! She shall not come into our home again at all if I can help it; but never when Noel is here."

"I think you are very wise and courageous," my father said. "But this is beside the mark. What else did Lee Chow say? So far you have told me only enough to give me the foundation of a theory. But of itself it amounts to nothing. Lee Chow is always anxious to have Hugh honored in every way. He may only have wished to have him honored with the company of the hostess of the evening."

I knew that he did not believe his own words, but I could not voice that knowledge, and I took refuge in a platitude.

"That may very probably be the explanation," I said. "But his other words were more terrifying. He professed to have certain information which he wished to give us, and when I refused to listen to it, he said that I did not know what might depend upon it; that I might be risking the very lives of my husband and children by not listening."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Serious Ills May Result From Colds

Cystitis, commonly known as inflammation of the bladder, is a common and annoying affliction. It may come from taking cold, following exposure to cold or dampness. It may be the sign of some serious disturbance in the body. No matter what the cause, it is a trouble that should never be neglected.

Dr. Copeland

Many look upon cystitis as a form of kidney disease. It is true that the bladder may become inflamed if the kidneys are diseased. But in most instances, the kidneys are not the seat of the disorder.

Neglect of any inflammation of the bladder may lead to inflammation of the kidneys. When this occurs, it is because the germs located in the bladder travel to the kidneys, where they set up irritation and inflammation.

But the most common cause of cystitis is doubtless infection from the intestinal tract. Since the bladder lies in close relationship to the intestines, it is not surprising that bacteria from the intestines may reach the bladder and lead to severe inflammation.

Like many other inflammations in the body, cystitis is often traced to some local point of infection. For example, diseased and infected teeth, and disease of the nasal sinuses and tonsils, may liberate poisons in the body which are carried to the kidneys and bladder. Infections of other organs of the body, such as the gall bladder and appendix, may be the underlying cause of cystitis.

Cystitis is not always the result of an infection. It may follow the lowered resistance that comes from overfatigue or nervousness. The drinking of large quantities of irritating fluids or the excessive consumption of spicy foods, are other factors. When the cause is removed, relief is quickly obtained.

The symptoms of cystitis are varied. The sufferer has an increased desire to empty the bladder. This symptom is most marked during the night. The effort causes pain and the discharge may be cloudy and even bloody.

The presence of blood in the discharge is an alarming sign. It gives a warning that must never be disregarded. It may be the sign of some really serious disturbance in the bladder. When the bleeding is due actually to a severe inflammation of the bladder, it quickly disappears. As the inflammation subsides, the symptoms subside.

Answers to Health Queries

A Reader. Q.—Is it possible to cure cancer without the knife? 2—What is carbon monoxide and how does it affect the system?

A.—The X-ray and radium are used in some instances, depending upon the location of the trouble. 2—Carbon monoxide is a poisonous gas found in automobile exhausts and in the leakage from gas tubing.

J. J. R. Q. — What would cause heavy, difficult breathing. I smoke excessively. What would you advise?

A.—This may be due to several causes. Have an examination so that definite advice and treatment can be outlined. Cut down on your smoking meanwhile.

Bue Recruits Doing Well ♦ Several Rich in Promise Blanton, Veltman Bright

Bender Advocates Curves Gallant Sir Tackles Jinx McMillin's Big-Time Bow

With the preliminary part of the spring training program completed, and the Pirates starting today on the series of 28 exhibition games that will lead right up to the opening of the championship season on April 17, Manager George Gibson can view developments to date with as much gratification as the head of any other camp in the major leagues. The regulars are fully up to schedule in their progress toward condition, the showing of the new material has been at least equal to that of the average crop of recruits, and there is the satisfaction of knowing that even those rookies who may not make the grade this year have displayed enough native ability to indicate that they will be good bets for the future.

George Gibson

According to reports from the front, the promise shown by the new Pirates in general is unusually high. There is Lloyd Johnson, the big left-hander, for example. It has been said that Johnson will hardly come through this spring, but that is not yet definite, and good judges in camp insist that even if he is not quite ready for major league service in 1934 he is certain to make good eventually, as he has the stuff, the physique, the nerve and the will to learn.

TRAPP PLAYING WELL UNDER HANDICAP

Elmer Trapp, Wilkinsburg infielder, is doing well under a handicap. His legs have bothered him, and the soreness is not yet out of them, but he hustles and works hard, is fielding nicely, and the management is still hopeful that his hitting will match his defensive ability. Cy Blanton, right-hand pitcher, isn't so big, but he's big enough in view of the exceptional stuff he owns, and he has poise and a certain amount of experience that augur well for his chances of being retained.

Cookie Lavagetto, at second base, also looks good, though only a kid of 19. He has powerful shoulders, and, above all, strong wrists. He fields well, drives a ball hard, and is so tickled at his opportunity that he is certain to do his best to make the most of it. Nick Etten may go back to the minors for a year, but he is pronounced a sure-fire big leaguer of the future. Catcher Art Veltman has a fine chance to stick. He is an excellent receiver and has a world of pepper, something that the Bucs can stand. All around, the Pirate recruit situation is most encouraging, so far.

BENDER SEES NO TROUBLE FOR PITCHERS

Old Chief Bender can't pitch any more, but he still knows as well as anybody in the land of the living how it ought to be done, and he assured Stoney McLinn that the livelier ball in the National League this year will not handicap any pitcher who acquires a good curve and has the courage to use it. The former mound ace says the hurler who practices until he can break a sharp curve over the plate, and control it, can throw that hook with the new ball just as well as was possible with the old one, and seldom will any batter hit a curve, thrown to his weakness, over the fence, no matter how lively the ball may be.

Chief Bender

According to Bender, any pitcher who complains that he can't curve the new apple, and make it go where he aims it, because the seams are lower and the ball jackrabbity, is only offering an alibi that is unworthy of attention. And the belief of many pitchers that frequent use of the curve will injure their arms and shorten their careers also is poppycock, the Chief asserts: if a pitcher's arm is in condition it won't be weakened a particle by throwing curves 50 per cent of the time. Bender says that in his early days, when he had a real fast ball with a hop on it, he threw three fast ones to one curve, but that from 1909 to 1914, when he was pitching in from 40 to 50 games a season, he averaged 50-50 with curves and fast balls.

TRADITION AGAINST WIN BY GALLANT SIR

Gallant Sir, the starting favorite, will have to beat tradition as well as the opposing field to win the Agua Caliente Handicap when the classic, originally the Coffroth Handicap, for 3-year-olds and up at a mile and a quarter, is run at the Agua Caliente track in Mexico tomorrow. For Gallant Sir captured the big stake in 1933, and since the first running of the race 17 years ago no winner has succeeded in repeating. No horse has ever won it twice.

The inaugural in 1917 was taken by Sasin. The race was not run during the next three years, and when it was resumed in 1921, the honors went to Be Frank. The subsequent victors were: 1922, Mulciber; 1923, Rebuke; 1924, Runstar; 1925, Atherstone; 1926, Calaris; 1927, Sir Harry; 1928, Crystal Pennant; 1929, Golden Prince; 1930, Victorian; 1931, Mike Hall; 1932, Phar Lap, and 1933, Gallant Sir.

Phar Lap might have had a chance to repeat, but the Australian "wonder horse" died suddenly soon after his victory in 1932. Gallant Sir may break the long-standing jinx tomorrow, as Norman Church's big runner is reported in top form, and it will take some fast going by a rival to beat out the west coast campaigner. In winning last year, Gallant Sir equaled the record of 2:02 3-5.

M'MILLIN IN GOOD SPOT FOR MAJOR START

By no means the least interesting feature of Big Ten football next fall will be the operations of Alvin (Bo) McMillin in his first year as head coach at Indiana University, where he has supplanted E. C. Hayes. It took McMillin a long time to get into the big-time coaching circle after the close of his colorful playing career as the field general of the sensational Praying Colonels of Charley Moran at Centre College. As a player, Bo was consistently among the country's leaders, making Walter Camp's all-America team at quarterback in 1919 and being picked for the second mythical eleven in 1920 and 1921. But he has had a hard job climbing the coaching grade.

Bo McMillin

After serving as mentor at Centenary and Geneva, the former Centre star went out to Kansas State College and he had to labor long and arduously there before any of the big schools would give him a tumble. Bo kept at it, however, and while his teams were not meteoric they did show a gradual improvement, and now at last he is to get a chance in fast gridiron company, even though it is with the tailenders of the Western Conference. The latter fact puts McMillin in a good spot for his major start, as he has no high standards to maintain and practically anything he does will reflect credit on him as an improvement. Indiana has won only four games in the last two seasons, while losing nine and tying three. Last year it defeated only Miami. Surely Bo can't do any worse.

By CARL W. SHATTO

The local hockey season will be brought to a close at Duquesne Garden tonight when the J. Scott Morgans, of East Liberty, and the Pirates, Garden representatives, clash in the final game of the City Hockey League season, with the league title at stake.

Tonight's rivals are tied for the league lead with 16 points each, two more than the H. J. Webers, who have concluded their schedule. Because they downed the Pirates by 3-1 scores in each of their two previous meetings, the Morgans will rule slight favorites to make off with the farewell battle and the championship.

The only two defeats which the East Liberty sextet has suffered were sustained at the hands of the Webers, and the Morgans were responsible for the Pirates' only setbacks. The Morgans, who have scored 56 goals while holding the opposition to 14 tallies in 10 games, boast the best offensive and defensive records of any team in the circuit, but the Pirates obtained new talent for the race down the stretch and may be able to turn the tables on their leading rivals. The probable lineup:

Pirates		Morgans
Rodenbaugh	G.	Scully
McCutcheon	D.	McSorley
Copley	D.	Tyson
Sills	C.	R. Schooley
McGovern	W.	Powell
Davies	W.	B. Schooley

Pirate spares—McMillin, Klenz, Burke, Dave Friday, McGill, Scully.

Morgan spares—Battaglio, Lovett, Jeffries and Brown.

Miller and Butch End Grind Today

Both Freddie Miller, the National Boxing Association featherweight champion, and Mose Butch, local contender, will wind up their hard training today for their 10-round non-title bout which features the boxing show in Motor Square Garden Monday night. Both boxers are training in the Pittsburgh Lyceum gymnasium, at different hours. They will indulge in another workout each tomorrow, but it will be of a very light nature.

Miller has been here since last Monday doing his conditioning.

International Ice League Race Ends

The International Hockey League will clear the decks for its post-season title playoffs by dis- posing of the last games on its regular schedule tonight. Buffalo is to play at Cleveland, and Detroit at London in the concluding engagements.

Buffalo, Detroit, London and Syracuse have qualified for the playoffs, with Windsor and Cleveland eliminated.

Final games in the National League will be played tomorrow night.

WINNER ENTERS STATE TITLE TOURNEY

By JULIUS LEVIN

The championship of the W. P. I. A. L. and the right to represent District VII in the P. I. A. A. playoffs for the state crown will be decided in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion tonight when New Kensington, titleholder in Section I, opposes Ambridge, champion of Section IV, in the final battle of the basketball elimination series.

New Kensington, a winner of the W. P. I. A. L. crown in 1930, will be bidding for its second basketball title, while Ambridge is a finalist for the first time in the history of the school.

Both teams having been well supported in the early rounds of the tournament, their contest tonight is expected to draw an almost capacity crowd. The semi-final fray between Ambridge and Duquesne almost filled the Stadium Pavilion.

WELL MATCHED TEAMS

The contest brings together two quintets noted for their basketball ability and fighting qualities, and trying to pick a winner is an extremely difficult task as the two finalists both have displayed championship form against all tournament opponents.

While New Kensington did not look impressive in its first battle of the current series against Ford City, champion of Section VI, it won the respect of the spectators by scoring a 33-20 victory. The Glockmen, however, started to click in their quarter-final duel with Uniontown, champion of Section XI, a team they defeated by a 42-28 score. The local fans thought New Kensington had reached its peak in playing form against the Fayette countians, but their best exhibition came in the semi-finals when it handed a powerful Scott High quintet, of North Braddock, champion of Section VIII, a 45-23 shellacking that left no doubt in the minds of the fans that the valley machine was one of the best floor machines ever to appear in the tournament.

SPEEDY ATTACK

Displaying a fast-breaking attack that has succeeded in working the ball under the hoop for comparatively easy shots for field goals and a defense that has been found almost impenetrable by the opposition to date, New Kensington will take the floor a slight favorite.

Eddie Waugh, Negro, scoring ace of New Kensington, failed to get a point against Ford City, but he more than made up for this by counting 16 against Uniontown and 17 against Scott High School. Two boys who have stood out the New Kensington defense are Joe Ross and Andy Trzeciak, a pair of guards who have managed to check all attacks of the RIVERSIDE, Cal., March 17.—The unusual heat felt at present in the far West should be as water on the wheel of the Pirates, Cubs and White Sox, in training in this district. At Yuma yesterday afternoon our flyer stopped for 15 minutes, and there was a rush of passengers from the Pullmans, whose thermometers showed heat of approximately 100.

Some of the bronzed Indian women who sell trinkets at the station hunted shady nooks, and even there the heat was around the century mark.

Athletes who work up a perspiration in these parts have found it is a bit dangerous to cool off in the shade; nevertheless the Cubs and Pirates are generally in top form to start the long grind when they emerge from California. Since the Buccos have been coming out here their starts from the April tape have been auspicious, although they frequently have bogged down in the hot months, whatever the reason.

LOCALS FACE BUCS

George Susce and Jim Levey, two Pittsburgh boys, will do all they can to trip up the Pirates in the two-game series between Pittsburgh and Hollywood starting this afternoon at the local park.

The Shieks have been training here for two weeks. Levey is said to be a major league shortstop in many respects, but Jimmy suffered a bad batting slump with the Browns last season and was shipped to Hollywood as a result of the defection.

The scrappy marine from the Highland Park neighborhood is apt to find the path that leads to major league glory as quickly as he starts to hit. He is said to be one of the fleetest runners in the game.

YANIGANS WIN

The Pirates arrived here today to open their annual exhibition series. They broke camp at Paso Robles yesterday after indulging in the third and final inter-camp battle of the training campaign. The Yanigans, behind sterling pitching on the part of Birkofer, again defeated the Regulars to make it two out of three. The tally yesterday was 2 to 0.

Birkofer hurled the entire five innings and set the Regs down with a lone hit. Fred Lindstrom singled in the first inning, but after that Birkofer was in complete control of the situation. Cy Blanton attended to the slab work for the Regulars.

The Yanigans scored in the second inning. Trapp singled, went to second when Blanton threw wild on Crandall's bunt, went to third when Vaughan fumbled Jensen's grounder and scored on a wild pitch.

In the fourth Trapp singled, went to third on Birkofer's scratch hit to the infield, but was left stranded. The Yanigans picked up their second run in the fifth. Roettger tripled, but was run down after Etten grounded to Lavagetto. Etten went to second on the play and came home on Thevenow's single.

The fur should fly when the Pirates tackle the Cubs in four games at Wrigley Field in Los Angeles, beginning Tuesday. These battles often are loaded with championship fervor. There were times in the Dottie Bush-Joe McCarthy era when the opposing athletes were ready to resort to fist fights.

Squash racquets at the Keystone A. C. and handball at the Y. M. H. A. and the Downtown Y. M. C. A. comprise a diverting club sport card this afternoon. The Keystone bill offers the semi-final frays of the annual city class A championship racquet event at 2:30 o'clock, while that at the Bellefield institution displays penultimate contests of the Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. junior singles title tourney at the same hour.

Meanwhile at the Downtown Y. Dick Koubek's Keystoners seek to clinch top honors of the City Handball League Class A chase by meeting the champion Y. M. H. A. squad in windup of a round-robin playoff series in which Downtown Y. M. C. A. has been already shunted to the rear.

The squash program calls for encagements between Champion McCook Reed K. A. C. crack and Joe Oliver, cagy Pittsburgh Golf clubber in the upper half of the draw and a contest involving Bill Backel, 1933 runner-up, with his Keystone clubmate, Ed Seifert, in the lower.

The junior glove session features a joust between Bill Kern, P. A. C.'s assistant grid coach, and Carl Debbertine, slim Downtown Y satellite. Kern, sporting P. A. A. colors, is perhaps the most improved topflight handballer hereabouts but even so he faces a formidable opponent in Debbertine. In the other Y. M. H. A. joust, Sam Wolf, veteran of the home organization, takes on Frank Koubek, youthful Keystone aspirant and brother of Dick Koubek who leads the K. A. C. squad-ron, into the playoff action at the Y. M. C. A.

ORANGE BOXERS NEAR TITLE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 17.—(AP.)—The Orange of Syracuse, defending the team championship for the third straight year, hung [illegible] over the eleventh annual Eastern Intercollegiate boxing championships as the tournament progressed to the final [illegible] round.

The seven men Syracuse qualified in the preliminaries yesterday all moved through into the final matches, two of them by clean cut knockouts, all but assuring the Orange the team title again.

Western Maryland, with four [illegible] in the finals, bought [illegible] a maximum of 20 points, [illegible] final total of 24 points, and two [illegible] third place [illegible] Syracuse in the event [illegible] most unfortunate [illegible] score 21 points as a minimum [illegible].

TIGER MATMEN LEAD

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., March 17.—(AP.)—Pairing visits of collegiate wrestling squadrons of the [illegible] preliminary bouts tonight [illegible] the semi-final rounds of the [illegible] Eastern Intercollegiate [illegible] championships with Princeton [illegible] shooting for the [illegible] title.

The Tigers placed four men in the final bouts, to be waged today, and Lehigh's team, champs for the past three years, registered six falls to lead the team scoring [illegible].

CHAMPIONSHIP GAME

Tonight—New Kensington, Section 1, vs. Ambridge, Section IV, Pitt Stadium pavilion.

SCHOOL FIVES SEEK TITLE

opposition. All three will bear watching tonight.

Playing in what many believe to be the tougher bracket of the draw, Ambridge, coached by Moe Rubenstein, eliminated two of the top-heavy favorites to reach the final round. After disposing of Leetsdale, champion of Section II, with comparative ease, 31-11, the Bridgers had to meet New Castle, champion of Section III, and Duquesne, defending champion and titleholder of Section VII, in their next two games. They were the underdogs in both contests, but won from New Castle by the surprising score of 31-16 and upset the dope by crushing the championship aspirations of a capable Duquesne quintet, 27-18.

BRIDGERS ON EDGE

If the Rubenstein boys can present a defense to check the speedy floorwork of the valley quintet tonight the Bridgers stand a good chance to ascend the basketball throne. Mike Winne, a brilliant guard, and Johnny Michelosen and John Drago, a pair of fine scoring forwards, will be entrusted with this task tonight.

With both teams in perfect physical condition and well rested since playing their semi-final engagements, rival followers of the two quintets are looking for a thrilling contest.

Prior to the playing of the final game, the officials and coaches of the W. P. I. A. L. hold their annual banquet in Webster Hall. The dinner will be finished in time to permit all guests to attend the contest at the Stadium.

This afternoon in Webster Hall officials of the P. I. A. A. were arranging pairings and dates for the playing of the eliminations for the state crown.

The championship of the Tri-state Prep School League will be decided at Shady Side Academy this afternoon when Shady Side Academy meets Nichols School, of Buffalo. Nichols defeated University School of Cleveland, 29-26, while Shady Side defeated the same team, 32-28.

THREE TEAMS ADVANCE

The Lower Merion, Bradford and Erie East captured the basketball titles in Sections I, IX and X, respectively, of the P. I. A. A. last night, while Huntingdon went to the semi-finals of District VI.

Lower Merion defeated Jenkintown, 26 to 18. Bradford knocked off Falls Creek, 27 to 21 and Erie East defeated Greenville, 25 to 23. Huntingdon rallied to down Clymer, 27 to 26.

EX-DUKES BOW TO CELTICS

The former Duquesne University stars who completed their varsity careers this week made an auspicious start as independents last night as they gave the famous Cleveland Rosenblum-Celtics a hot battle on the Duquesne University gym floor. The Celtics won, 29 to 26.

Tonight the Ex-Dukes tackle the Steubenville team at Steubenville.

The former collegians took an early lead of 4 to 0 in the first period, but before the quarter was over, were behind, 5 to 4, and, despite several thrilling rallies, never were able to forge to the front again. The Celtics led, 13 to 9, at the half, and, 21 to 16, at the end of the third period.

Nat Hickey led the scoring for both teams with nine points. Irv Brenner scored eight for the Dukes.

In the preliminary, the Duquesne Freshmen defeated the Frank Ferris quintet, 40 to 32. The lineups:

HYATT'S FIVE IN FINAL

KANSAS CITY, March 17.—(AP.)—The defending champion Tulsa Diamond Oilers and the University of Wyoming came through the semi-finals of the National A. A. U. basketball tournament with rousing victories over Olympic Club of San Francisco and the Hutchinson (Kan.) Renos, respectively, and will tangle for the title tonight.

The defeated semi-finalists will engage in a playoff game with third place at stake.

SWIMMING ACES AFTER HONORS AT PITT

By JESS CARVER

Records that survive today's attacks in the twentieth annual University of Pittsburgh interscholastic and university swimming championships will be records indeed. A crack field of 700 schoolboy swimmers, representing 17 high schools from three states, will launch potent bids for scholastic honors, while Coach Pat Corr's crack Pitt freshman and varsity stars are primed to assault the university marks.

For the first time in the history of the meet, West Virginia will have representation, squads from Warwood, Triadelphia and Wheeling High schools being on hand for the Trees gymnasium events. Canton and Akron will carry Ohio colors, with all sectors of Western and Northwestern Pennsylvania having teams on hand.

ERIE TEAM CHOICE

The Erie strong Vincent squad, champions for the past three years, again rules a pre-eminent favorite, but the chances of a dark horse upsetting calculations are stronger than ever.

The meet gets under way this afternoon with trial heats in all events. Semi-finals and finals will be staged this evening.

Pitt's varsity footballers donned their sweat shirts and practice pants yesterday and reported to Head Coach Jock Sutherland for the inauguration of the annual spring drills.

The Panther mentor plans to keep his gridders at work for at least five weeks. Confronted by a terrific schedule next fall, with Southern California, Minnesota and Notre Dame to be met on successive Saturdays, to say nothing of games with Wash-Jeff, West Virginia, Carnegie Tech and Nebraska, Sutherland must build almost an entirely new line and at least half of a backfield.

13 LETTER MEN BACK

Fortunately, the material is promising, possessing both speed and heft. Thirteen letter men are back, including Harvey Rooker, Tarentum end; Bob Hoel, Evanston, Ill., tackle; Kenny Ormiston, Pittsburgh; Capt. Doc Hartwig, Benwood, W. Va., and Frank Kutz, McKeesport, guards; Nick Kliskey, North Braddock, and George Shotwell, Wilkes-Barre, centers; Miller Munjas, Bellaire, O., quarterback; Huburt Randour, McDonald; Mike Nicksick, Burgettstown, and Leon Shedlosky, Nanticoke, halfbacks, and Isadore Weinstock, Wilkes-Barre, and Henry Weisenbaugh, Tarentum, fullbacks.

RECORD BROKEN BY CAMBRIDGE

LONDON, March 17.—(AP.)—Cambridge today won by four and a half lengths over Oxford in the eighty-sixth renewal of their annual eight-oared crew race, and set a new record for the course of four and a quarter miles. The time was 18 minutes 3 seconds.

The Light Blue boatload never was extended as it swept up the muddy Thames from Mortlake to Putney to score its eleventh straight victory over Oxford and its forty-fifth of the series, begun in 1829.

The new mark for the race displaced the record of 18:29 set in 1911 by one of the great Oxford crews which ruled the English rowing world for nine straight years before the war.

The time was announced as 18:38, but a check of the watches disclosed the new record.

The intermediate times were: Mile, 3:38; Hammersmith Bridge, 6:45; Chiswick Steps, 10:53; Barnes Bridge, 15 minutes flat, and the finish line, 18:03.

N. J. Bradley was the stroke of the Cambridge crew and behind him in the Light Blue shell were J. H. Wilson; W. A. Sambell and D. J. Wilson, both Australians; K. M. Payne, W. G. Laurie, C. K. Buckle and A. D. Kingsford, rowing in that order. J. N. Duckworth, 110-pound midget from Jesus College, was the coxswain.

WEST VA. STATE CHAMPS BOW

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., March 17.—(AP.)—The state championship Clarksburg High School team was eliminated last night in the quarter-finals of the annual scholastic basketball tournament, while Beckley, Parsons, Elkins and Weirton rode on into the semi-final bracket.

Beckley sent the Victory High boys, from Clarksburg, out of the event with a surprising 25-23 victory.

Packed by their lanky center, Pickens, who stood up to pre-tournament forecasts, Parsons rode over St. Albans, 33 to 25, in the most one-sided victory. The Elkins team played like champions in staging a brilliant last-quarter rally to defeat Williamson, 35-29. Weirton made one of the surprise showings of the tournament in downing Charleston's powerful team, 34 to 27.

TENNES LONE U. S. VICTOR

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 17.—(AP.)—Fire destroyed an Italian speed boat and forced its titled driver into Lake Worth, but only the skill of Horace Tennes, Northwestern University student, kept all honors from going to Italy and France in the resumption of the international motorboat regatta yesterday.

Prince Carlo Maurizio Ruspoli, captain of the Italian team, was endeavoring to lessen the distance between his six-litre Niniette IV and the Lia V of his conutryman, Antonio Becchi, in the sixth lap of the 12-litre event, when smoke rolled from beneath the top-housing of the Niniette and a tongue of flame swept back into the tiny driving compartment.

Prince Ruspoli leaped into the water and pushed away from the blazing boat.

Becchi, who won last Tuesday easily, repeated his victory with an average speed of 52.17 miles an hour for the eight laps, 24 statute mile course.

Jean Dupuy, captain of the French team, was never headed in the opening international Class X outboard heat of the meet's resumption.

Tennes, who later by sheer dare-devilry at the wheel of his Miss Hootnanny, salvaged an American victory in the second heat of International X, was off to a poor start and abandoned the race in the second lap.

Tennes' time, in his victory, reduced to an average speed of 47.796, was the fastest, officials said, for the Palm Beach series of international races.

Wilmerding Y.M.C.A. Gets Title Tourney

The Wilmerding Y. M. C. A. will stage the annual state Y. M. C. A. basketball tournament this year, the event to get under way next Friday and to be completed Saturday night.

At Stockton, Cal.—Johnny Pena defeated Glen Espinosa, 10 rounds.

SEVEN W. VA. BOXERS WIN

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 17.—Seven West Virginia varsity boxers prepared to fling leather tonight in the finals of the annual Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Conference individual championship tournament, and were accorded at least even chances of making a clean sweep of the tourney.

The Mountaineers placed seven men in the finals as the result of last night's preliminaries. Temple and Bucknell placed two men each and Pitt, Carnegie Tech and Duquesne one.

Four knockouts were recorded during last night's battling, three of them being of the technical variety. In one of the best bouts of the night, Freddie Moore, Conference 145-pound champion, of Duquesne, won a split decision over Jimmy Giannatti, of Pitt, the judges voting for the Duquesne star and the referee, Ernie Sesto, for the Panther.

All four of the defending champions, Pete Puglia and Bill Neeley, of West Virginia; Jack Shricker, of Pitt, and Moore survived the trials. The summary:

115 pounds—Peter Puglia, West Virginia, defeated Richard Cochran, Carnegie Tech; Louis Rubenstein, Temple, defeated Charles Carmella, Pittsburgh, technical knockout, second round.

125 pounds—Felix Espada, West Virginia, defeated George Pettineo, Temple, technical knockout, when Pettineo was unable to answer the bell for the third round after it had saved him from knockout in second; Charles Dill, Bucknell, defeated Russell Pfansmith, Duquesne.

135 pounds—William Neely, West Virginia, defeated Louis Berley, Bucknell; William Beloff, Temple, defeated Abraham Konick, Pittsburgh.

BAUMAN, WILSON SKATE VICTORS

Bill Bauman and Helen Wilson captured top honors in the Western Pennsylvania Skating Association's meet at Duquesne Garden last night as the skaters won a decision over the Garden officials over the matter of admissions.

With the contestants arrival at the Garden's portals, they were asked to pay 25 cents admission. The athletes registered a protest and the affair was held up for almost an hour. Finally the Garden capitulated and permitted the boys and girls to enter free of charge.

Bauman won both of the senior men's events and Miss Wilson took the two senior girl's races. The summary:

Men's Senior Events.

220-yard dash won by Bill Bauman, George Karpinski, second; George Handel, third. Time, :21.

440 yards—Won by Bill Bauman, George Karpinski, second; Chuck Handel, third. Time—:31 3-5.

Boys' Events.

440 yards—Won by Billy Reilly, Jack Loder, second; Albert Kohler, third. Time, :39.

Pittsburgh Quintet Wins Tourney Game

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., March 17.—The Pittsburgh South Hills Scholastics opened today's session of the fifth annual two-day Junior Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia tournament by defeating the New Wilmington (Pa.) Dettas, 26 to 18.

The Monaca Ex-Highs defeated the East Palestine quintet, 21 to 20.

ERIE BOWLER ALL-EVENTS LEADER

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI

Pat McLaughlin, of Erie, Pa., went into the lead as the all-events leader when he scored 1,853 pins in his nine games in the twenty-seventh annual Tri-state tenpin tournament on the Auditorium alleys last night. McLaughlin, paired with Eddie Hitch, last year's all-events champion, who set an all-time record, toppled 1,281 sticks to take the lead in the doubles division. L. Lytel, of Erie, dropped 1,808 pins to place second in this class and George Oakes, of the Forward team, of Pittsburgh, took third with 1,797.

Lee Hamilton and Bill Adolphson, who copped the singles title last year, finished second in the doubles competition with 1,209. Both are members of the Tucker team. Champ Palmer and Harry Votel, also of the Tuckers, spilled 1,187 pins to hold third place.

L. Lytel, Erie entrant, scored 649 to take possession of first place in the singles. J. C. Buck, of Brackenridge, who battered 289 pins in his last singles match, finished one pin behind the leader and Lee Hamilton, Tucker star pinster, tallied 642.

Fort Pitt, of Sharpsburg, still maintained its lead in the five-men events with its 2,993 score which they rolled last Wednesday. The E. M. Tuckers, of Pittsburgh, turned in the highest mark for the night to take second place in this event when they spilled 2,975 pins. Isaac Crew, of Erie, finished next with 2,968 and the Forward alley aggregation rolled a 2,842

When I Was a Little Lad

When I was a little lad
(Just so high)
I cried for a Billy Goat—
Oft to Santa Claus I wrote
(Got no reply.)

When I was a young man
(Six feet tall)
I wanted only you
(Wrote all my songs to you)
You smiled behind your fan
(Deaf to my call.)

Now I'm an old man
(Dreams all tatters)
You and the Billy Goat
Your fan, the songs I wrote
Baby tears and youth's dreams
All strangely mixed. It seems
(None of it matters.)

Am I Good?

Konrad Bercovici's best yarn about De Pachmann, the concert pianist, goes this way. They called him "Bravo" De Pachmann because he praised his own technique aloud while performing.

All through one recital the key tickler's attention was arrested by two women who sat on the aisle almost at his tootsies. They were rapt with wonder and breathless with his ability. De Pachmann zigzagged through an incredibly difficult passage, and at the conclusion the pair almost swooned.

"You like it?" he asked them—still playing. They nodded vigorously.

"Then wait," he replied as he thumped away, "it comes again!"

The Retort Dandy

It was Bugs Baer who first taught me to abhor echoes when he related how much he suffered from pirating. His wit has been thefted more than any other newspaper comedian. So, naturally, when a well known columning thief danced by Baer's table (masked in a false nose and beard), and said:

"You didn't know I did imitations, did you?" Baer muttered: "Yeah!"

By Way of Report

Charlie Chaplin's costume, which is as familiar today in South Africa as it is in Hollywood—was a make-shift affair, thrown together when he joined Mack Sennett in 1914.

Having no costume of his own, Chaplin borrowed Ford Sterling's pants, Mack Swain's shoes, Sennett's hat, some other chap's cane, and stepped in front of the cameras. And into millions of dollars.

Mrs. Roosevelt at Home

At a press conference following the Christmas party for the children at the White House, the femme reporters stood around respectfully waiting for Mrs. Roosevelt's description of the affair. She looked over the ladies, and called to one:

"Oh, Jen, you left your hankie here the last time you were over. I had it laundered for you—it's upstairs."

Later, her daughter, Mrs. Dall, came into the room. Mrs. Roosevelt turned to her and said:

"Anna, can't you do any better than to leave your knitting all over the house?"

The Drama of It

From the program of "Dodsworth" (a grand play at the Morosco) is this one borrowed. John Drew's story of E. H. Sothern and an aged citizen of Louisville, Ky., was one of the most popular in his repertoire.

Standing in conversation with Drew in the lobby of his hotel in Louisville one day, Sothern was approached by an old man who addressed him with great dignity.

"Mr. Mansfield," he said, "I am very glad to see you here, and I am going to be delighted to attend every preformance of yours during your all too brief sojourn in Louisville. I have followed your career, Mr. Mansfield."

"Why in heaven's name didn't you say something?" said Drew as soon as he was out of earshot. "He doesn't know Mansfield is dead!"

"Ah," said Sothern, "that's not what hurts! He doesn't know I'm alive!"

Merciless Truth

Eddie Cantor relays the one about Mr. Cronk, who instructed his son to go to the safety vaults and take the gold in them back to the government, in accordance with the President's ruling. The son returned to his father after a difficult time carrying the heavy cargo in a valise.

"I almost broke my back carrying that gold!" he complained.

"You almost broke your back carrying it!" screamed the old gent, "but I broke mine working for it!"

Have a Mizner

I have never heard this Wilson Mizner quip before. With a companion, the late wit was motoring through an unsettled region one night—when engine trouble developed. As they were tinkering, two disreputable figures approached ominously. One was a small, insignificant type, but the other was a pretty tough baby of about 250 tonnage—and no fat!

"You tackle the big feller," Mizner whispered to his comrade, "I'll take the little one—I think he's got a knife!"

Boys Will Be Bores

At the Morosco Theater Tuesday night sat a quartet of cunning chappies. One of them lit matches to read his playbill to show the rest of us (who kept thinking of the Iroquois Theater fire and catastrophe) that he could really read.

Nothing could happen from lighting a match in a crowded theater, of course. Only a panic if a lady's chiffon kerchief caught fire, or her dress or hair. So when a worried spectator urged one of them to quit lighting matches (the fireman in the back rows dozed beautifully, apparently) the basket party kept lighting them.

Then somewhere in the play one of the cast mentioned the tragic Iroquois Theater fire in which 700 perished. This managed to transmit the danger that goes with toying with matches in crowded theaters. Thus spoiling the fun of the four saps.

Newspaperman Stuff

From P. H. Morris, one of the better gag digger-uppers, comes this one. It revolves around a Chicago newspaper which was having another of its periodic shakeups—people were being fired and laid off in bunches.

Some of the lads were idling around the editorial rooms when a reporter dashed in and breathlessly said:

"Dillinger's out!"

A cop, in titmouse tones, queried:

"What department was he in?"

Greta Garbo's 'Christina' In Penn

By MICHAEL SHAW

Greta Garbo's "Queen Christina," road-showed in the Nixon early this year, is now on view at popular prices in the Penn.

The story of the little girl who became ruler of Sweden upon the death of her father, Gustavus Adolphus, in battle, reigned wisely and well, and gave up her throne for love, is a fitting vehicle for the great Garbo's return to the screen after a long absence.

That the scenario trifles with history cannot be denied. The mannishness which was the outstanding characteristic of the real Christina is suggested and then forgotten. The amours of the screen monarch are entirely fictional.

But what does this matter when we have Garbo back with us, acting a magnificent role with more assurance than she has ever shown before? For a second viewing of "Christina" only strengthens the original impression that Garbo has indeed expanded histrionically. Long the most fascinating of film actresses, she has now become in fact the Duse of the screen.

Here we see her in many moods, regal, passionate, and tragic; and always she is convincing. When she faces an angry mob storming her palace and turns their imprecations to cheers, we believe it. And when her court and her people beg her in tears not to abdicate, we can understand that, too. With a lesser actress in the part, we might have smiled.

In her scenes with John Gilbert, as the Spanish ambassador with whom she falls in love, she passes from humor and gusto to shyness, to tenderness, to joy, to intensity and passion, and in the expression of all these varying moods she is not short of perfection. And at the last, sailing away in a Viking ship after her lover's death in a duel, she is a noble figure of loneliness, a personification of tragedy not soon to be forgotten.

Yes, there is only one Garbo; and in "Christina" she is a greater Garbo than before.

It is whispered that Director Rouben Mamoulian is at least partly responsible for the new lights and shadows in Garbo's acting. Whether or not this be so, he must be given credit for a technical triumph. He has made a beautiful picture, and one which recaptures well the robust spirit of the times in which Christina lived. And he has had the wisdom to be unsparing in his closeups of Garbo, whose face many of us think the most expressive in the world.

There remains but to add a note of regret. John Gilbert, valiantly trying to "come back" as a great screen lover, has met with disaster in "Christina." From his first entrance, ludicrously costumed, to his death scene, he is a fumbling figure, lacking confidence and dignity, and never making us feel that here is a man for whom a queen might well give up her throne.

Lewis Stone, as the old retainer, is Lewis Stone in tights, and the rest of the supporting cast is capable.

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, March 17.—William A. Seiter (he always answers to Bill) was RAWTHER surprised Tuesday when he received word that wifey, Laura La Plante, had filed suit for divorce in Riga, Latvia (that's an independent country near Russia—if you can't find it on the map), and the place is fast becoming the Reno of Europe. Laura had a few days before starting "The Church Mouse" for Warners' foreign product, headed by Irving Asher, who, 'tis WHISPERED, will make Laura Mrs. Asher when her divorce is final.

June Brewster, ex-"Vanities" show gal who has been under contract to RKO, enjoyed the THRILL of having Earl Carroll offer her a choice spot in his forthcoming Broadway musical.

* * *

The RKO studio chest PUFFED out the other morning. Diana Wynyard has been signed to co-star with Clive Brook in "Sour Grapes," the Vincent Lawrence play, on which Ernest Pascal is now punishing a typewriter to dash off the script. Worthington Minor and George Nichols, Jr., will both hold the megaphone.

Merry Fahrney, the gay little heiress of Chicago, who has been having jolly times in the cinema village, finally WEAKENED to the lure of the galloping celluloid, visited Cecil B. De Mille—and will now make her movie debut as an extra in "Cleopatra" for Paramount.

Ray Mayer spills a NIFTY—A very conceited actor took a newspaper man to see his latest picture. Following the preview the pair sat in the Brown Derby and the dialogue went like this:

Actor—"Yes, I'm sure I did my best work in that film. Nice actors to support me, a fair story—yes, I'm positive I'm at my best. But enough of talking about me. Let's talk about you. How did you like my performance?"

Wanderings Around Hollywood—Ah, an ODD marital mix-up! Dorothy Lebaire and Director Marion Gering have SEPARATED. Dot has moved over to Sylvia Sidney's home for a while, and, the funny part is Marion is directing Sylvia's new flicker . . . Earl Carroll is probably starting a new fad. Huston Stars In Davis

By MARGARET GARRAHAN

Better than words, audience reaction at the Davis and Regent yesterday spoke of the universal appeal of animals as "Keep 'Em Rolling," with Walter Huston, opened for a week's run.

If you like horses, you'll like this picture—for it is the film story of an army officer and his mount, of their part on the front in the World War, and of the man's post-war struggle to save his "buddy" from peace-time relegation to the ranks of oblivion.

To Huston, his horse, grown old and almost useless 15 years after the Armistice, is still as much a member of the Army as Huston himself. He even surrenders his sergeant's chevrons to remain with his mount, and the two finally win against all odds. The horse is retired amid militaristic fanfare and Huston is commissioned to care for him.

Cavalry and artillery maneuvers, filmed at Fort Myer, Va., add to the picture's interest and color.

"Eight Girls in a Boat," also a feature of the double bill, has to do with the plight of a boarding-school girl who got outside the school walls once too often. Pretty Dorothy Wilson, as the girl, moves through her part languidly and woefully. The stark tragedy of the thing also sits, for the greater part of the picture, upon the handsome Douglass Montgomery, a student chemist. Frequent displays of feminine pulchritude (the boarding school roster) in flashy aquatic scenes have a brightening effect.

Ed and Victor In Warner

By MARGARET RUSSELL

"No More Women" is the conclusion Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen come to in the film of that title in Warner after their usual number of fisticuff entanglements. In accordance with the oft-repeated Lowe-McLaglen pattern, the two roughnecks are rivals for the attention of the same girl, and they lose no slightest opportunity to best one another in her wondering eyes.

The girl in this case is Sally Blane, Loretta Young's sister. Sally inherits the "Pelican," a salvage ship on which McLaglen is No. 1 diver. McLaglen tells the crew they'll walk out on their girl "boss" over his dead body. Edmund Lowe, No. 1 plus-diver from a rival salvage boat, joins the "Pelican" crew to the disgust of McLaglen, who is demoted to No. 2 diver.

There are some exciting underwater shots of the divers in their weird, cumbersome suits, amid seaweed, fishes and wreckage. Dirty business afoot, or under foot, or under the sea, to be exact, threatens the life of Lowe. Grudges are forgotten, and McLaglen, going to the rescue, saves the day, the girl's fortune and incidentally Lowe, it is suspected, for future fisticuff engagements. Sally Blane gives them both a brotherly kiss for their troubles and leaves them recuperating in the hospital with a new philosophical slant on "No More Women."

Pathe News, a Cubby Bear animated cartoon, "How's Crops" and a musical short feature, "Going Spanish," with Bob Hope and Leah Ray, complete the program.

Mr. Smith Goes On the Wagon

Mr. John Smith, man about town and an expert drinker for the past 20 years, went on the wagon last week. May I present you with a few reactions? . . .

* * *

HIS RIGHT LEG: Well, it's about time. I'm on the verge of getting varicose veins from worrying about him. He should have quit years ago because he never really learned how to drink.

Not that it affected me, mind you. It was that left leg of his. Always trying to step forward when it was my turn, the hog! . . .

* * *

HIS HEART: They think he's got great will power now, but they don't know the inside dope the way I do. He complained to a doctor that I was annoying him, and the doctor took some kind of telephone and tuned in on me.

The doc said that Smith would have to stop drinking, or die. He said there was something wrong with me—endocarditis, or some such fool name.

* * *

HIS EYES: What has happened to all those spots? . . .

* * *

HIS LIVER: So he's quit, has he? That's a howl. He's quit, but what about me? I've been in a state of collapse for years!

I haven't said much, but I'm going to now. All through Prohibition he sent the world's worst booze my way—and I never complained. And now that he has a chance to give me a break and some decent stuff he goes on the wagon.

* * *

HIS BRAIN: Phew! This would drive a fellow crazy. Sometimes, I think I'm going daffy. I need a shot now; need it badly. He can't do this to me, after all these years.

All the satisfaction I have now is my memories. And they're not bad.

* * *

HIS TONGUE: Thank goodness I've got that coat off for a while, anyhow. I've been wearing is as far back as I can remember. I guess maybe he doesn't like me particularly. If he did, why would he stick me out in the mornings, look at me in the mirror, and make faces at me?

* * *

HIS NOSE: Hello, this is news indeed! So he's off the stuff, is he? I should worry. It doesn't make me mad, because booze made me the laughing stock of the town.

I used to get red at first, like a tail light. But no more. I like this purple color better. I think it's more becoming. A bit regal, if I say so myself.

* * *

HIS TEETH: We must be going over a desert! . . .

* * *

HIS NERVES: I'm sick and and tired of complaining. I begged for more, but the dope didn't care how much I complained. Five days now without a shot! What am I going to do?

I've had his hands shaking. I've filled his head with little wheels. I've made him twitch at night. I've even quit on one side to make him feel numb. But it does no good. Oh, well, I think I'll plug a wire in on his brain and give him a pain in the neck.

* * *

HIS STOMACH: So he finally decided to quit, did he? Well, if anyone gets the credit for taking him off the stuff, it's me.

For 20 years, I've been kicking. I used to growl every time I saw that terrible booze coming my way. Then, once in awhile, I just quit the job and refused to digest the cheese and onions he punished me with.

I think that, just to fool him, I'll continue to act up every now and then.

* * *

JOHN SMITH: Nuts. I don't see any sense of this wagon stuff. I feel worse than I did before. I think I'll have a drink . . .

Eddie Cantor Stanley's Fun Star

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Eddie Cantor, who, with David Rubinoff, heads the stage attraction in the Stanley, should add Coffeyville, Kan., to his numerous addresses, that already include New York, Hollywood and Miami. In the olden days of the screen one had to wait for the feature until the theater had got through showing slides advertising Ropadora cigars, sticky face cream, and the like, but it has remained for Mr. Cantor to be the first to plug merchandise from the stage. Yet, besides being steaming and aromatic, Eddie is funny, too, so he gets away with it—at least in Pittsburgh.

In fact, he gets away with it remarkably well, since he has no new songs or new gags, but he is such a consummate artist in his line that he makes his old material seem new. Even stuff that he has used on the radio gets the laughs—and that is the test of a comedian. It is claimed there are only 37 jokes, anyway, and, if that is the case, a comic necessarily has to use the same material in different forms all the time. The fact remains that Eddie makes the folks laugh, and the crowd he drew to the opening show yesterday is sufficient proof of his popularity.

Dave Rubinoff, with his excellent fiddling, also is a high spot in the stage bill, and the applause he receives is evidence that such a good violinist is not without honor in his home town, no matter how the case stands with the proverbial prophet. The show-stoppers, however, are Block and Sully, nut comedians of the Burns and Allen stripe. The Caron Sisters sing well and Bryant, Haines and Young do a pretty adagio dance.

Making a perfect fit with the general comedy trend of the program, "The Poor Rich" is screened as the photoplay feature. It is a hokumistic thing built for laugh purposes only, and it succeeds in being that, from beginning to end, with the exception of a melodramatic sequence. Part of it is slapstick, and the comedy develops from so many angles that romance has a hard time getting anywhere at all, but finally registers.

Edna May Oliver and Edward Everett Horton are featured as a couple of strapped aristocrats, cousins, who figure that a marriage between Horton and the daughter of an English lord and lady is the only way out. Lord and lady, and even daughter, are willing, for they, too, are cashshy, and think their American friends are rich. The advent of another chiseler serves to show them all up. Andy Devine, Leila Hyams and Thelma Todd are prominent in all the funny proceedings.

Present New Falstaff At Tech

Mr. Seibel

Just because Shakespeare was born 370 years ago, the drama department of Carnegie Tech will present "Henry IV" on April 23, which is the birthday, as near as we can tell from the baptismal register. There are two parts of "Henry IV," and the second will be played the following week, also for six days, and then the two parts will be alternated. Franklin Heller is to play Falstaff, which is the main reason why "Henry IV" is alive. B. Iden Payne has been secured to direct the production.

Meanwhile there is a foretaste of Shakespeare at the playhouse of the "Y" in Bellefield avenue, where the modern-dress performance of "The Taming of the Shrew" will be seen tomorrow and Tuesday evening.

An illustrated lecture on "The Art of Makeup" will be given by Elynore Moore tomorrow evening at the Experimental Theater in Aiken avenue, free to amateur groups.

"It Happened in Hollywood" is the coming production of the Triangle Playhouse in the East Liberty Y. M. C. A., on April 5 and 6. Emil Johnson, technical director, is designing a new setting.

As for the Epworthian Players, they are becoming most ambitious of all—"The Passing of the Third Floor Back" is to be put on in the Nixon Theater. Director Hall has obtained some photographs of the original setting used by Forbes-Robertson, and it is being copied for this revival.

Steel Master's Son In Claudette's Film

HOLLYWOOD, March 17.—(AP.)—Leon Beaumon, scion of a wealthy Chicago family, has decided he wants a screen career. Today he was playing an extra role, one of Claudette Colbert's bodyguards in "Cleopatra."

Beaumon, about 35, is the son of John Beaumon, executive of an eastern steel corporation. He has three masters' degrees from the California Institute of Technology and is the holder of 13 patents which he says nets him $15,000 a year.

WISDOM OF AUTO STRIKE MOVE QUESTIONED

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, March 17.—It seems to me the public is not going to consider the recent move by the American Federation of Labor as being well timed.

Of course, it is well timed from the labor organizer's point of view. He is following the usual strategy of organized labor in picking an industry, and a time when expansion is under way. The idea is that the employers in such a case will be most desirous of avoiding a tie-up and will thus be more apt to make concessions.

But it is well known that few strikes succeed unless they are backed by a sympathetic public opinion, and just now most people are not going to welcome any more trouble.

The automobile industry has been the leader in recent improvement, and it is with something like dismay that we see it about to be shut down by a great strike.

NO WAGE DISPUTE

Furthermore, there appears to be no question of unfair wages or hours or working conditions involved in the matter. No oppression of labor is alleged in this case. The public sympathy will be difficult to arouse.

In much the same way that many are questioning the wisdom of injecting "social reforms" into our efforts to provide immediate relief and to hasten business recovery, many will now question the timeliness of the American Federation of Labor's campaign to extend its jurisdiction over all laborers.

The sole issue, as I understand it, is the right of a national trade union organization to compel individual corporations to deal with it, instead of with local "company unions" not affiliated with the national. It is not a question merely of recognizing a union, but of recognizing the union dominated by the A. F. of L.

FORM OF UNION ISSUE

It is not the old question of "collective bargaining," but the question of what form of union shall do the bargaining.

If there were any question of wage-cutting tactics by narrow-minded employers, I would favor the trade union. So I would if equalized bargaining power between employer and employe were threatened. Collective bargaining is fair.

But I doubt that it is fair, from the standpoint of equalized bargaining power, to compel the individual company to bargain with a national trade union. And this doubt is emphasized by what we know about the methods and policies of existing trade unions.

If, by peaceful persuasion, an A. F. of L. union can induce the employes of a company to join, it can influence the position taken by them in bargaining with their employer, which is fair enough. But should they not act as an independent group in dealing with their employer or group of employers?

FEARS MONOPOLIES

I fear the alternative would be dealings between two monopolistic groups of employers and laborers. This is one of the great NRA problems. If we are going to encourage monopolistic price-fixing employer groups, we must expect monopolistic labor groups. The A. F. of L. will grow as NRA grows. And the bulk of us consumers would hold the bag.

The administration is in a ticklish position. It has encouraged the national trade unions, and these have the political power which attaches to the votes of an organized minority.

But the rest of us want peace, production and employment. Since the motor industry is maintaining high standard of wages and hours, I think the administration must decide to take an impartial stand in this crisis.

Under present circumstances, that should mean no strike.

STOCK MARKET TRADING DULL, NARROW

NEW YORK, March 17.—Alcohol shares were firm in early stock trading today but improvement otherwise was largely scattered. Leading industrials, rails and utilities were extremely narrow. Trading was at a quiet pace.

Homestake Mining got up 10 points in a single sale. Wright Aeronautical bounded up 5 before meeting resistance. Armour of Illinois A, Liggett and Myers B, United States Industrial Alcohol, Schenley Distillers, American Commercial Alcohol and National Distillers showed advances of around a point. Santa Fe, American Telephone, United States Steel, Consolidated Gas and United States Smelting were about unchanged to slightly higher.

Overnight news, including negotiations for the settlement of the automobile labor situation, was viewed as fairly cheerful. Traders, however, were inclined to maintain a cautious position while waiting for further developments.

Some surprise was expressed in the financial district that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had asked for legislation which would permit it to enter the banking business on a large scale in granting loans up to five years to industries which are under NRA codes.

It has been understood that this phase of loans was to be taken over by 12 intermediate credit banks which were to be set up in the Federal Reserve districts under close supervision of the reserve system. With this apparent conflict in programs for aiding small industries, banking quarters were wondering which would receive the backing of the administration.

Business reports continued encouraging. Estimates were being made that both freight car loadings and electric power output would show gains this week about as substantial as those of the previous period. There was another decrease in the stocks of crude oil while world copper stocks were found to have declined around 19,000 tons in February.

Foreign exchanges were again narrow at the opening of trading. Sterling was off ⅛ of a cent at $5.09 and French francs were unchanged at 6.58 cents.

GRAIN VALUES SHOW GAINS

CHICAGO, March 17.—Grain values showed an upward trend early today, influenced by dust storms in domestic wheat territory southwest. Possibilities of silver legislation and talk that taxes on grain futures would be reduced were also bullish factors. Opening unchanged to ⅜ higher, May 87⅜-½, wheat afterward scored some advance all around. Corn started unchanged to ½ up, and subsequently altered little.

BOY, 7, KILLED BY TRUCK

Jay Everard, 7, of 5204 Dearborn street, was killed when struck by a truck while crossing Penn avenue at Evaline street late yesterday.

He suffered a fractured skull and was pronounced dead at West Penn Hospital. Harry Jones, 34, a Negro, of 7232 Monticello street, driver of the truck, owned by the National Valve Company, was arrested and ordered to post bond at the Coroner's office, according to a police report.

Struck by an automobile at East Ohio street and Cedar avenue, late yesterday, John Vancheri, 43, of 716 Cedar avenue, suffered a possible skull fracture and was taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

James Korinsko, 7, of 1924 Grandview avenue, McKeesport, suffered bruises on the head when struck by an automobile near his home. He was taken to McKeesport Hospital.

Harold Brown, 5, of 261 Afterway, suffered brush burns when struck by a street car in Penn avenue, near Thirty-fourth street last night, according to a police report.

CHARGES WIFE SPURNED RING

His wife refused to wear the wedding ring he gave her, Raymond N. Earley, 110 Tennessee avenue, Dormont, avers in his divorce action on file today against Marie E. Earley, South Thirteenth street.

Earley charged his wife threatened to kill him, and refused to give him a telephone message regarding the serious illness of his mother.

Divorce suits were filed by Deborah Ponds against Sam Ponds, Marcella M. Kruth against Edward J. Kruth, Fannie Berman against Saul Berman, Eva W. Naylor against Frank D. Naylor, John Pobocki against Wilma Pobocki, Vera Kinsey against Clyde Kinsey, Lottie Casper against Peter Casper, Alma A. Saunier against Raymond Saunier and by Helen Kerr against Theodore F. Kerr.

Divorces were granted to Elaine Lovell from Roy Lovell, Anthony Bush, Jr., from Catherine B. Bush, Lillian Cappelli from Angelo Cappelli, W. Shirley Palmer from Walter Palmer, Elizabeth Vorndran from Charles Vorndran, Malinda S. Leslie from Charles E. Leslie, and to Charles Farber from Bertha Farber.

OBITUARY

William Fulton McNaugher.

Funeral services for William Fulton McNaugher, 58, who died in his home, 2325 Osgood street, North Side, yesterday, will be held Monday afternoon.

He had lived on the North Side all of his life. He was secretary-treasurer of the Pittsburgh Lamp, Brass and Glass Company until its reorganization as the Kopp Glass Company of which he became secretary. Mr. McNaugher was a member of the Fourth United Presbyterian Church, North Side, for more than 50 years. For the past six years he was a member of the session of that church.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Martha Leggate McNaugher; two sons, Alexander L. and Samuel W. McNaugher; three brothers, the Rev. John McNaugher, head of the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, North Side; D. W. McNaugher and Dr. Samuel McNaugher, and three sisters, Mrs. Jessie McM. Robertson, Mrs. Thomas P. Trimble and Mrs. R. E. McClure.

Services will be held from the home of his brother, D. W. McNaugher, 2301 Osgood street, with interment in Uniondale Cemetery.

Mrs. H. G. F. Randolph Bott.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hazel Gwynne Fitz Randolph Bott, who died Thursday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anson D. F. Randolph, 1410 Hill avenue, Wilkinsburg, will be held in the Calvary Presbyterian Church, Wilkinsburg, at 3 p. m. tomorrow. Mrs. Bott was a member of Wilkinsburg Chapter, No. 436 O. E. S.

She leaves her husband, Walter R. Bott.

Mrs. Julia Hennemann Planz.

Requiem high mass for Mrs. Julia A. Hennemann Planz, who died Thursday, will be celebrated in St. Ursula's Church, Allison Park, at 9 a. m., Monday.

Mrs. Planz resided near Weible Run road, Shaler Township, and was a member of Branch No. 1130 of the L. C. B. A. She leaves her husband, John J. Planz.

JESSE PENNEY, PRINTER, DIES

Jesse I. Penney, 68, for more than 30 years associated with the old Chronicle Telegraph and the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, died yesterday at his home, 447 Union avenue, Ingram. Funeral services will be held at his home at 2:30 p. m. Monday.

Mr. Penney was advertising superintendent of the Sun-Telegraph composing room.

He was a past master of Crafton Lodge, No. 653, F. & A. M.; past high priest of Cyrus Chapter, No. 280, R. A. M.; past commander of Chartiers Commandery, No. 78, Knights Templar, and a member Mt. Moriah Council, No. 2, R. & S. M.; Syria Shriner and the Scottish Rite bodies of Pittsburgh, and of Pittsburgh Typographical Union No. 7.

He was born in Elizabeth and was a resident of Ingram 40 years.

He leaves his wife and a daughter, Mrs. L. V. McLean, of Mt. Lebanon.

Mr. Penney was stricken with pneumonia last Saturday after returning home from work.

Jury to Hear Case Of 'Vision' Slayer

AKRON, O., March 17.—(AP.)—The story of the wierd "vision of God" which prompted Howard K. Gross, 34, to pitch his tiny son into a burning furnace will be told to a Summit County grand jury Monday.

Asserting conviction that Gross is insane, Prosecutor Ray B. Walters said the grand jury would be given the case with a view to sending Gross directly to the state hospital for the criminal insane without the formality of a murder trial.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on March 5, 1934, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said city, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 422.

AUTHORIZING and directing the grading, regrading, paving, repaving, curbing, recurbing and otherwise improving of Saw Mill Run boulevard, from Nobles lane to Maytide street, the construction of slag surfacing on the berms thereof, the construction of a pedestrian underpass at the Overbrook High School, the reconstruction of steps at Midwood avenue, the reconstruction of sanitary sewers, the grading, regrading, paving, repaving, curbing, recurbing and otherwise improving of streets affected thereby, the grading of approaches on streets affected thereby, the reconstruction of sidewalk pavements, the construction of new sidewalk pavements adjacent to the property of the Board of Public Education, and the construction of storm sewers for the drainage thereof along and across the said boulevard, and on, over, across and through the property of the Board of Public Education and private property of Violet Barton; authorizing the Department of Highways of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to advertise for, and receive, bids for the portion of the work for which the cost thereof is not borne by the said Department of Highways to award a contract or contracts therefor, and to supervise the performance of work provided for by said contract or contracts; providing that the proper officers of the city shall enter into a contract or contracts with the successful bidder or bidders, for the performance of said portion of the work, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses of the same be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, and providing further for the payment of the city's share of the portion thereof extending from a point 421.3 feet north of Dartmore avenue to Maytide street.

WHEREAS, The terms of an ordinance enacted by the City of Pittsburgh provide for an agreement between the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, County of Allegheny and the City of Pittsburgh, for the widening, relocation and reimprovement of Saw Mill Run boulevard, between Nobles lane and Maytide street, in the City of Pittsburgh, and stipulate the manner in which said improvement shall be carried out, and the costs to be borne by each of the several parties thereto, and further obligates the said City of Pittsburgh to enact legislation as may be necessary for the prosecution of said improvement, including the construction of physical work involved; Now, Therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That Saw Mill Run boulevard, from Nobles lane to Maytide street, be graded, regraded, paved, repaved, curbed, recurbed, and otherwise improved, including the construction of slag surfacing on the berms thereof; the construction of a pedestrian underpass at the Overbrook High School; the reconstruction of steps at Midwood avenue; the reconstruction of sanitary sewers; the grading, regrading, paving, repaving, curbing, recurbing, and otherwise improving of streets affected thereby; the grading of approaches on streets affected thereby; the reconstruction of sidewalk pavement; construction of new sidewalk pavements adjacent to the property of the Board of Public Education; the construction of storm sewers for the drainage thereof along and across said boulevard, and a 15-inch pipe outlet therefor extending on, over, across and through property of the Board of Public Education, and also a 24-inch pipe outlet therefor extending on, over, across and through private property of Violet Barton, said outlets to be constructed from the westerly line of Saw Mill Run boulevard to Saw Mill Run, in conformity with Plans Accession No. JDR-293, Sheets 2 and 3, on file in the Bureau of Engineering.

SECTION 2. The Department of Highways of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is hereby authorized to advertise for, and to receive, bids for the portion of said improvement for which the cost thereof is not borne by the said Highway Department, and to award a contract or contracts therefor with the successful bidder or bidders, and to supervise the performance of the work provided for in said contract or contracts.

SECTION 3. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works are hereby authorized and directed to enter into a contract or contracts with the successful bidder or bidders, to whom the contract or contracts may be awarded by the Secretary of Highways of said Commonwealth, for the portion of the aforesaid improvement for which the physical cost is not borne by the said Department of Highways, in accordance with the provision of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the ordinances of the said City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and regulating the same. The contract price, or contract prices, if let in separate contracts, shall not exceed the sum of eighty-six thousand ($86,000.00) dollars, which is the estimate of the whole cost of the portion of said improvement for which the cost of physical work therefor is not to be borne by the said Department of Highways.

SECTION 4. That the costs, damages and expense of the portion of said improvement for which the physical cost is not borne by the said Department of Highways, shall be assessed against and collected from the properties specially benefited thereby in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same, and the city's share of the cost of the portion extending from a point 421.3 feet north of Dartmore avenue to Maytide street shall be chargeable to and payable from Bond Fund No. 293, Street Bonds 1928.

SECTION 5. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on March 5, 1934, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said City, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 423.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XX.

As they neared the house, David said:

"I'll drop you off, Pippin. I've a few calls to make."

She was glad he was going to leave her alone with Helena. She said, tremulous:

"Lend me your handkerchief."

She wiped her face, wanting to say mad, extravagant, tender things, but there came only a little hysterical:

"Can you take me back, David? Can you really?"

She reached up and gave her father a long, sobbing kiss.

Unaware of herself and the ground under her feet, Pippin drifted into the hall. Passing the upstairs sitting room she saw old Jonathan and greeted him excitedly:

"Darling, you're not lonely sitting there all by yourself?"

She leaned down, making his old heart thump with the softness of her cheek against his and her young, fragrant lips on his seamy forehead.

"I'll be back in a few moments to manicure your nails."

"Don't be long now! Your mother is in her own room."

Bruce called out:

"Hey, Pippin, come in and lie on my bed for a minute. Want to tell you about the Mammoth cave . . . hot-diggity, but it's some hole."

"In half an hour darling."

"Nertz to you! I'll be asleep in half an hour!"

Chickie Surprised

Chickie was sewing at a little desk in her sun room. She held a pen but she didn't write. Her heart was cold—a sick lump of dread. She couldn't fathom what had turned Pippin against her father. Now she might defy him. David, too, because of his great hurt, would harden. They would grow bitterly, perhaps irrevocably, apart.

She heard Pippin's step and didn't turn.

With a strange warm trembling and little spurts of talk, Pippin reached her mother's side:

"Why, Helena, what are you doing here alone, leaving poor Jonathan to feel neglected and blue? Why don't you go out and take a walk? It's a gorgeous night . . . I never saw such a moon."

Chickie could have wept at the bewildering change in her voice and manner. She kept her back turned and for a few moments didn't try to talk.

Then Pippin said:

"You promised to measure the hem on my black dress. I want to wear it tomorrow. Will you come and do it now?

Chickie knelt on the ground pinning up the soft lustrous silk. All of a sudden, Pippin ran light fingers over the pale gold of her mother's hair.

All Well Again

Chickie rose, giving her daughter a tender, astonished smile. She said softly:

"I'm glad to see you happy again."

Pippin faced her mother, lips trembling, eyebrows raised. She could not bring herself to say:

"I heard about you, mother."

She didn't want to talk about it.

With a little rush she put arms about Chickie's neck:

"It's all fixed up between David and me. Everything's all right again. I'm so glad."

That was all she said, then she got her manicure things and made Jonathan feel in his prime as she polished his nails and flirted with him, getting him to tell her again of his boyhood in San Francisco and the parties that he went to, and the girls that he loved.

Sunday morning Chickie went to her daughter's room.

Pippin was just finished breakfast. She lay against the pillows, a little pale but her eyes almost purple under their straight black brows. She looked so very young with her gold hair ruffled, her lips parted and dreaming.

Asks Explanation

Chickie moved a chair to the bed. She sat down and clasped her hands . . . quiet because of many tears unshed.

"Pippin, I want to know where you heard and how."

"Oh, mother, do I have to talk about it? What do we care?"

"I care very terribly. I should have told you long ago. It was brutal weakness that I let you learn it on the outside."

Pippin looked into her mother's face:

"I don't think it was weak. I never needed to know."

"But you do know. And you suffered needlessly."

"You couldn't have spared that. The only thing that got me really down was David. I thought he was the one who ran away. He'd always seemed so brave. I wanted to die when I thought he walked out and left you alone and, oh how frightened and desperate you must have been. I never wanted to look at him again."

Chickie's eyes were full of sadness.

"How could you think it of him, Pippin? How could you dream he'd ever let any one down?"

"I heard it wrong. I'm so ashamed of the way I acted."

"Did you hear it that night at the party when you came home so early and I found you crying in the dark?"

"Yes. I heard it then. Don't make me tell you about it, Helena. What good will it do?"

"I need to know. I want you to tell me exactly."

With many delays, with many pauses while she dabbed at her eyes and begged her mother not to insist, Pippin finally told the pitiful incident.

"I told you that people got so tight. Well, Dorothy Anderson was sitting at our table. She was drinking and suddenly went awfully pale and asked me to help her upstairs. I got her into one of those little rooms.

"She said, 'Stick by me, Pippin,' and passed out cold. I was frightened and ran for help. Dorothy's aunt and a friend, who was also old, were at the party. They took charge. They sent me for smelling salts and ice and coffee.

Overheard Conversation

"I brought the tray and told them I'd stand by in case they needed anything else. I went into a little dressing room. Several persons came to the room after that and went out. So I guess they forgot about me.

"I stayed their because I'd promised Dorothy. She's only 16, mother. She lay there as though she was dead. These two women began to talk. They let loose against the younger generation.

"You know that line of talk—how terrible we are and such chiselers and that we can't stand the gaff at all; that we want everything for nothing and whine the minute we're licked.

"They kept on saying we're yellow, and it was a crime that we drank, and hardly any girls are still 'nice' today, and they didn't know what the world was coming to. I was awfully bored because I've heard it all so often, and these women were balmy themselves.

"I just kept thinking: 'Baloney, baloney—no matter how thin you slice it it's still baloney,' but all of a sudden Dorothy's aunt said, 'But they DO get away with it. Women have always gotten away with it. Do you realize that the girl who came in here—the one with the gold hair—is the daughter of Helena Bryce?' The other said, 'Good heavens! Not THE Helena Bryce?"

"'Yes, nothing but.'

Pippin Perplexed

"Mother, please don't ask me to tell the rest."

"All of it."

"Well, Dorothy's aunt began to tell this friend all about you . . . that you were a stenographer—popular and very beautiful. And you had this violent love affair."

"Did she mention any names?"

"No. She just said 'Everyone knew they were mad about each other. But all of a sudden he ran off to Europe and she went up to some little town near Stockton, pretending to have a job. Her child was born—a girl. Somehow it all got into the papers. There was an awful scandal with some kind of a trial, but I'm hazy about that.'

"'Didn't he show up at all?'"

"'Not then. She came back and tried to train as a nurse and finally did, but of course she was disgraced. Then David Ramm returned from Europe. His family put up an awful battle. But he married her in spite of it all. Look at her daughter today—accepted everywhere, and ten chances to one she picks off William Lodge and his millions. Is anyone flinging her mother's past in her face?'"

"That was about all, mother. I sat there shaking and not knowing what to do. First I was going to rush out and scream at them. I wanted to shout it was a lie. But I just got up and sneaked away. I was rushing to the door intending to come home alone. Bill found me. I didn't want to see him or talk to him. I wanted to die."

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. He says he loves her, but Kevin is first in her thoughts. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Chickie is afraid she will have to tell Pippin of her past. Pippin goes to a party with Bill, but after returning seems unhappy. She tells her father what she heard about her mother, and that she thought him responsible. David explains to her what really happened and Pippin is again happy.

SHERMAN'S MARCH TO THE SEA—CIVIL WAR

Gen. Grant, put in command of all Union armies (March, 1864), took personal charge of the Potomac forces, leaving to Sherman the West and South.

Sherman started his drive May 4, 1864, from Chattanooga, Tenn., compelling Confederate Gen. Johnston to retreat, later his fiery successor, Hood, to evacuate Atlanta, Ga., September 5. Hood then cut off the supply lines of the Union in Tennessee and escaped into Alabama when pursued by Sherman. Leaving Gen. Thomas to protect Tennessee and destroying the supplies he could not take along, Sherman began his "March to the Sea" November 15 from Atlanta with about 55,000 men, reaching Savannah, Ga., on the Atlantic Coast the latter part of December. With a wide path of destruction (railroads, depots), he pierced the Confederate territory, isolating Virginia from South and West.

Meanwhile, Gen. Thomas routed Hood's troops near Nashville, Tenn.

Sherman, protected by the Union fleet from the sea side, February 1, 1865, started his march northward to unite with Grant in the attack of Richmond. In North Carolina he defeated Confederate Gen. Johnston, but delayed his arrival.

NAPOLEON IN EGYPT—VICTOR OVER AUSTRIA, ITALY—LOSES AGAINST BRITAIN

The young French republic, surviving the reign of terror, but threatened by European powers, entrusted youthful general, Napoleon Bonaparte, with the command of the army, after he had saved the National Convention (1795) from the mob violence of the united Royalists and Radicals.

Napoleon quickly threw his troops between those of Austria and Sardinia, defeating both separately (1796-1797). They had to cede Savoy, Nice, Netherland, territories west of the Rhine and recognize republics set up by Napoleon in North Italy.

To strike at Great Britain, Napoleon arrived with fleet and army in Alexandria (1798), overrun Egypt. He is pictured above reviewing captured chieftains and trophies. British troops united with natives defeated him, however, in Syria. Meanwhile, his fleet had been destroyed by British Admiral Nelson. Napoleon, leaving his army to its fate, escaped to France. IODINE—STILL TO PRODUCE IT FROM SEAWEED

Iodine (I), a blackish-gray crystalline poisonous solid, is used in medicine, photography. In nature it is not found pure; its salts are contained in seawater, sea-plants, marine animals. Chief sources of manufacture are the mother liquors from refining of Chilean saltpeter (NaNO3), containing about 25% sodium iodate (NaIO3) and sea weed having about 1% sodium iodide (NaI) and KI.

From the nitrate mother liquors iodine is liberated by adding sodium sulphite and acid sodium sulphit: 2NaIO3 + 3Na2SO3 + 2NaHSO3 = 5Na 2SO4 + I2 + H2O. The iodine is filtered off and purified by sublimation.

Seaweed is burned, the ashes heated with sulphuric acid and manganese dioxide in an iron pot (above); the liberated iodine collecting in the earthenware receivers (udells).

Human body, in health, contains about 20 mg. of iodine, half being in the thyroid gland in form of iodothyrin ($C_{11}H_{10}O_3NI_3$). Deficiency of soluble iodides in water, food, may result in lack of iodothyrin, one cause of goiter and cretinism. Diet should include seafood, to supply iodine.

Iodine dissolved in alcohol (tincture of I) is a good antiseptic in first treatment of wounds. (Chemistry)

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS SIGHTING LAND

Washington Irving exhibits the same love for the romantic past in his "Life and Voyages of Columbus" (1828) and "The Companions of Columbus" (1831) which characterizes his other biographies. Narrating the struggles before, during and after his voyages, he gives a truly human picture of the great discoverer and his contemporaries. Though falling short in analytical and philosophical requirements of history, his sentiment and graceful style make these works delightful. (American Literature)

CUTANEOUS SENSES—SKIN, A SENSE ORGAN

Almost the entire external covering of the body of vertebrates, the skin, constitutes a sense organ for touch, heat, cold, pressure, pain.

The nerve endings are the receptors of stimuli. Four different kinds are known: 1, Meissner's corpuscle (located in the papillae); 2, Pacinian corpuscles (in the deeper part of dermis); 3, end-bulbs of Krause (very sensitive, near the epidermis, also in the conjunctiva, lips and other parts of high sensibility); 4, end-organs of Ruffini (large receptors in the subcutaneous part of the derma).

Even the same kind of endings vary probably in structure, each being sensitive to certain stimuli. According to their distribution, the sensation on different area of skin is more or less acute.

The skin is covered with hair; around the root of each hair is a plexus of nerve fibers amplifying the stimuli given to the hair.

Economics Are Vexations

At the time this is written the world's gold is flowing back to America. It will be piped into the Treasury. Where it will stagnate in a golden Sargasso Sea.

It's strange how the popular ingots manage to eventually find their way home again. For five or six years we pumped it into Europe. Now that things are precarious over there, they spray it back here for safe-keeping.

It will have no effect on us. We are not allowed to hoard it. Even to think about it is bad table manners.

Could the world get along without gold? There's an answer we would like to question. We have interrogated many of our most profound and thickest economics on this 18-karat subject.

Some of them think the prosperous bullion is a menace. The others claim that all bookkeeping is based on gold. All we know is that we ain't seen a glittering pebble in 10 years, and we don't miss it.

We have had the thing explained to us a thousand times. The trouble with the explanations is that they change the subject.

SO, YOU WERE AT A LECTURE ON GOLD AND ECONOMICS — WELL, TELL ME ABOUT IT!
NOW LISTEN DEAR, I CAN'T REMEMBER A THING - BUT HONEST I WAS THERE!
BB

We have listened to radio experts and college professors dilating and contracting on the capillary attraction of cash registers for the yellow discs.

We understood it thoroughly at the moment of hearing. The minute the explainer stopped talking we were at sea again, without sails or rudder.

Some day we are going to have an expert tattoo the explanation backwards on our chest. Then, when in doubt, we can stand in front of a mirror and study up again.

There is no problem more easy and evasive than economics. If a thing costs this much and another thing costs that much, then a fair exchange is nobody's business. We know all about the production line, the sales line and the devaluation wave. We have no trouble understanding it temporarily. But it ain't permanent.

However, that doesn't stop us from explaining to more fortunate people who lack information. And, maybe, that's the trouble. Not too many experts explaining. But too many students listening.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

If gums bleed and the dentist's bill is growing into a considerable item, eat your bread crumbs, like a good girl. Teeth need exercise; when soft foods are eaten they don't get it. Raw vegetables, like carrots, turnips and cabbage are good fodder for teeth. Milk and orange juice are likely to promote their health and strength. Unbolted grains and cereals are of value in the cultivation of strong dentine. When washing the teeth, pass the bristles of the brush along the sides of each pearl. Scour the biting surfaces; that's where the caries come.

Color is an interesting subject, one in which every woman should be interested for the sake of her appearance. If a woman has gray hair and grayish kin she should not wear gray clothes unless she tints her cheeks with color, or has some warm gay hue as trimming for hat or frock. The same rule holds good for the woman with sallow skin and drab hair; her color enemies are beige, tan, light browns and yellow, which offer no contrasts whatsoever. Pale tints do not flatter the blonde, but make her look dolly-dolly and insipid. Black brings out her delicate loveliness.

While the lemon rinse is used pretty generally by blondes, who find that it imparts a bright glint to the glorious halo, it is of benefit to brunettes who are tormented with excessive oiliness of the scalp that sleeks down the hair, makes it look thin and languid a few days after the sudsy cleansing. To a quart of water add the juice of two lemons. Use after the shampoo. Let the rinse flow into the wash bowl, pour it over the head again and again. Follow with a spraying with tepid water. Neither lemon juice nor vinegar should be left on tresslocks.

Encouraging Straws

The Wind Blows in the Direction of Better Business—Comment on Local News

Two straws which show the direction in which the wind is blowing with respect to business may be found in the current news. Both are encouraging. Federal income taxes in the Pittsburgh district exceed by two million dollars the amount collected last year. And officials of the Allegheny Region Advisory Board, a railroad organization, say estimates of shippers' car requirements during the next quarter point to a gain of 9.1 per cent in traffic.

What we need most of all to start a business boom is a revival in the building industry. The building industry is one of the largest employers of labor and one of the largest consumers of Pittsburgh products such as steel, brick, sand and gravel, glass, hardware and electrical equipment. And it is now in the midst of about the worst slump that it has experienced in the ten years during which the Department of Labor and Industry has been publishing building permit data.

*Here, accordingly, we have a strong reason, in ad*dition to the desirability of eradicating the slums, breeding places of crime and disease, why an earnest effort should be made to have hundreds of new dwellings erected in Pittsburgh, with government aid, to house people in modest circumstances. We would like to see all our civic, trade and social service bodies get together with the municipal authorities in a vigorous campaign to this end.

While we put the improvement of the housing situation first, there are other potential building activities that are also worth the citizens' attention. There comes to mind in this connection the appeal that the University of Pittsburgh is making for funds to complete the Cathedral of Learning, a project which should have the favor and substantial support of everyone who has pride in the city and would like to see it advance.

*There is another business report in the news con*cerning which it is difficult to form an opinion. William Sponsler, Jr., secretary of the State Liquor Control Board, reports that the commonwealth's liquor business has fallen far short of what was expected. It looks as if the profits for the year would amount to only about $5,570,000 instead of the twenty-five millions that was expected. Is this to be deplored or not?

If it means that people are drinking less whisky than was estimated, we think it is cause for gratification rather than regret. Even though the profits from the state's liquor business go to the aged and the blind, and to other good uses, it is not desirable that the people should be encouraged to drink inordinately in order to swell this fund. One reason why the commonwealth took over the business was to eliminate the profit motive for stimulating the whisky trade.

If, on the other hand, the state liquor stores are not doing so well because, as the Philadelphia Record charges, "the bootleggers still have a lion's share of the Pennsylvania trade," the poor report takes on a different aspect. But it is hard to see how bootleggers can take business from the state, unless people are content to drink the very dubious products of moonshine distilleries even when good liquor is obtainable.

*The state liquor stores sell a blended whisky, guar*anteed as non-poisonous, which commonly retails in Pittsburgh at 10 cents a drink. It is hard to see how the bootleggers can beat that. As for pure old bonded whisky, it is a rather scarce commodity; and the State Liquor Control Board, buying in enormous quantities, surely can obtain it at a lower figure than the bootleggers.

The supposition is, then, that if the bootleggers still have the lion's share of the liquor business, people would rather drink "moonie" than Sweepstakes, or that the bootleggers are content with a smaller profit than the 40 to 50 per cent that the State makes on its liquor sales. But this does not seem reasonable. It seems more reasonable to suppose that people are really not drinking as much whisky as it was thought they would.

After all, fourteen years of prohibition must have had some effect. There must have been some persons who, rather than deal with bootleggers, did without liquor and got out of the habit of drinking it; there must have been some others who, with open saloons and legitimate drinking places not available, never learned to drink it. And still others, no doubt, who might drink spirits or wines if they could obtain them at a bar, are drinking instead beer, which is not sold by the State.

*Of course there is still some bootlegging and prob*ably always will be. Prohibition was repealed only about three months ago, and the bootleggers have perhaps not had time to get rid of their stocks. It must be admitted, too, that some persons have acquired a taste for "moonie," "white mule," and the like. But as time passes and the bootleggers get rid of their pre-repeal stuff they should become less important as competitors of the State stores.

The outbreak of psittacosis (parrot fever) in Pittsburgh is cause for concern, and it is reassuring to find physicians of the United States Public Health Service diligently co-operating with the City Health Department in plans to suppress it. Fortunately, comparatively few people come in contact with parrots, and Dr. L. F. Badger, of the Public Health Service, says infection through contact with a human sufferer is unlikely.

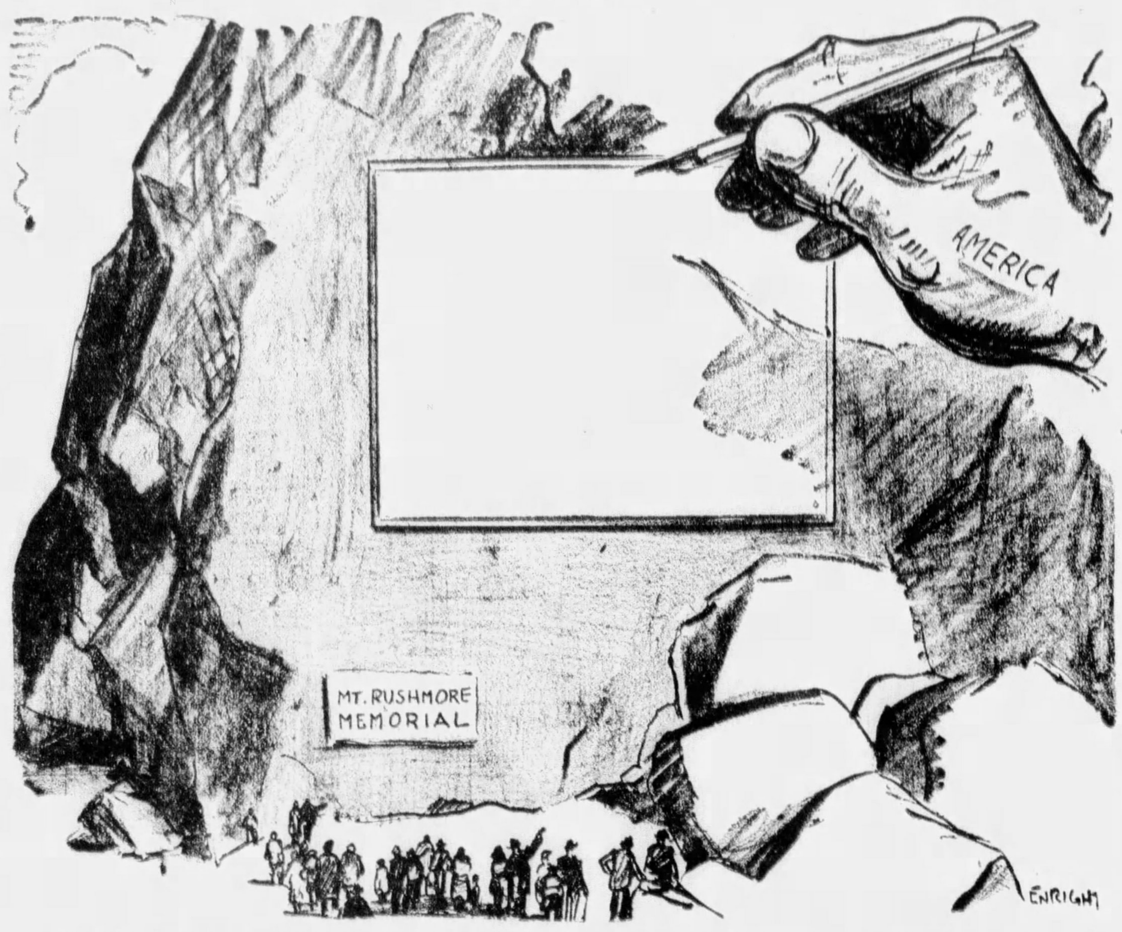
Every loyal American should sign the petition now being circulated by the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers, protesting against participation by the United States in the League of Nations and the World Court. If you want to save America from European entanglements and keep your country out of foreign wars, and foreign wars out of your country, sign the petition without delay.

*Mexico is in many respects a stranger, more fasci*nating country than any of the European countries. An interesting article about the art of the Mexican Indian primitives is featured in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. It is beautifully illustrated in colors. The marriage of a Follies girl to an Indian prince forms the subject of another interesting article.

One of the beauties of Puck, the Comic Weekly section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, is that its 30 comics cover a wide variety of humor. There are thrills as well as laughs and smiles and chuckles. Take the installment of "Tim Tyler's Luck" by Lyman Young, which will appear in tomorrow's issue of Puck, as an example. It pictures as exciting an adventure as any lover of tales of heroism and hairbreadth escapes could demand.

Who Will Write This Epic Story?

(Copyright, 1934.)



Think of a monument which is destined to endure for more than a million and a half years!

Mt. Rushmore, in the Black Hills of Dakota, is a vast block of imperishable granite.

In the living rock, Gutzon Borglum, the distinguished sculptor, is carving a gigantic memorial of our national history, with huge sculptures of great Presidents, and a wide entablature of prepared stone to contain in deeply graven letters the history of America, told in a few brief sentences.

Who will write that story—a story which will be legible during more years to come than the years spanned by the whole record of the human race up to this present time?

Obviously, the words to be treasured for all posterity should be the finest that all America can produce.

But how can such an author and such an inscription be discovered among a hundred and twenty million people?

To accomplish that very purpose, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers have instituted the Mt. Rushmore memorial inscription contest.

Read about the contest in the news pages of this paper.

Who knows—perhaps YOU may become the author of this immortal text!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 17.—I have been charmed reading one of those straight-forward volumes, "Here Are My People!" by Arthur J. Burks. It has the doughnut, apple pie tang of the agriculturally voluptuous Big Bend Country in the robust State of Washington, locale of the story.

The believable folk might be yours or mine, a prideful part of our heritage, the roots from which most of us stem. After a few minor riots outside my window and other fomentings of massed discontent lately, my eyes have lost the avid glint of those lusting for metropolitan adventure.

I hanker for the side-porch hammock, soft skush of the churn and sleeping old Towser twitching with dreams of the chase. I'd be perfectly content with our quota of daily excitement — the whistle of the 8.15 rounding Scearce's Cut and the round-up at the Smoke Shop.

I'd like to "recollect" with some of the old-timers and be refreshed by a firmer belief in God and the promises of a pleasant hereafter. In the fog of so much misunderstanding I long more than ever for the cheerful shine of an out-dated mode. Certainly modernity has botched things up.

* * *

There is a buckeye tree I remember on our Court street corner. In the cool of the evening Dr. Thompson used to drag his rocker there. In a buggy he peddled his magic eye salve as far away as Charleston, W. Va. It was a part of my vast innocence that he made travel more glamorous than Burton Holmes ever has. He had seen Abe Lincoln, attended a state fair at Columbus, O., and talked personally to Al G. Fields, the minstrel, on the depot platform at Youngstown.

* * *

Likely not many ever heard of the "Our House." It's just a little two-storied brick along the river on Front street, but Lafayette once spent a night there. What a splendid name for an inn in so placid a commune! "Our House" weaves a suggestion of four poster beds, grate fires and hospitality somehow touching.

* * *

In trying to recapture so many impressions of childhood in that green and healthy world, many figures parade by. Many figures that would cause New York to halt, slowly pivot and perhaps indulge the surreptitious smile. So out of tune with the high voltage of the modern spectacle, they are.

I think of M. Julius Pitrat, who gave French lessons privately in his ivy-clad cottage on Back street. A shy gentleman from Bordeaux who had the only goatee in our town, wore a shoulder cape and the wide hat of the Boulevard Raspail. How I blushed when I greeted him with the hard inflexions "Pit-rat" and was reminded it was "Peet-raw!"

* * *

And Miss Eliza Sanns. You have seen her prototype in those Katharine Cornell plays of the mauve decade, but never imagined she existed in real life. A cameo of lavender, old lace and spit curls. So fragile and delicately chiseled was she, you feared a sudden gust would blow her away. Now and then her black lace sun parasol bobbed along the main thoroughfare, but mostly she sat in her dark-timbered library or walked in the moonlight in a brick-walled garden. That great realist, Julian Green, could have written a grand novel about Miss Eliza, a beauty who never married.

* * *

Rex Cristo was our town's blacksmith, a huge-chested fellow with fierce black mustachios. The town had little use for him, for all his earnings went for whisky, which never seemed to weaken his giant physique. But he liked children. He made us finger rings out of horse-shoe nails, hammered down discarded shoes for our pitching games, and kept a constant supply of rock candy on a string.

* * *

Uncle Enoch, with his frizz of white and a rheumatic hobble, had been a slave in Louisiana. He mowed lawns and ran inglorious errands when able, could not read or write, yet so upright and humble had been his life that he had the profound respect of our entire town. Every sundown you could see him on the porch of his little frame shack, chanting the old hymns and praising God for all His blessings. Everybody turned out when Uncle Enoch went to his reward. Mr. Wetherhold even put the purple plumes on his white hearse horses.

* * *

These back yonder towns just now to many of us are the area of calm that is the vortex of every tornado. At times I wonder why any of us ever left them. But we did—and in my politest manner—I ask: For what?

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

She Loved to Laugh

She loved to laugh and someway she
Woke others to a sense of glee,
And many found when she was near
An unaccustomed note of cheer.
In everything they heard or saw
It seemed some undiscovered law
Which made dull things of every day
Reflect her bearing, blithe and gay.
She loved to laugh and when she came
A flicker as of happy flame
Sprang swiftly up, re-echoing
As one bird's song makes others sing.
O, laughter is a blessed gift,
Heals many a hurt, mends many a rift.
She loved to laugh, and so she lent
To other lives her merriment.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Have You a Mean Streak?

Why are you mean?

Why do you say catty little things that you don't really want to say? Why do you have those sudden bursts of temper that are as much of a mystery to you as they are to the other fellow? And why those secret periods of bitterness and melancholy and rage?

"Oh, it's just my disposition," you say despondently. "I've always been like that. Yes, I know it makes me terribly unpopular. And I tried and tried but I can't do a thing about it."

You're wrong on all counts, stranger.

* * *

You're wrong first in thinking that a disposition is something which is wished on you like measles or relations or other unavoidable afflictions. There's a reason for dispositions—they don't just happen. Like hash, they're ACCUMULATED—ACCUMULATED FROM THE ODDS AND ENDS OF EXPERIENCE.

When you're born you have no disposition, but you don't waste any time starting one. Almost with your first squawk, you begin accumulating peeves and prejudices, likes and dislikes.

A man with a beard leans over you and gives you a nasty medicine. You kick and yell and claw in rage and fear, but all in vain. Down goes the medicine. The man with the beard is to blame. Henceforth, men with beards are tangled in your youthful mind, with feelings of rage and fear. That's the beginning of your "disposition." You find that you can get things or CAN'T get them—if you howl long enough. That's something more toward your disposition.

* * *

Everything that you are, or have, or that happens around you, helps make that disposition. Everything joins that SECRET ACCUMULATION OF MEMORIES AND REACTIONS. Some day you will call that whole mass a "disposition" and you will think of it as a WHOLE. But it is really a collection of great and small things which, taken all together have made you what you are.

Why are you mean? Why do you have mysterious rages, fears and despairs? Because at some time something unhealthy and unhappy went into that mass and has been influencing you ever since.

Disappointment — discouragement—failure — injured vanity — hurt love — shock — grief — these things lie at the root of those strange impulses. Probably you've forgotten the original experience or have failed to understand its full significance. And you think that these mysterious demonstrations are just something that happens — something beyond your control. But they aren't!

Personalities can be set in order as well as any other junk pile. You can clean a wart off your disposition as well as you can clean a wart off your hand.

Have you a mean streak? Then sit down and find out what started that mean streak? What hurt or hunger? Dig into yourself. Go after that First Cause. Drag it out into the daylight. And then, no matter how important it was once,

MAKE YOURSELF REALIZE THAT IT IS NO LONGER IMPORTANT — MAKE YOURSELF REALIZE THAT IT IS ALL IN THE PAST AND THAT YOU CAN NOW MAKE LIFE AFTER YOUR OWN PATTERN.

St. Patrick, "the Apostle of Ireland," Had an Adventurous Career—The Legend of the Snakes

By Edwin C. Hill

THIS is the day devoted to one of the great saints of Christendom, Patrick, "the apostle of Ireland." We don't know as much about him as we ought to know. We are not even sure about his actual birthplace, which was probably in what is now England, rather than in Ireland. It is even probable, therefore, that he is not a born Irishman at all—though he was fervent enough as a grown man in his devotion to the Emerald Isle.

He was carried off from the English coast by Irish pirates who passed him along to cattle growers as a slave. Slave he was, for six long years, before he escaped in some manner which would make a rattling good story if we could dig it out of the long, long past. But he did reach the north coast of Gaul — what is now France; possibly somewhere near the present Calais. And thus the escaped slave boy fell in with some good men, became a church man himself, was ordained deacon at Auxerre when he was about 31, and then visited the Eternal City, the capital of the Christian World.

Saint's Bell Preserved in Dublin

PRESENTLY, he was back in Ireland, raging against the heathen, routing them, spreading the Christian faith among all the wild tribes. If you visit today the Museum of Science and Art in Dublin, they will show you with great pride the bell which St. Patrick used when he went about the land chanting his faith. A strange chant it was, called the Lorica, and it is preserved today in the Liber Hymnorum. An adventurous man, whose life history would make a thrilling biography could we but know all of the trials and perils he went through. A great man because almost single-handed he converted an entire people to the Christian faith. The span of his life was 74 years.

The legend most closely associated in the popular mind with the name of the good Saint has to do with his extermination of snakes in old Ireland. Indeed, there may be a basis of truth in that legend, as usually there is in all legends. And this brings to mind a tale which was told to this writer by the great American naturalist, Dr. William T. Hornaday, who knew a lot about snakes, as he had a vast store of information about all living things. He told me a very curious story about the time—and it wasn't so long ago—when there were actually snakes in Ireland, and some pretty big and dangerous ones at that. He told me the quaint yarn of how an American circus owner pretty nearly ruined St. Patrick's star achievement.

Back in the nineties the news got over here that the work of the holy St. Patrick had been all undone. Terrible serpents were terrorizing the countryside in Tipperary and committing shocking depredations. Poultry, pigs and calves were disappearing from off the face of the earth. Then a small boy ran home with eyes popping out and told his mother that he had seen the Devil in the form of an enormous snake carrying off Paddy Malone's pig. Naturally, the mother took her child to the priest and the good father questioned the lad very sharply. But he stuck to his story and pretty soon others were telling similarly amazing yarns, and it seemed evident that the Old Nick himself was loose in Ireland.

The Bishop Sends For Detectives

THE people were crazy with fear and the parish priests were stumped. But the Bishop, wise old gentleman that he was, suspected there was more knavery than deviltry in the fearsome business, so he sent up to Dublin for detectives, and in no time at all the mystery was a mystery no longer.

A short time before the Devil was seen carrying off Paddy Malone's pig and working such other wickednesses, a one-horse American circus had stranded in the little town of Amraugh, in Tipperary. The proprietor was so sore at his luck that he got boiling drunk and turned all his animals loose.

And you might imagine what an Irish countryside was like all cluttered up with lions and apes and laughing hyenas. But they were all recaptured or killed—so it was thought—and the whole uproar was forgotten until the Devil got to stealing pigs in the light of the moon and making such depredations, until the good Bishop sent to Dublin for the detectives.

Hiding behind the hedges, the men from Dublin watched patiently until they saw two fifteen-foot boas come hunting in the night and coil around the unlucky victims. They killed them and in some way traced them back to the stranded circus. And a lot of people were disappointed in Tipperary when the truth came out. It had been rather exciting to have the Devil making personal appearances. It gave them a sense of importance, the shiver of mystery and the thrill of excitement—three things dear to the Irish heart and seldom missing from the Irish character.

British Hit at Lindbergh

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Oh, wad some power the giftie gie us
To see oursel's as others see us!
It wad frae monie a blunder free us,
—Robert Burns.

JOHN BULL'S press appears to be having another big laugh at Uncle Sam's expense.

By recent British ships to American ports have come copies of London periodicals in which appear articles exploiting the series of calamities that have overtaken American aviation since it succumbed in recent weeks to the crippling blows of politics and politicians.

Under the title of "Probing the Air Mail," one London periodical in its issue of February 14 publishes a long article upon the activities of the Black committee. This article in this foreign periodical begins as follows:

"The investigations now being made by a Senate committee into the methods by which the Hoover administration awarded air mail contracts look like revealing a scandal fully comparable with the Teapot Dome oil revelations of 10 years ago."

Of Postmaster General Farley's order of February 9 canceling all domestic air mail contracts on the ground of alleged "collusion and fraud" in getting them, this article in this foreign periodical continues:

"The domestic companies involved will be debarred for a period of five years from further bidding, either for air mail contracts or for the construction of airplanes for the Army and Navy. There will remain to them only the operation of passenger services, which are said to be economically impossible without the government's mail subsidy.

"A well-informed correspondent in the 'Untied States'—as a festive compositor once spelled it—writes that we in England may have heard of the air mail scandal—a rotten mess that some people in the states have known for years. He adds that the United States aviation papers could not afford to dish it up and lose half their advertising. He often wished that he had been rich enough to do so."

Lindbergh Is Ridiculed

UNFORTUNATELY, this so-called American besmircher of his countrymen and his country's press is not identified by name in the article of this foreign commentator on men and things American.

Even Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is held up to ridicule in this same article, which concludes as follows:

"President Roosevelt has no intention of replying to Col. Lindbergh's telegram. We can only imagine that Charles Lindbergh was inspired, or instructed, to send that tactless telegram by some of his employers in the airmail racket. 'Slim' is a fine pilot and all that, but he is not mentally slim, in the South African sense, and would not of his own accord try a publicity stunt of that kind."

Of course the American people know that Col. Lindbergh's respectful telegram was sent upon his own initiative and that its only purpose was to save the federal airmail from destruction and to ward off the crippling blow that has been struck American air transport and the national defense.

It will take more than the contemptuous criticism of the foreign press to convince his countrymen that Col. Lindbergh is either the dupe of racketeers or a publicity seeker. This attack from the other side of the Atlantic will not lessen the admiration and affection of the American people for Charles A. Lindbergh.

Opposition Comes From Railroads

THE opposition across the Atlantic to the building up of an independent American merchant marine and to the development of American air transport to the eighth wonder of the world is not of recent origin. Foreign governments, foreign steamship companies, foreign aviation interests have long been as much opposed to federal aid for our merchant marine and air transport as are the railroad interests in the United States.

And most of the opposition in both houses of Congress to the legislation of recent years that has revived the American merchant marine and reinforced that auxiliary of the national defense with the best air transport in the world has come from those states in which the railroads are powerful political factors.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

People laugh at you when frequently you allude to unusually prominent persons as being friends of yours.

How many really influential friends have you, anyway?

Not many, when you stop to consider this question—perhaps not any.

Certainly, you may know many persons who have achieved more than the ordinary run—but how can you classify them as friends of yours?

Merely acquaintances, and many of them could not recall your name if they met you again.

Persons far above you in the social, business and financial worlds, have acquired friends, among those with whom they associate, because of their similar business positions or financial standing.

Usually they have all the friends they desire among the people they consider as of their own class.

They have no desire to acquire new friends outside their class and circle.

And this is not always the result of a form of snobbishness. It is a condition.

It is natural for persons to wish to associate with those on a par, at least, with themselves.

ISN'T IT SO?

The young man who comes to work all in is finally let out.

There are bright spots in any situation, provided one has the patience to look for them.

The man who is always dreaming of making money usually wakes up and finds his pocket empty.

Hens seem to be a little backward about laying just now, but as soon as the flower-bed season opens they will probably come up to the scratch.

Why does arbitration prove that both sides are wrong?

It's surprising how much some folks can say about themselves without telling anything.

There is method in some people's madness, it is said, but method never yet saved madness from disaster.

We don't know the quickest way to get rich, but judging from some recent political investigations we are inclined to believe that honesty is the slowest way.
